Strip High Court Of Politics: Kavanagh

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Supreme Court Chief Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh says he will ask the legislature next year to depoliticize the selection of Supreme Court Justices. He says he will also ask them to decriminalize marijuana, prostitution and pornography. Kavanagh handily won reelection Tuesday without the Democratic Party endorsement and in part because he was denied it. But Wednesday he said he was convinced the current system is "too disruptive" by requiring justices to spend too much time campaigning.

He said he will ask the law be changed so justices can be nominated in a non-partisan primary, like Michigan Court of Appeals judges, rather than by state party convention. He also will propose a constitutional amendment for the 1978 ballot to provide for the appointment of justices rather than their election.

Kavanagh, the Democratic nominee in 1968, was dumped by the party this summer, mainly because of anger over his legal decisions and his refusal to back party reapportionment plans when they came before the high court in 1972. But, on the non-partisan ballot, Kavanagh won Tuesday's election by 60 per cent over his nearest opponent, Roman S. Gribbs, the Democratic nominee. Republican candidate Joseph P. Swallow had only 11 per cent of the vote. Observers agreed the Democrats' decision not to nominate Kavanagh may have won him the sympathy vote of not only many Democrats, but most Republicans as well.

Other winners in Supreme Court races were Democrat Blair Moody Jr., a Wayne County Circuit Court judge who toppled incumbent Republican Lawrence Lindemer, and incumbent Republican James Ryan. Kavanagh also said Wednesday he planned to propose legislation to decriminalize prostitution, pornography and possession and use of marijuana to clean up what he calls "legal pollution" clogging the court system. Decriminalization of such crimes would free courts to deal with more serious matters, he has said. He also will recommend compulsory arbitration be required for public employees in contract disputes to keep such disputes out of already overcrowded courts.

Kavanagh's victory Tuesday, predicted in pre-election polls, was not a surprise, considering his familiar Irish name and his incumbency, which was noted on the nonpartisan ballot. What was surprising was his large margin in the face of two challengers. He lost only three Michigan counties to Swallow, and won even Wayne County where Gribbs, now a circuit court judge, was once sheriff and Detroit mayor.

Sam Fishman, director of the UAW's political arm, Wednesday blamed Gribbs' loss in part to media coverage of Kavanagh's failure to get the Democratic Party nod. "The way it came through to them (the voters) was that party bosses and labor bosses want judges they can put through boops and since Kavanagh was not willing to be that kind of judge these bosses dumped him," Fishman said. He said the public did not fully understand the judicial selection system, and didn't know all the reasons why Democrats were disappointed with Kavanagh.

Power Transfer Next Item On Agenda

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter, the victorious challenger, and Gerald Ford, the vanquished President, both exhausted by their battle for the White House, are planning vacations before the rites of passage that mark the transfer of presidential power. Carter was meeting today with Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale, who scheduled a flight to Plains, Ga., for their first conference since the election.

The 52-year-old Georgia peanut farmer and former governor, who spent nearly two years in his pursuit of the White House, said as he claimed his victory in the wee hours of Wednesday morning that he was pledging himself to "the unification of our country." It will be up to the two winners, their staffs and the staff of Ford's White House to work out details of the transfer of the control of government from the defeated Republican president to the victorious president-elect.

The margin of victory was a narrow one, and a final tabulation of the electoral vote still could not be made more than 24 hours after the final vote had been cast. While the principals in the fight for the right to lead the United States into its third century accepted the results of Tuesday's election and planned for the orderly transfer of power, vote counting continued in widely scattered areas.

In two states, Ohio with 25 electoral votes and Oregon with six, the results in the presidential race remained too close to call. Carter had a narrow lead in Ohio and trailed Ford by a few hundred votes in Oregon. In both states the leader could be overturned by absentee ballots still being tallied. But the balloting in neither state could change the outcome of the election, which Carter had won in the early hours of Wednesday. Without counting the two states still listed as uncertain, Carter carried 22 states and the District of Columbia with a total of 272 electoral votes, two more than the 270 needed for election.

Ford carried 26 states with a total of 245 electoral votes. Here was the popular vote total with all the nation's precincts reporting:

Carter 40,263,549 or 51 per cent. Ford 38,512,896 or 48 per cent. The numbers indicated that 53 per cent of the Americans who were eligible to vote in Tuesday's election cast ballots, contradicting predictions that apathy was the ruling factor and projections that voter turnout would be a record low.

The number of voters who did show up at the polls turned out to be the smallest number since 1948.

Ford and Carter, showing the strain of the long campaign, begin their holidays this weekend. Carter said his first task would be "the unification of our country after a close and hard-fought election." He expressed his gratitude for Ford's pledge of "complete and whole-hearted support."

Meanwhile, Carter planned to receive a blueprint made up by his key advisers to ease the change of administrations. Among the recommendations is that Carter desert his Plains home for most of each week and set up offices almost at once in Washington. Carter already has said he plans to set up a transitional office in Washington right away. President Ford publicly conceded defeat shortly after noon on Wednesday. Earlier in the day he had called Carter in Plains to congratulate him.

But Ford supporters said the President's voice was so hoarse from his campaign efforts that his chief of staff, Richard Cheney, had to relay the message. Carter, in a statement from Plains, said, "I deeply appreciate the President's call and his gracious expression of congratulations and cooperation. I expressed my admiration for him and for the strong, well-planned and effective campaign that he ran."

Carter said he would take full advantage of Ford's offer of cooperation during the transition period. In Washington, his voice

Local Suspect's Photo Received

Berrien county authorities today received a 1975 photo of Gregory J. Teron, 23, who is wanted on state and federal warrants in connection with an allegedly stolen car found at the home of a slain Fairplain widow.

Randy Arnt, investigator for the Berrien prosecutor's office, said the picture was sent by California authorities. Arnt said last week that Teron is wanted on a warrant in Orange county, Calif., charging auto theft.

A 1976 Ford Mustang II described as stolen from California was found at 232 Bradford drive where the body of Mrs. Norma Granzow Maxham, 73, was discovered Oct. 24. An autopsy showed death by strangulation.

Mrs. Maxham's 1976 gold-brown Cutlass was missing, police said. Teron was a roomer at Mrs. Maxham's "in the recent past," Prosecutor John Smetanka said.

A Michigan warrant charges Teron with receiving and concealing stolen property (the Ford Mustang) and federal warrant charges him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on the state charge.

St. Joseph township Police Chief Keith Mills said Teron most recently was reported to have shoulder-length hair. The picture from California shows him with short hair. The 1975 California picture is a good likeness of a picture of Teron taken at age 15. This picture was published Oct. 28 in The Herald-Palladium.

Meanwhile, police said the search for Teron continues without solid leads to his whereabouts.

Cooking For Nostalgia

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP) — While America munches frozen dinners and such exotic dishes as Lobster Thermidor and Chicken Tetrazzini, Helen Walker Linsenmeyer evangelizes for simple fare. The 70-year-old librarian is hoping to capitalize on what she calls "the nostalgia binge" with her new book: "Cooking Plain." "There are no elaborate, fancy recipes such as we have today," she said. Instead, her recipes, saved from generations of Southern Illinois, Indiana and Missouri families, feature the kind of fare that kept the settlers alive — fried squirrel, venison roast and molasses taffy. Her book allows kitchen artists to recreate the meat wine served to militiamen of Jackson County, as well as surnae lemonade. Mrs. Linsenmeyer said. Other recipes tell how to prepare such little-known items as Mushroom Catsup, Clover Blum Vinegar, Head Cheese, Rose Hip Jam and Peach Leather.

The twin-engine turboprop was on a flight from Balikpapan, a town on the island's eastern coast, the agency said.

The beer and soft drink industries, after waging a losing battle against Proposal A, are starting to gear up for compliance with Michigan's ban on nonreturnable beverage containers.

With 96 per cent of the vote counted, Proposal A passed easily, carrying 63 per cent of the total.

The initiative act adopted by the voters calls for the legislation to go into effect two years after adoption — Nov. 3, 1978.

Spokesmen for industry and labor, who saw higher prices and unemployment in the proposal's passage, said they would not fight the new law.

Anthony Franco, speaking for the Committee Against Forced Deposits (CAFD), said Wednesday, "We're disappointed, obviously. We don't feel it's a cost effective method for cleaning up our state's litter."

Franco added that the industry is "going to get about complying with the law," which will take effect in 1978.

Franco said the CAFD's stand had been hurt by feelings that it represented wealthy big business against the consumer. He said the committee's advertising budget, which Proposal A supporters claimed to be several million dollars, "will not exceed $1,300,000."

Edward Deeb, executive director of the Food Dealers Association of Michigan said passage will cause reduced consumption of soft drinks and beer and prices would rise. But the organization said no action is planned to fight the throwaway ban.

Gov. William Milliken said he was "pleased" with the passage of Proposal A, but was "disappointed by the defeat of Proposal B, which would allow persons to run for the state legislature at the age of 18."

The proposal was voted down by 78 per cent.

State Rep. Jackie Vaughn III, D-Detroit, called the rejection "disastrous." Vaughn, the proposal's prime mover, also vowed to re-introduce his proposal and said he would seek legal remedies in court.

Proposal C, which would have put a limit on state spending and taxes, was rejected by 57 per cent of the voters with 86 per cent of the results in.

Milliken said he was pleased with the defeat of Proposal C, but added, "the fact that the issue was placed on the ballot at all should put state leaders on notice that prudence in state spending is required."

But Flora Whan, president of Taxpayers United for Proposal C, said Milliken and special interest groups "scared people" into thinking the measure would raise property taxes and remove tax credits for senior citizens.

Mrs. Whan said her group would "go after" those who she claims used "biased news coverage" and "misleading"

Steering Uncle Sam On A New Course

In an eleventh hour dissertation on whether Jimmy Carter or Jerry Ford would win Tuesday's election, one commentator wrote he believed the effect should be minimal.

He felt the indicated closeness of the popular vote would be such that the winner could not derive a mandate from the outcome.

He added to what in his mind's eye is an indecisive factor the oft repeated statement by every pundit in the business that neither candidate had addressed himself to the issues.

His conclusion is that 51-49 in one column plus 50-50 or conceivably 0-0 in another can not mathematically add up to anything approaching 60-40.

The writer is quite correct from the standpoint of indulging in the algebraic function of adding or subtracting equations, but human affairs and those who seek to direct them never have been guided by what the dictionary defines as "a science that deals with the relationship and symbolism of numbers and magnitudes, and that includes quantitative operations and the solution of quantitative problems."

Every election we have followed personally over the years and those predecessors described in the history books show that the winner, by a landslide or a hair's breadth, conducts the office as a mandate to do something different than what his opponent advocated throughout the campaign.

The fact of Carter talking inconsistently from audience to audience, delivering a message his finely honed instinct tells him is what his listeners want to hear is no evidence whatever that he is inconsistent, or fails to grasp what is on the public's mind.

Jimmy is a 1976 version of Lyndon B. Johnson who until he stubbed his toe on the Vietnam situation was as shrewd a judge of public opinion and how to manipulate that opinion in his favor as ever occupied the White House.

The one exception is, in our judgment, that Carter will be more dexterous in avoiding the pitfalls into which LBJ plunged.

This means he will go to great lengths not to clash with the Congressional leadership in each House. Certainly he will try to skirt the type of open warfare indulged in between Johnson and J. William Fulbright, the former chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee.

In foreign affairs which basically gets down to how to prevent the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. from exchanging ICBS, he understands there is more to the job than simply replacing Dr. Henry Kissinger as Secretary of State. He realizes that in dealing with the Kremlin he will be up against minds considerably sharper than somebody voting for him because he or she thought Betty Ford was too much in the limelight.

On the domestic scene we look for Carter to balance up two major considerations.

Despite all the campaign rhetoric about 8 million Americans looking for jobs, the economy is in much better shape than it was two years ago and even as some indicators seem to fluctuate, most experts look for the economy to improve unless sent off the track by outlandish schemes hatched in Washington.

Similarly, the inflation rate is higher than what it should be but not as bad as it has been or could be.

Discrimination and health care, two topics receiving some airing in the campaign, persist but are not the ogres they are painted.

Totally, the election turned on an electorate which was inconsistent.

The man in the street does not believe the U.S. is headed down the drain and the greatest experimentation he wants from Washington is another tax cut. At the same time he felt Carter's stage presence is better than Ford's. It might be likened to an orchestra playing the same music but in an upbeat.

At the same time Carter is indebted to the pocketbook and social interests furnishing the bulk of his power base. If these elements are not paid off, 1980 could be a different story.

Consequently, Carter probably will call for some kind of a public works program, a national health scheme, concessions to labor's position at the bargaining table, greater influence for minorities.

Just about everyone with extended hand will have the palm crossed to some degree.

The possible exception might be the defense budget, a perennial target of Congressional liberals, but even this may not suffer unduly. Once Jimmy bulls his head into the first confrontation with the Soviets he may think kindly of the admirals and generals.

In short, look for a revival of the spend-tax formula this column predicted last week.

Oil-Rich Countries Near Key Decision

In less than two months the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will be meeting in Vienna to establish world petroleum prices for 1977. Naturally, the petroleum importing countries — just about everyone else — are waiting somewhat nervously for the results.

It is all but a foregone conclusion that oil prices will be going up again next year. The question is by how much. For a number of countries still struggling to overcome trade deficits brought about by previous oil price hikes, the answer will determine whether they can muddle through for a while longer, will be forced to curtail oil consumption no matter the consequences or will go broke.

Those are not pleasant alternatives. But they are the realities of a cartel situation which so far has proved all too successful. In a larger sense what will be decided in Vienna is whether the continuing fight against inflation — the single force most responsible for sliding currencies, increasing trade problems and high unemployment — is to have a chance to succeed before irreparable harm results.

If OPEC does not exert extreme caution, it can bring considerable hardship down on many, most heavily on the third world countries it purports to lead.

FDIC Chief Says Banks Making Solid Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says he thinks the nation's banks are overcoming the problems they had in the recession of 1974-5.

Robert E. Barnett gave that assessment Wednesday even as he said that the number of banks on the FDIC's list of troubled banks has increased.

The rate of increase is declining, he said, presaging a return to health as the economy improves.

Barnett said in an interview that the number of banks currently on the list of institutions with a relatively high proportion of shaky loans is now 379, compared with 349 at the beginning of the year. The figure contrasted to the 183 banks considered problems at the end of 1974.

The increase included a jump in the number of big banks from two at the beginning of the year to eight now, with one of those eight considered to be in serious difficulty.

The big-bank category includes the 88 in the nation with deposits of $1 billion or more. In all, the FDIC keeps an eye on 14,700 banks whose deposits are insured by the federal agency. That number amounts to 98 per cent of all banks in the nation.

Barnett, in keeping with traditional practice, did not name any of the banks on the current watch list.

He described the increase this year as not too bad. "I'm delighted that all it's gone up," he said.

He explained that the most recent increase is mild compared with the increase last year and indicates that the banking system may be shaking off the problems it encountered during the recent recession.

"That's consistent with what should be happening," he said. The normal lag in the jump in problem banks following a recession is 12 months to 18 months, he said.

And since the most recent recession was deeper than most, it makes sense that the lag should be a little longer, he said.

He said prospects are excellent for the eight biggest banks for avoiding either failure or some sort of receivership by the FDIC.

He said the number of big banks currently on the list is even less worrisome than the smaller banks, because it takes longer to assess the condition of the biggest banks and thus they can be placed on the list several months after they have already passed their crisis.

SHE HAS ONE SMALL COMPLAINT

Editor,
Saturday evening, Oct. 23, I attended and enjoyed very much the concert given by students at St. Joseph high school which my daughter is a part of.

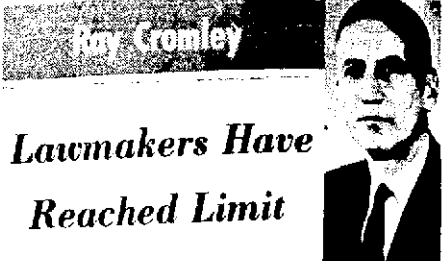

I must say these concerts are very worthwhile for anyone, young or old, to attend. The kids really take pride and do a fantastic job, and the directors are to be congratulated too for such a fine job.

I do have one complaint about the evening. I think it was very rude of the audience to get up and start walking out before the concert choir even got off the stage.

I know it takes time and practice to put one of these programs on and then when the people do something like this it is really disgusting.

Again thanks to everyone involved in the program for such an enjoyable evening. By the way, I'm very much looking forward to the program they put on in December.

Lawmakers Have Reached Limit

WASHINGTON — As we head toward a new four-year term in the presidency and a new Congress, it becomes more clear each day how little the man in the White House and the Congress can do. Regardless of the philosophy of the men in power.

The president can propose. The Congress can vote laws. But recessions run their course. Competition forces prices down or it doesn't. Men and women look to the future with hope, start new businesses, invest or expand — or they don't.

If the president's pronouncements and the lawmakers' edicts suit the mood or the morality of the times, then men and women move slowly and painfully into a new era in race relations. But if the mood of the times is not identical with the new laws, the law fails, as with Prohibition. Men find loopholes, as in the payment of taxes — all quite legally — or in the evasion of the spirit of election laws.

The best a president and a Congress can do then is to sense the mood of the nation, and make laws to fit it that are consistent with their own ideals.

When they're right, as were the men who developed the white — or yellow — stripes down the center of highways to prevent accidents, they hit the jackpot. Otherwise, as happened in the most recent period of price and wage controls, they so distort the picture, in this case the economic picture, that grave injuries are inflicted on many. Recovery becomes slow and painful.

There are observers who suggest, not wholly in jest, that it might be better for us all if Congress were to take a two-year holiday, give us time to digest and adjust somewhat to the mass of laws already on the books.

Already, there are so many laws, of such complication, it is impossible, I suspect, for any human being to go through a day without breaking several. I have heard a public official brag as much; he bet a group of average people he could catch any one of them breaking a law if they'd allow him to follow them around for an hour or so.

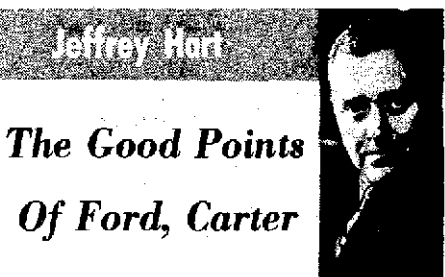

Visitors to our country, brought here under President Truman's Point Four program, came away with the thought that American industrial superiority lay not in superior equipment or in our inventiveness, or even in our abundance of resources, but rather that it came about because of something they could only define as the American spirit, the relationship of worker and boss, of worker and worker, and the goals set by each worker within himself.

These are not things set by presidential decrees or by congressional laws.

In fact, I suspect that the more government looks over our shoulder with laws which spell out what we must do down to the smallest details of daily life, the more of our funds it takes, the more it details how and what farmers and manufacturers shall produce, or creates laws which determine who shall work, the more it tends to destroy that spirit which is our glory and our salvation.

Certainly we need laws to protect the weak from the strong, to aid the sick and the helpless, to discourage crime, to assist education and promote the general welfare.

But there's a limit. And I, for one, believe that limit has been reached.

The Good Points Of Ford, Carter

Everyone is supposed to have been turned off by the recent campaign and everyone desired two other more ideal candidates, but perhaps there is something to be said for Carter and Ford. I myself have had harsh things to say about both. Nevertheless, there is at least a chance that they may both be better men than they have appeared to be during this campaign.

The entire process of running for the presidency tends to stress the negative. Sharp minds and tongues on both sides focus on flaws.

But let us try to look at some less-noticed strengths. Take Jimmy Carter first. It is demonstrable that he has taken contradictory positions on a number of issues, that he has committed himself to an impossible agenda of public spending, and that he has at least stretched the truth repeatedly. Nevertheless, he is not an inconsiderable person, and the task he set himself at least three years ago was a formidable one.

Viewed objectively, Carter had to be a contradictory candidate because the Democratic party is a drastically contradictory party. For his campaign, Carter needed the support of Morris Udall and George Wallace, George Meany and Frank Church. Part of the excitement of this "dull" election was to see whether Carter could continue to walk the high-wire between the nomination and the election without falling into the abyss of those contradictions. He managed to survive. Naturally, he had to be "deceptive." I myself consider that he has been deceptive beyond the requirements of tactical necessity, but perhaps that merely indicates an uncertain touch.

Gerald Ford may likewise be underrated. His weaknesses now are prominent in everyone's mind. He is inarticulate, uncharismatic, and in his two years plus as president has mostly been concerned to prevent Congress from passing a lot of bad legislation. That is supposed to be a "negative" record. Actually, Ford has given Congress a free ride on much spending legislation. A congressman could vote for the bill, confident that Ford would veto it and that the veto would be sustained. This permitted the congressman to be "on the record" as favoring the measure, and to curry the favor of an interest group, without having to face the consequences of the bill had it actually become policy.

Ford has also had a great deal less credit than he deserves on overall economic policy.

In my judgment, Ford assembled the best economic team in the history of the modern presidency. Jimmy Carter's TV spots attacked the Ford Administration's economic ideas as outdated and outmoded, but what the history of the industrial world since World War II demonstrates is that wishful thinking is outmoded.

Economics has always been known as the Dismal Science, and in the year 1976 economic theory has been insisting that 2 plus 2 actually equal 4. That is a dismal message indeed. It suggests that human limits are in fact real, that the books must be balanced, and rather sooner than used to be supposed.

President Ford has made many mistakes, but where the economy is concerned he put the power and prestige of the executive branch behind the solid economic policies of Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns; Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors; and William Simon, Secretary of the Treasury.

Steering Uncle Sam On A New Course

In an eleventh hour dissertation on whether Jimmy Carter or Jerry Ford would win Tuesday's election, one commentator wrote he believed the effect should be minimal.

He felt the indicated closeness of the popular vote would be such that the winner could not derive a mandate from the outcome.

He added to what in his mind's eye is an indecisive factor the oft repeated statement by every pundit in the business that neither candidate had addressed himself to the issues.

His conclusion is that 51-49 in one column plus 50-50 or conceivably 0-0 in another can not mathematically add up to anything approaching 60-40.

The writer is quite correct from the standpoint of indulging in the algebraic function of adding or subtracting equations, but human affairs and those who seek to direct them never have been guided by what the dictionary defines as "a science that deals with the relationship and symbolism of numbers and magnitudes, and that includes quantitative operations and the solution of quantitative problems."

Every election we have followed personally over the years and those predecessors described in the history books show that the winner, by a landslide or a hair's breadth, conducts the office as a mandate to do something different than what his opponent advocated throughout the campaign.

The fact of Carter talking inconsistently from audience to audience, delivering a message his finely honed instinct tells him is what his listeners want to hear is no evidence whatever that he is inconsistent, or fails to grasp what is on the public's mind.

Jimmy is a 1976 version of Lyndon B. Johnson who until he stubbed his toe on the Vietnam situation was as shrewd a judge of public opinion and how to manipulate that opinion in his favor as ever occupied the White House.

The one exception is, in our judgment, that Carter will be more dexterous in avoiding the pitfalls into which LBJ plunged.

This means he will go to great lengths not to clash with the Congressional leadership in each House. Certainly he will try to skirt the type of open warfare indulged in between Johnson and J. William Fulbright, the former chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee.

In foreign affairs which basically gets down to how to prevent the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. from exchanging ICBMS, he understands there is more to the job than simply replacing Dr. Henry Kissinger as Secretary of State. He realizes that in dealing with the Kremlin he will be up against minds considerably sharper than somebody voting for him because he or she thought Betty Ford was too much in the limelight.

On the domestic scene we look for Carter to balance up two major considerations.

Despite all the campaign rhetoric about 8 million Americans looking for jobs, the economy is in much better shape than it was two years ago and even as some indicators seem to flutter, most experts look for the economy to improve unless sent off the track by outlandish schemes hatched in Washington.

Similarly, the inflation rate is higher than what it should be but not as bad as it has been or could be.

Discrimination and health care, two topics receiving some airing in the campaign, persist but are not the ogres they are painted.

Totally, the election turned on an electorate which was inconsistent.

The man in the street does not believe the U.S. is headed down the drain and the greatest experimentation he wants from Washington is another tax cut. At the same time he felt Carter's stage presence is better than Ford's. It might be likened to an orchestra playing the same music but in an upbeat.

At the same time Carter is indebted to the pocketbook and social interests furnishing the bulk of his power base. If these elements are not paid off, 1980 could be a different story.

Consequently, Carter probably will call for some kind of a public works program, a national health scheme, concessions to labor's position at the bargaining table, greater influence for minorities.

Just about everyone with extended hand will have the palm crossed to some degree.

The possible exception might be the defense budget, a perennial target of Congressional liberals, but even this may not suffer unduly. Once Jimmy butts his head into the first confrontation with the Soviets he may think kindly of the admirals and generals.

In short, look for a revival of the spend-tax formula this column predicted last week.

Oil-Rich Countries Near Key Decision

In less than two months the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will be meeting in Vienna to establish world petroleum prices for 1977. Naturally, the petroleum importing countries — just about everyone else — are waiting somewhat nervously for the results.

It is all but a foregone conclusion that oil prices will be going up again next year. The question is by how much. For a number of countries still struggling to overcome trade deficits brought about by previous oil price hikes, the answer will determine whether they can muddle through for a while longer, will be forced to curtail oil consumption no matter the consequences or will go broke.

Those are not pleasant alternatives. But they are the realities of a cartel situation which so far has proved all too successful. In a larger sense what will be decided in Vienna is whether the continuing fight against inflation — the single force most responsible for sliding currencies, increasing trade problems and high unemployment — is to have a chance to succeed before irreparable harm results.

If OPEC does not exert extreme caution, it can bring considerable hardship down on many, most heavily on the third world countries it purports to lead.

FDIC Chief Says Banks Making Solid Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says he thinks the nation's banks are overcoming the problems they had in the recession of 1974-5.

Robert E. Barnett gave that assessment Wednesday even as he said that the number of banks on the FDIC's list of troubled banks has increased.

The rate of increase is declining, he said, presaging a return to health as the economy improves.

Barnett said in an interview that the number of banks currently on the list of institutions with a relatively high proportion of shaky loans is now 379, compared with 349 at the beginning of the year. The figure contrasted to the 183 banks considered problems at the end of 1974.

The increase included a jump in the number of big banks from two at the beginning of the year to eight now, with one of those eight considered to be in serious difficulty.

The big-bank category includes the 88 in the nation with deposits of $1 billion or more. In all, the FDIC keeps an eye on 14,700 banks whose deposits are insured by the federal agency. That number amounts to 98 per cent of all banks in the nation.

Barnett, in keeping with traditional practice, did not name any of the banks on the current watch list.

He described the increase this year as not too bad. "I'm delighted that's all it's gone up," he said.

He explained that the most recent increase is mild compared with the increase last year and indicates that the banking system may be shaking off the problems it encountered during the recent recession.

"That's consistent with what should be happening," he said. The normal lag in the jump in problem banks following a recession is 12 months to 18 months, he said.

And since the most recent recession was deeper than most, it makes sense that the lag should be a little longer, he said.

He said prospects are excellent for the eight biggest banks for avoiding either failure or some sort of receivership by the FDIC.

He said the number of big banks currently on the list is even less worrisome than the smaller banks, because it takes longer to assess the condition of the biggest banks and thus they can be placed on the list several months after they have already passed their crisis.

Do You REMEMBER?

Candidates for St. John's homecoming queen, one of whom will be crowned during halftime of the St. John's-St. Joseph Catholic football game Sunday at Filstrup field, are Diane Vasta, Michele Vernasco, Jeanette Dahn, Shirley Frazee and Barbara Etter.

— 25 Years Ago —

A new Britain elementary school will be the first building erected if a $2,250,000 school construction program is approved by Benton Harbor voters Wednesday. The present Britain school was built in 1880 and has long been termed a fire hazard by city and state officials. And it's so much too small that fifth and sixth grade classes for the area it serves have to be held across town in the Jefferson school. Jefferson was built in 1914 as a manual arts building.

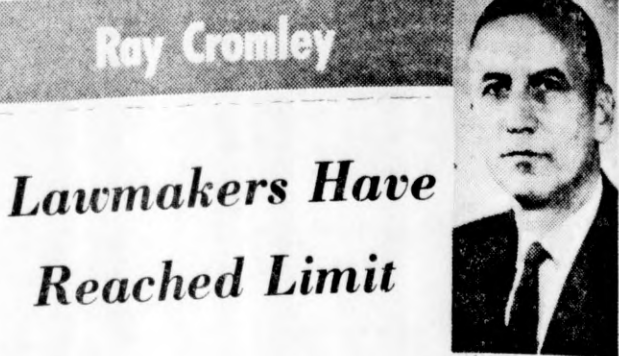

— 50 Years Ago —

The twin city's newest church will be built in St. Joseph, according to unanimous vote of the congregation of Saron church, taken last evening, when $2,000 was subscribed for the edifice which will be erected on the site of the present church on Main Street. In response to a report by Joel G. Pearson, St. Joseph contractor, chairman of the committee appointed to investigate possible building sites, the vote was in favor of the present location. Building operations will probably start next spring or summer. As yet no plans have been made as to the disposal of the present church building, but it is thought that it will either be sold or moved to the back of the lot to serve as chapel or Sunday school room.

— 75 Years Ago —

The cat has been let out of the bag. All speculation as to the real promoters of the now celebrated "Tunnel Scheme" is now at an end. The tunnel will be built. It will be built because there is a powerful corporation behind it. The Three I railway will use the tunnel. This is a fact beyond dispute. Benton Harbor is not going to be the terminus of the Three I railway very long. This road anticipates an extension to Kalamazoo just as soon as the tunnel is completed and the Three I can get through Benton Harbor in that way. The road will be continued to Detroit, a scheme which has been under consideration by Three I officials for many months. The rails being laid now by the West Michigan Traction company were borrowed from the Three I company. As soon as the Three I bridge across the St. Joseph river is completed, the Three I trains will have dirt out of the tunnel excavation.

Airplane Pioneer's Legend Kept Alive

Did August Herring Beat Wrights With First Flight In St. Joe?

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

The legend of Augustus Moore Herring won't die.

It hasn't been proved that Herring made the world's first airplane flight on Silver Beach in 1898. Yet several Berrien businessmen and firms with faith in the legend contributed $2,000 this summer for a magnificent scale model of Herring's biplane.

That Herring designed and built a compressed-air-driven motor, mounted it on a glider and experimented with the machine 78 years ago in St. Joseph is not disputed, according to Thomas J. Millar, of Fairplain, a pilot and aviation historical enthusiast.

But lacking conclusive proof that Herring's motorized Chanute glider left the ground under its own power during his tests in 1898, historians ignore the claim. They assign the honor of the first airplane flight to the Wright brothers, who made history Dec. 17, 1903, near Kitty Hawk, a village on the Outer Banks of North Carolina.

Herring's flight "can't be proved, but I'm sure it's true," says Millar, who has been a pilot since the day in 1934 that he took up an Arrow Sport biplane from Russ field.

Witnesses were present during one of Herring's tests, along with a reporter who filed an apparent first-person description of the flight in the Benton Harbor Evening News' Oct. 24, 1898, edition, Millar said.

Absent from the record of evidence is a photograph of the machine in flight. Millar remarked, "The only known photograph taken at the time shows Herring, his legs stretched in front of him, sitting on the beach holding the cage or rock-pit that was built under the two wings. Millar says the photo was taken just as the plane landed.

"A photo of the plane in the air 'would be of incalculable value — it would be conclusive proof of the first powered flight,'" Millar exclaimed.

Malcolm and Don Ross, Ross Associates, Benton Harbor; Willard J. Banyon, Herald-Palladium, Benton Harbor; Robert Miller, Benton Harbor; First National Bank of Southwestern Michigan, Niles; Forrest Pearson, Pearson Construction Co., Benton Harbor; and Stanley O. Miller, New Products Corp., Benton township.

Plans for the model were drawn after Millar studied plans for the original Chanute glider, built in 1896, that Herring would later modify. Millar also studied an application for a patent on a proposed airplane that Herring submitted in 1896 (the Patent Office rejected the application).

The most helpful piece of reference material was the photo that was taken at the conclusion of what Millar thinks was Herring's second flight on Silver Beach.

Millar took this information to Joe Seiler, owner of Seiler's Models, South Haven. Seiler made engineering drawings of Herring's airplane — these will be of interest to historians. Millar believes — then began work on a one-sixth (2 inches equals 1 foot) scale model. With brass tubing and modern model airplane covering Seiler and Tom Nook, an assistant, in six weeks made the replica of Herring's muslin and bamboo biplane. The model cost $1,500 and the case and mountings cost $500.

Millar said there are several mysteries surrounding Herring. Why did he choose to live in St. Joseph during the time that he was experimenting with the airplane?

Leslie W. Flott, a Notre Dame student who, according to Millar, wrote a dissertation on Herring in the early 1960's, wrote that Herring and Octave Chanute, another aviation pioneer, built and tested a Chanute glider in 1896 that was to become Herring's airplane.

The men made at least 1,000 trial runs with the glider at a place sometimes referred to as Dune Park, Ill., and other times called Dune Park. The park was on Lake Michigan between Gary, Ind., and Chanute's home in Chicago.

Chanute and Herring parted company in 1897. Herring and his wife turned up in St. Joseph living at 413 Church street, Flott wrote. Flott reportedly learned that Herring was running a motorcycle shop where he built the motor for the glider. Also Herring, at the time 30-years-old, was publishing a magazine concerned with gasoline motors.

Sometime after his tests, that took place in October, Herring left St. Joseph as quietly as he'd arrived, according to Millar.

The aircraft that some consider to be of great importance was dismantled in St. Joseph and "never cropped up again," said Millar.

Herring went on to make undisputed claims to history, according to Flott. He was a founder of the Herring-Curtiss Co., the first American airplane manufacturers.

The company, today called Curtiss-Wright, built the first plane ever tested by the U.S. Army. It crashed, however, and the contract for the Army's first planes went to Herring's old rivals, the Wright brothers.

Millar, a sales engineer at New Products, has other projects in mind. He'd like to see the Seiler model housed in the Smithsonian Museum. He'd like to build a full-sized replica of Herring's craft.

"First, it could be built as a hang glider and tested," he speculated. The motor might come later.

Millar, 60, believes that with the current interest in hang gliding, it's possible that some people may help make his dream come true.

Someday a machine similar to Augustus M. Herring's may make a brief (eight to 10 second), short (75 feet) flight along Silver Beach somewhere between Park and Broad streets.

Woman Is Hurt When Car Skids

Benton township police said a woman received apparently minor injuries Tuesday after the car she was driving slid on wet pavement and slammed into the side of a truck about 6 p.m.

Released after treatment at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, was Gale Darlene Coats, 32, of 174 Collins avenue, Benton township. Driver of the truck, who was uninjured, was Joe Willie Wright, 28, of 1053 Agard avenue, Benton Harbor. The collision occurred at the intersection of Collins and Paw Paw avenues. Gale Coats was ticketed for violation of the basic speed law — unable to stop in a clear distance, police reported.

APPEALS BOARD, LANDFILLS

Benton OKs New Zoning Laws

The Benton township board of trustees voted last night to adopt two ordinance amendments increasing the township board of appeals from three to five members and creating a new zoning designation for sanitary landfills. The amendment to increase the membership of the zoning board of appeals, body which hears appeals on township zoning decisions, is required by a new state act, according to

Thomas Robinson, township attorney. The township board of trustees also appointed Sam Martin, of 1440 Monroe street, and Mrs. Carolyn Fowler, of 810 North Pike street, to the new seats on the appeals board. They will serve three-year terms. Reappointed to the board of appeals were James Benson, chairman of the township planning commission, Margaret Cristall, township trustee, and George Welch.

The second amendment approved by the board of trustees requires sanitary landfills to have a special use permit to operate. Currently, sanitary landfills are allowed to operate in the township under non-conforming use.

The township planning commission is awaiting the amendment before making a decision on a request by the Northwest Berrien County Landfill Authority to use another 67 acres of land adjacent to the present nine-year-old site just north of Ross field airport.

In other action, the board of trustees approved the sale of two vacant parcels of land to

Did August Herring Beat Wrights With First Flight In St. Joe?

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

The legend of Augustus Moore Herring won't die.

It hasn't been proved that Herring made the world's first airplane flight on Silver Beach in 1898. Yet several Berrien businessmen and firms with faith in the legend contributed $2,000 this summer for a magnificent scale model of Herring's biplane.

That Herring designed and built a compressed-air-driven motor, mounted it on a glider and experimented with the machine 78 years ago in St. Joseph is not disputed, according to Thomas J. Millar, of Fairplain, a pilot and aviation historical enthusiast.

But lacking conclusive proof that Herring's motorized Chanute glider left the ground under its own power during his tests in 1898, historians ignore the claim. They assign the honor of the first airplane flight to the Wright brothers, who made history Dec. 17, 1903, near Kitty Hawk, a village on the Outer Banks of North Carolina.

Herring's flight "can't be proved, but I'm sure it's true," says Millar, who has been a pilot since the day in 1934 that he took up an Arrow Sport biplane from Ross field.

Witnesses were present during one of Herring's tests, along with a reporter who filed an apparent first-person description of the flight in the Benton Harbor Evening News Oct. 24, 1898, edition, Millar said.

pit that was built under the two wings. Millar says the photo was taken just as the plane landed.

A photo of the plane in the air "would be of incalculable value — it would be conclusive proof of the first powered flight," Millar exclaimed.

Malcolm and Don Ross, Ross Associates, Benton Harbor; Willard J. Banyon, Herald-Palladium, Benton Harbor; Robert Miller, Benton Harbor; First National Bank of Southwestern Michigan, Niles; Forrest Pearson, Pearson Construction Co., Benton Harbor; and Stanley O. Miller, New Products Corp., Benton township.

Plans for the model were drawn after Millar studied plans for the original Chanute glider, built in 1896, that Herring would later modify. Millar also studied an application for a patent on a proposed airplane that Herring submitted in 1896 (the Patent Office rejected the application).

The most helpful piece of reference material was the photo that was taken at the conclusion of what Millar thinks was Herring's second flight on Silver Beach.

Millar took this information to Joe Seiler, owner of Seiler's Models, South Haven. Seiler made engineering drawings of Herring's airplane — these will be of interest to historians, Millar believes — then began work on a one-sixth (2 inches equals 1 foot) scale model.

With brass tubing and modern model airplane covering Seiler and Tom Nook, an assistant, in six weeks made the replica of Herring's muslin and bamboo biplane. The model cost $1,500 and the case and mountings cost $500.

Millar said there are several mysteries surrounding Herring. Why did he choose to live in St. Joseph during the time that he was experimenting with the airplane?

Leslie W. Flott, a Notre Dame student who, according to Millar, wrote a dissertation on Herring in the early 1960's, wrote that Herring and Octave Chanute, another aviation pioneer, built and tested a Chanute glider in 1896 that was to become Herring's airplane.

The men made at least 1,000 trial runs with the glider at a place sometimes referred to as Dure Park, Ill., and other times called Dune Park. The park was on Lake Michigan between Gary, Ind., and Chanute's home in Chicago.

Chanute and Herring parted company in 1897. Herring and his wife turned up in St. Joseph living at 413 Church street, Flott wrote. Flott reportedly learned that Herring was running a motorcycle shop where he built the motor for the glider. Also Herring, at the time 30-years-old, was publishing a magazine concerned with gasoline motors.

Sometime after his tests, that took place in October, Herring left St. Joseph as quietly as he'd arrived, according to Millar.

The aircraft that some consider to be of great importance was dismantled in St. Joseph and "never cropped up again," said Millar.

Herring went on to make undisputed claims to history, according to Flott. He was a founder of the Herring-Curtiss Co., the first American airplane manufacturers.

The company, today called Curtiss-Wright, built the first plane ever tested by the U.S. Army. It crashed, however, and the contract for the Army's first planes went to Herring's old rivals, the Wright brothers.

Millar, a sales engineer at New Products, has other projects in mind. He'd like to see the Seiler model housed in the Smithsonian Museum. He'd like to build a full-sized replica of Herring's craft.

"First, it could be built as a hang glider and tested," he speculated. The motor might come later.

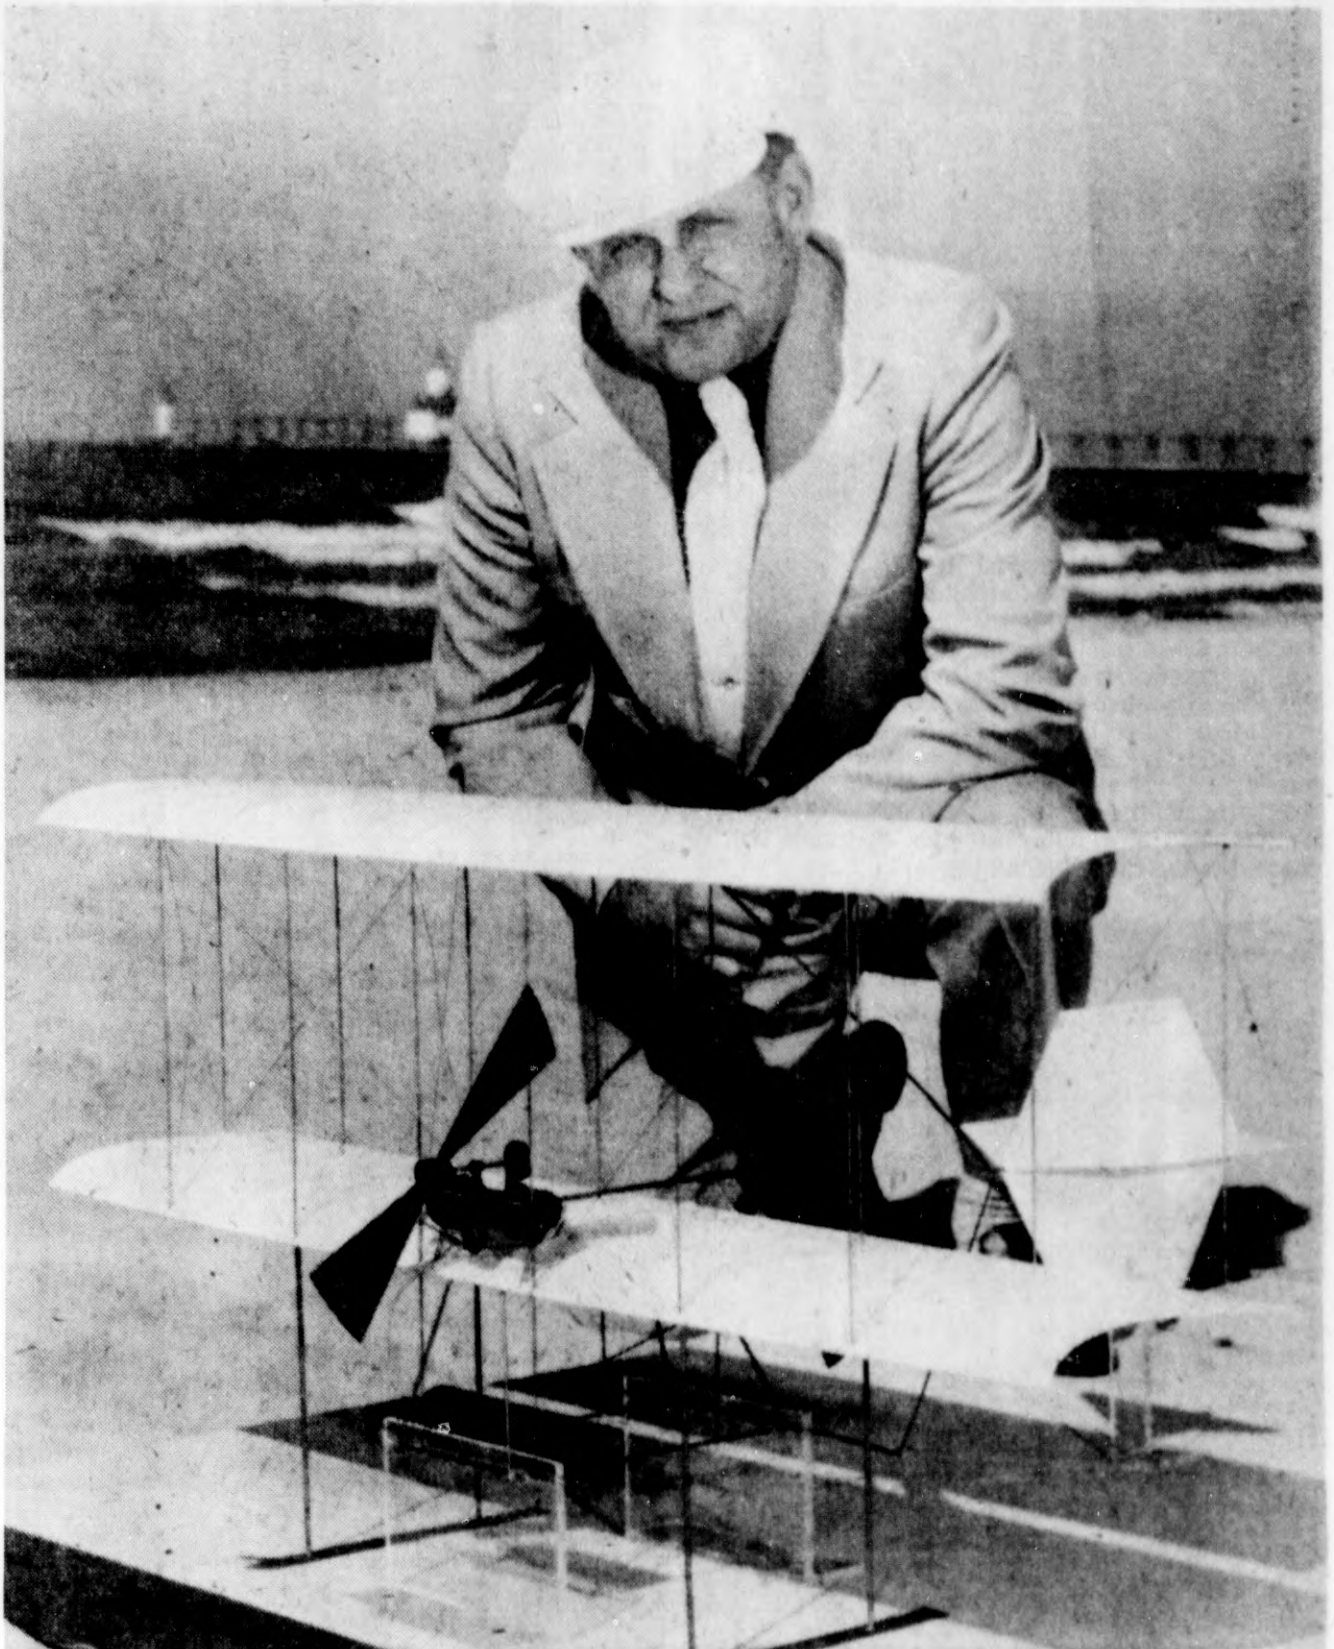

Millar, 60, believes that with the current interest in hang gliding, it's possible that some people may help make his dream come true.

Someday a machine similar to Augustus M. Herring's may make a brief (eight to 10 second), short (75 feet) flight along Silver Beach somewhere between Park and Broad streets.

Woman Is Hurt When Car Skids

Benton township police said a woman received apparently minor injuries Tuesday after the car she was driving slid on wet pavement and slammed into the side of a truck about 6 p.m.

Released after treatment at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, was Gale Darleen Coats, 32, of 174 Collins avenue, Benton township. Driver of the truck, who was unhurt, was Joe Wylie Wright, 28, of 1055 Agard avenue, Benton Harbor. The collision occurred at the intersection of Collins and Paw Paw avenues. Gale Coats was ticketed for violation of the basic speed law — unable to stop in a clear distance, police reported.

Benton OKs New Zoning Laws

The Benton township board of trustees voted last night to adopt two ordinance amendments increasing the township board of appeals from three to five members and creating a new zoning designation for sanitary landfills. The amendment to increase the membership of the zoning board of appeals, body which hears appeals on township zoning decisions, is required by a new state act, according to

Thomas Robinson, township attorney.

The township board of trustees also appointed Sam Martin, of 1440 Monroe street, and Mrs. Carolyn Fowler, of 810 North Pike street, to the new seats on the appeals board. They will serve three-year terms. Reappointed to the board of appeals were James Benson, chairman of the township planning commission, Margaret Crisall, township trustee, and George Welch.

The second amendment approved by the board of trustees requires sanitary landfills to have a special use permit to operate. Currently, sanitary landfills are allowed to operate in the township under non-conforming use.

The township planning commission is awaiting the amendment before making a decision on a request by the Northwest Berrien County Landfill Authority to use another 67 acres of land adjacent to the present nine-year-old site just north of Ross field airport.

In other action, the board of trustees approved the sale of two vacant parcels of land the township owns.

The board approved the sale of a vacant parcel of land at 902 Edgemoor avenue to Lewie Lorenzo Simmons for $105, and the approved the sale of vacant ravine property at 720 Waukonda avenue to Jack Tate for a price to be negotiated later. Both parcels are adjacent to property the buyers own.

The board voted to approve a recommendation by the township planning commission to spend $15,100 from the township's federal Community Development fund to update the township's land use plan. The $15,100 contract to update the land use plan was proposed by Parkins, Rogers and Associates, a Detroit consulting firm.

The board also agreed with the planning commission's recommendation not to use $4,800 from the township's general fund to provide additional planning services under the proposed contract.

The board also upheld a recommendation by the planning commission to deny a rezoning request by Thomas Fogarty, 2814 Red Arrow highway, to construct a pole building to sell horse saddles and garden equipment.

Sewing Hints

By DOROTHY KING

I made an empire style dress with short puffed sleeves, a Peter Pan collar and the belt in back, the skirt of the dress is of medium fullness. It is a print of very high quality medium weight knit. I really like it but it's sort of a mini and the hemlines have dropped. Is there anything I can do to it so that I can keep it and stay in style?

Since your dress is a print then you might be able to find a solid color of the same quality knit to match one of the colors in the dress, but if not, purchase a fine quality of the whitest knit you can find.

You would want to purchase enough to make a border for the skirt, to replace the tie belt, collar and small band that goes around the puffed sleeves.

How much hem you have to let out and how long you want the dress will determine how wide your border will be. If the border won't be too wide it is best to cut the border the circumference of the skirt bottom plus five-eighths-inch seam allowance on both ends of the border. Measure carefully and stitch border ends together. Now stitch border on skirt. Do sleeve band the same as border. Cut belt and collar from solid fabric and apply to dress.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

No Wedded Bliss On Job

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for all couples who met at work, fell in love, married, and continue to work together.

Please do yourself a favor. One of you quit. I don't care which one, but for the sake of your marriage, the people who have to work with you, your boss, everybody, quit.

It's unhealthy for a couple to be together 24 hours a day. You can't help but get on each other's nerves. Remember the old saying, "Don't bring your work problems home." Well, the reverse is true: "Don't bring your home problems to work." It's easy to tell when you've had a fight. You continue it on the job and make everyone uncomfortable.

No please take this suggestion in the spirit intended. Quit — one of you — before both of you are replaced. — In The Know

Dear Mr. Generally speaking, I agree with your admonition, but there are exceptions.

When the couple owns or runs the business there is less chance for the kind of trouble you describe. It's when they fight on somebody else's payroll that they run into problems.

when you said it was because he was emotionally involved with his cat but not with his grandmother. Please consider another possibility.

Some people experience a delayed reaction to grief. They may feel the loss so deeply they are numbed into a state of shock. Or they keep their feelings pent up because they are afraid of going to pieces.

Later on, sometimes months after the event, they find release by overreacting to something of minor significance.

Please print this letter. The boy who wrote probably feels enough guilt about being told he didn't care about his grandmother. No one has experienced everything and that's why I'm bold enough to differ with you. — L.R.

Dear L.R.: Your explanation is as good as mine. Either of us may be right. No one should feel guilty because he lacks emotional involvement with another human being. If there's no chemistry — there's no chemistry. Respect, admiration and good will are noble, too.

Need A Lawyer

Dear Ann Landers: I am 20 and in love with Rick, age 21. Last year I gave birth to a beautiful baby girl. Rick's mother didn't believe the baby was his. Naturally this created some hard feelings between her and me. She began to work on Rick and we started to argue a lot. Finally we agreed to stop seeing each other for a while and maybe get back together in a few months.

Two weeks ago, I learned from a mutual friend that Rick married someone else. (A girl his mother liked.)

I never asked him for support money and he never offered any. This baby is Rick's and many people feel he has some responsibility to her. Is it too late? — Jane

Dear Jane: You need a lawyer. If you can't afford one, look up Legal Aid in the directory. They do a wonderful job.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Which is considered more dangerous in cigarettes, the tars or the nicotine? — Mr. T.G.E., Fla.

Every package of cigarettes sold in the United States must carry the warning that the Surgeon General considers cigarettes injurious to health. All cigarettes, no matter what their nicotine or tar content, are considered to be a hazard.

Until recently, little attention has been paid to another factor which may be just as injurious to the lungs as are the tars and the nicotine. It has been found that carbon monoxide, inhaled while smoking cigarettes, carries with it a severe threat.

In fact, it is said that smoking just one cigarette may affect or interfere with the amount of oxygen carried in the blood.

Carbon monoxide in cigarettes is caused by the combustion of tobacco and the paper in which it is wrapped. In studies made with human volunteers, the increase of carbon monoxide in the blood after even only one cigarette affected the brain and the central nervous system.

These findings are being used to urge the Federal Trade Commission to require that cigarette packages add the carbon monoxide content of cigarettes as an additional warning.

Cigarettes do vary in their carbon monoxide content, depending on the wrapping paper, the type of filter and the tightness with which tobacco is packed. Even low nicotine and low tar cigarettes can produce high carbon monoxide levels in the blood.

Non-smokers must recognize the potential dangers associated with inhaling other people's smoke. The non-smoker can be affected by the carbon monoxide from someone else's cigarettes.

Why do all diets recommend black coffee to help you lose weight? — Mrs. G.F., Ore.

The emphasis on black coffee probably stems from the idea that this automatically eliminates cream and sugar. Black coffee has no caloric value. Some people believe that black coffee may act as a depressant to the appetite.

This has no scientific validity. However, if it works for the dieter without overstimulating him, a reasonable amount of black coffee should do no harm.

A and B, who used to defend all the auction bridge hands in the '20s, are too old to play much duplicate any more, but they had put in an appearance for an afternoon game. Sitting East and West they had very few hands to play and with their long practice in defense had a good chance to win the duplicate when they defended the last hand.

B opened with one diamond in the East seat. After South jumped to four spades, A proceeded to double. North redoubled and A opened his device of diamonds.

B proceeded to cash three diamond tricks and A carefully discarded the deuce of hearts on the second diamond and the ace of hearts on the third one. Now B led a heart and A ruffed to set South one trick and give A and B

Savory Dish Tempting

Here's a savory vegetable dish to tempt the appetite.

Cook one 10-ounce package of frozen lima beans in unsalted water according to the package directions; drain. Heat one-fourth cup milk with one-fourth cup crumbled blue cheese, stirring until the cheese melts. Stir in cooked beans. Meanwhile, combine one-fourth cup finely chopped walnuts and one tablespoon melted butter. Stir over medium heat until walnuts are golden brown.

Serve beans sprinkled with crispy walnuts on top. Makes four servings.

DONALD RIEGLE
Needs to gain respect

Riegle Faces New Battle To Fill Hart's Shoes

By SUSAN AGER

Associated Press Writer

Donald Riegle has won an election skirmish for Philip Hart's U.S. Senate seat, but now he faces a tougher battle to earn the respect of some members of both parties who question his ambitions and maturity.

Michigan Democrats in particular have none of the respect for Riegle that they had for Hart, universally lauded by his colleagues in the Senate.

Voters in his Flint district have given him generous margins over the past ten years, when he ran as both a Republican and a Democrat. His trademark is his personal touch and a willingness to "go to bat" against the bureaucracy for any constituent.

The style helps him politically, and voters swear he solves their problems.

One of his tireless campaigners, for example, was Erman Holland, a 67-year-old General Motors retiree, for whom Riegle located lost Social Security and pension checks.

But some Democratic party people give him faint praise. He is, many say, overly ambitious, aggressive and abrasive.

Riegle's frank and critical look, "O Congress," written while still a Republican, first raised the wrath of his House colleagues. An interview early in his Congressional career in which he vocally aspired to the Presidency caught him more derision.

Plus, some Democrats raised their eyebrows and questioned Riegle's common sense after recent reports of a 1969 extramarital affair in which Riegle let his lover tape some intimate conversations — and talk of his plans to be President by 1980.

Riegle, a Republican until 1973, enjoys no favor with that party either. Former Michigan Gov. George Romney has called Riegle "unstable" and a "Congressional prima donna."

State GOP Chairman William McLaughlin has said Riegle switched parties in 1973 because, as Republican fortunes faded, he knew he would get elected more easily as a Democrat.

Even Gov. William Milliken, not known for personally criticizing politicians of either party, called Riegle "cold" and said he had "fewer redeeming human qualities than anyone else I know," according to one Republican leader.

The GOP leader said Milliken's comment came several months ago in his Mackinac Island home during a talk about the Senate race with party leaders. Milliken told of Riegle challenging him on Labor Day to race across the Mackinac Bridge, which the governor walks annually.

Milliken turned down Riegle's dare, but Riegle started the walk before it was time, beat Milliken across, then called reporters with details of both his own and Milliken's times in crossing.

"Bill Milliken never knocks anyone," said the GOP leader. "It was the only bad thing I have ever heard him say about anybody."

GOP executive director Jerry Roe, never a Riegle fan, on election night said Riegle's Republican opponent Marvin Esch had a record of accomplishments, while all Riegle had was a successful campaign style.

"Don Riegle's been taking his coat off for ten years," he said, referring to Riegle's habit of speaking in rolled up shirtsleeves and loosened tie.

Coat over his shoulder, Riegle stumped the state in his recent campaign and made some promises. One promise was to work hard to unseat some veteran committee chairmen whom he says are too old to be effective. The chairmen happen to be Democrats.

As a Johnny-come-lately Democrat, Riegle just doesn't command the allegiance accorded a leader who served his time working up through the party ranks.

His status as a loner and a maverick in Congress does not suggest he will be immediately successful as a party unifier or a conciliator. To avoid irritating his own troops, he will have to tread lightly and subtly, which some say he cannot do.

Riegle will have the opportunity in 1978 to have a hand in the selection of candidates to oppose Sen. Robert Griffin, as well as Milliken or the GOP nominee if Milliken doesn't seek re-election.

If he has real presidential aspinations — which he has denied on the campaign trail — he may be trying to garner part of Hart's faithful to build up his own political base for a possible run.

And while some Democrats may have to swallow hard to accept Riegle as their leader, they can ill afford to undercut someone with the proven vote-getting ability he demonstrated this year.

In the Senate he can be expected to continue the same sort of style that carried him through the election — ignoring the polls and conventional political wisdom to trounce opponents in surprise victories.

He will likely be outspoken, irreverent of Senate tradition and his elders, and quick to jump on an issue for publicity.

Riegle's House colleague Rep. Morris Udall, for example, has compared him to the scouts that preceded the wagon train in the old West, seeing things before others saw them, rather than the workers who kept the train moving.

But Republicans will be watching closely to see if Riegle can be made vulnerable to the charge of being a vocal gadfly who doesn't really work on legislation. That charge by opponent Esch did not work this time.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Party leaders agree the loss of two Republican seats in the Michigan House won't make much difference, though it continues a pattern of dwindling GOP power.

"We thought Watergate was behind us, we thought we did a good job of recruiting candidates, we thought we were well organized," Carmen Seats, top aide to House GOP Leader Dennis Cawthorne, said Wednesday.

But a heavy election turnout — which traditionally works for Democrats — and a less than resounding home state victory for President Gerald Ford chipped away Republican hopes to reverse an eight-year trend of losses and rebuild their muscle in the state House.

"It would have taken a considerable Ford victory in Michigan to provide any out-tails and he didn't carry the state by that much," Seats said.

The new balance in the House — 68 Democrats and 42 Republicans — still leaves Republicans with "more than enough strength to uphold a governor's veto, which is what we had before," Seats said.

Democratic House Speaker Bobby Crim said he doesn't see his party's two-seat gain as significant. "It will be just a smidgen easier to put the votes together," said Crim.

Before the election, Democrats had 66 votes and Republicans 44. The new Democratic caucus is still five votes short of having a two-thirds majority in the 110-member House.

A two-thirds majority would allow Democrats to vote en bloc and override any vetoes by Republican Gov. William Milliken.

But the loss of two GOP seats in Tuesday voting added another link to a chain of Republican losses in the House that began in 1968.

This year, Reps. Cullen House Engler of Bay City, a first-term legislator, and F. Robert Edwards of Flint lost to former House aide Jim Barcin, 21, and builder and broker Joe Conroy, 42, respectively.

And though Republicans pulled a surprise victory over Rep. John Markes, D-Westland, they lost a long-time Republican seat, now held by retiring Rep. Roy Spencer, a veteran lawmaker.

In that district, 25-year-old Lapeer teacher Larry Burkhalter won the seat for Democrats over Fred Westendorf, a retired Army colonel.

Seats predicted that the 1978 House election would be significant. With a Democratic president and Congress, he said, "if any of the old political traditions still prevail there should be a substantial swing in favor of the party out of power" in both Congressional and state House and Senate races.

Democratic House Speaker Bobby Crim said he doesn't see his party's two-seat gain as significant. "It will be just a smidgen easier to put the votes together," said Crim.

DONALD RIEGLE
Needs to gain respect

Riegle Faces New Battle To Fill Hart's Shoes

and
MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writers

Donald Riegle has won an election skirmish for Philip Hart's U.S. Senate seat, but now he faces a tougher battle to earn the respect of some members of both parties who question his ambitions and maturity.

Michigan Democrats in particular have none of the respect for Riegle that they had for Hart, universally lauded by his colleagues in the Senate.

Voters in his Flint district have given him generous margins over the past ten years, when he ran as both a Republican and a Democrat. His trademark is his personal touch and a willingness to "go to bat" against the bureaucracy for any constituent.

The style helps him politically, and voters swear he solves their problems.

One of his tireless campaigners, for example, was Erman Holland, a 67-year-old General Motors retiree, for whom Riegle located lost Social Security and pension checks.

But some Democratic party people give him faint praise. He is, many say, overly ambitious, aggressive and abrasive.

Riegle's frank and critical book, "O Congress," written while still a Republican, first raised the wrath of his House colleagues. An interview early in his Congressional career in which he vocally aspired to the Presidency caught him more derision.

Plus, some Democrats raised their eyebrows and questioned Riegle's common sense after recent reports of a 1969 extramarital affair in which Riegle let his lover tape some intimate conversations — and talk of his plans to be President by 1980.

Riegle, a Republican until 1973, enjoys no favor with that party either. Former Michigan Gov. George Romney has called Riegle "unstable" and a "Congressional prima donna."

State GOP Chairman William McLaughlin has said Riegle switched parties in 1973 because, as Republican fortunes faded, he knew he would get elected more easily as a Democrat.

Even Gov. William Milliken, not known for personally criticizing politicians of either party, called Riegle "cold" and said he had "fewer redeeming human qualities than anyone else I know," according to one Republican leader.

The GOP leader said Milliken's comment came several months ago in his Mackinac Island home during a talk about the Senate race with party leaders. Milliken told of Riegle challenging him on Labor Day to race across the Mackinac Bridge, which the governor walks annually.

Milliken turned down Riegle's dare, but Riegle started the walk before it was time, beat Milliken across, then called reporters with details of both his own and Milliken's times in crossing.

"Bill Milliken never knocks anyone," said the GOP leader. "It was the only bad thing I have ever heard him say about anybody."

GOP executive director Jerry Roe, never a Riegle fan, on election night said Riegle's Republican opponent Marvin Esch had a record of accomplishments, while all Riegle had was a successful campaign style.

"Don Riegle's been taking his coat off for ten years," he said, referring to Riegle's habit of speaking in rolled up shirtsleeves and loosened tie.

Coat over his shoulder, Riegle stumped the state in his recent campaign and made some promises. One promise was to work hard to unseat some veteran committee chairmen whom he says are too old to be effective. The chairmen happen to be Democrats.

As a Johnny-come-lately Democrat, Riegle just doesn't command the allegiance accorded a leader who served his time working up through the party ranks.

His status as a loner and a maverick in Congress does not suggest he will be immediately successful as a party unifier or a conciliator. To avoid irritating his own troops, he will have to tread lightly and subtly, which some say he cannot do.

Riegle will have the opportunity in 1978 to have a hand in the selection of candidates to oppose Sen. Robert Griffin, as well as Milliken or the GOP nominee if Milliken doesn't seek re-election.

If he has real presidential aspirations — which he has denied on the campaign trail — he may be trying to garner part of Hart's faithful to build up his own political base for a possible run.

And while some Democrats may have to swallow hard to accept Riegle as their leader, they can ill afford to undercut someone with the proven vote-getting ability he demonstrated this year.

In the Senate he can be expected to continue the same sort of style that carried him through the election — ignoring the polls and conventional political wisdom to trounce opponents in surprise victories.

He will likely be outspoken, irreverent of Senate tradition and his elders, and quick to jump on an issue for publicity.

Riegle's House colleague Rep. Morris Udall, for example, has compared him to the scouts that preceded the wagon train in the old West, seeing things before others saw them, rather than the workers who kept the train moving.

But Republicans will be watching closely to see if Riegle can be made vulnerable to the charge of being a vocal gadfly who doesn't really work on legislation. That charge by opponent Esch did not work this time.

Debates Gave Carter Edge Over Ford, Poll Reveals

NEW YORK (AP) — The televised debates between Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter benefited Carter more than the President, apparently by giving the voters a better idea where he stands on major issues.

But an Associated Press survey of voters on election day found the debates dispelled only part of the voters' confusion on Carter's position on abortion and did not wipe out concerns about his fuzziness on issues.

The debates exerted less influence on Ford voters, but they also apparently helped expand supporters' knowledge about his stands on issues.

The AP survey was conducted on Nov. 2 at 100 scientifically selected precincts across the country, ranging from several in New York City to those in remote rural areas. In a unique cooperative effort, reporters from AP member newspapers and broadcast stations joined AP staffers and stringers to do the interviewing.

Asked how much influence the debate had on their decision who to vote for, 44 per cent of the Carter supporters said the portions of the debates they watched had a "great deal" or "some" influence on their decision.

By contrast, only 36 per cent of the Ford voters said the debates they watched had swayed their decision to that degree.

Over-all, agreement with the candidate on the issues was the reason cited most by all the voters in their decision who to vote for. And the poll found that they knew far more about the candidates when they voted than they had in May.

Each of the 2,487 voters interviewed by the AP survey was asked where the candidate they voted for stood on four major issues — government-guaranteed jobs, an anti-abortion amendment, more money for national defense and national health insurance.

On all four issues, more supporters of each man named his position correctly than named it incorrectly.

The margins were as large as the 70 per cent to 18 per cent edge by which Carter voters said he supports comprehensive national health insurance and the 70 per cent to 23 per cent bulge by which Ford backers said he opposes the federal government guaranteeing jobs for all those who want them.

When broken down into those who watched the debates and those who did not, Carter voters who watched the debates were from five to nine points more likely to name his position correctly than those who did not watch the debates.

Ford backers who watched the debates were even more well versed — naming the President's position correctly more often by a 9-to-13-point margin over those who did not.

These findings do not prove the debates were the source of the information on the candidates. For one thing, those who watched the debates tended to be the better educated voters, who are expected to have a better idea of candidates' positions. But education cannot account for all of the variation found by the survey, leaving the debates as a major factor.

But the survey also found that Carter is still viewed as fuzzy on the issues.

Second Congressional District House Race Hanging In Balance

By PICT BENNETT
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The outcome of Michigan's 2nd Congressional District race was in doubt today as officials declared only a few votes difference between Republican Carl Pursell and Democrat Edward Pierce.

On Wednesday, the vote tally seemed between the two contenders battling for the seat vacated by defeated U.S. Senate candidate Marvin Esch. At one point, Pursell and Pierce said they thought the other was the victor. But today, recounts are in order in Washington County where there were indications of errors in vote tabulation.

Michigan will send five new congressmen to Washington and the Democrats retain control of the House delegation.

One incumbent was defeated as Republicans regained President Ford's old spot in the 5th District when Harold Sawyer, the Kent County prosecutor, ousted Democratic Rep. Richard VanderVeen by almost 15,000 votes.

Pierce called the tight election "the craziest thing I've been through in my life."

With the prospect of a recount hanging over his head, Pursell said, "We're very optimistic."

"I'm sure it will be considered a classic race," Pursell said. "I just hope somebody will be able to evaluate it someday."

The Associated Press called Pierce the victor when he had a 5,300-vote margin on returns from 88 per cent of the polling places. But Pierce's lead evaporated during the day.

If Pierce's margin holds, his triumph would allow Democrats to preserve their 12-7 margin in the state's Congressional delegation.

In Grand Rapids, it took an election eve personal plea on Sawyer's behalf to return the district to the GOP. Both VanderVeen and Sawyer called the President's appearance decisive in an area Ford represented for a quarter century.

VanderVeen's loss marked the third time in the past decade that any Michigan Congressman lost a re-election bid.

Another newcomer is Democrat state Rep. David Bonior, who defeated Republican Dave Stockman for the seat vacated by Democrat James G. O'Hara. Bonior is a young liberal and environmentalist.

The new faces include Republican Dave Stockman in the 4th and Democrat Dale Kibbee in the 7th. Stockman replaces Edward Hutchinson, who retired, while Kibbee won the seat Donald Biege gave up to make his successful Senate bid.

Republican Garry Brown polled less than 31 per cent of the votes and had to endure hours of suspense before winning a sixth term from the 3rd District over state Rep. Howard Wolfe.

Democrat Bob Carr, elected by just 647 votes in the 6th District two years ago, had a margin of about 13,000 this time.

Seafarer Foes Doubt Veto Soon

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Opponents say they doubt Gov. William Milliken will veto Project Seafarer any time soon, despite the controversial system's defeat at the polls.

Project Seafarer is a proposed Navy submarine communications system that would entail laying a grid of radio transmission cables under a sizable portion of the western Upper Peninsula.

In referendum Tuesday, the proposed project was voted down 3,699 to 2,761 in Menominee County; 10,464 to 2,867 in Houghton County and 10,900 to 1,165 in Marquette County.

The three latest referendum brings to eight the number of U.P. counties that have rejected the project in advisory elections.

"It's hard to be enthusiastic," said Don Yerg, a spokesman for People Against Sanguine-Seafarer, "knowing that Gov. Milliken ... has ignored all votes on Project Seafarer."

Navy officials have confirmed that Milliken has the power to veto Seafarer, but an aide said Wednesday the governor is not likely to act until after the release of an impact study by the National Academy of Sciences which is slated for publication next month.

In Grand Rapids, it took an election eve personal plea on Sawyer's behalf to return the district to the GOP. Both VanderVeen and Sawyer called the President's appearance decisive in an area Ford represented for a quarter century.

VanderVeen's loss marked the third time in the past decade that any Michigan Congressman lost a re-election bid.

Another newcomer is Democrat state Rep. David Bonior, who defeated Republican David Serotkin for the seat vacated by Democrat James G. O'Hara. Bonior is a young liberal and environmentalist.

The new faces include Republican Dave Stockman in the 4th and Democrat Dale Kildee in the 7th. Stockman replaces Edward Hutchinson, who retired, while Kildee won the seat Donald Riegle gave up to make his successful Senate bid.

Republican Garry Brown polled less than 51 per cent of the votes and had to endure hours of suspense before winning a sixth term from the 3rd District over state Rep. Howard Wolpe.

Democrat Bob Carr, elected by just 647 votes in the 6th District two years ago, had a margin of about 13,000 this time.

DETROIT VOTE DOOMS HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit schools will not have high school sports programs after this fall because voters defeated a five-mill school tax request Tuesday, officials said Wednesday.

Other programs which will not be restored, some of them cut several months ago after voters rejected a similar proposal, include reduced class hours for some students and limitations on the elective courses for high school students.

Officials said Wednesday they had no plans to have another millage vote.

Although the millage came closer to passing than any request since 1968, voters rejected it by 7,331 votes, or a half-percent of the 369,915 votes cast.

Unofficial final returns showed 183,992 votes for the millage hike and 185,923 votes against it.

School officials said the millage it passed would have brought in about $37 million. They said they would have used the money to restore budget cuts made since 1971, including the latest round.

"We're right back where we were on July 1 when Dr. Arthur Jefferson (school superintendent) told us there would be no sports," said Roy Allen, assistant divisional director of health and physical education. "And to think we lost everything — not just athletics — by less than 2,000 votes. The people just don't understand."

Officials said the close vote Tuesday came after a heavy voter turnout and continuing strong support for the millage in black neighborhoods. About half the city's voters are black, but black students make up about 79 per cent of the Detroit public school enrollment.

The millage proposal's margin of defeat came from absentee voters, officials said Wednesday. The average absentee voter in Detroit is older and does not have children in the school system, officials said.

The millage proposal was further set back because 16.5 per cent of those who voted Tuesday did not cast any vote on the proposal, officials said.

School officials said Wednesday they would turn to the state for more money for the Detroit system.

"We have always believed that it is the state's constitutional obligation to see that children get an education," said Jefferson.

"This is not just a problem for Detroit. Many school systems in our state are in trouble," Jefferson added, noting millage defeats Tuesday in Taylor and other systems.

The Detroit Board of Education must submit its budget to the state by Friday. Jefferson said it will give the state figures as they stand now — which means the Detroit system will tell the state it is operating on a deficit budget in violation of state law.

A Detroit bank gave the system $146,000 in August to operate boys' football and girls' basketball programs this fall. Boys' basketball practice was to start Monday, but the gym is not available.

"When the girls' season ends, that's it," said Jerry Weber, head of the sports department at Southwestern High School.

No other sports programs are being operated, and the football and basketball programs will expire at the end of the year when the gym runs out.

On Wednesday, school officials would not speculate on whether any other "gift" to the schools to fund sports would be accepted without an equal contribution to fund educational programs.

Ford, Carter Plan Vacations

barely above a whisper. Ford told reporters at the White House that in the 78 days until Carter's inauguration on Jan. 20 "there's a lot of work to do and we're going to keep on doing it."

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford plans to continue pursuing an arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union as well as peace initiatives in the Middle East and Southern Africa. On domestic policy, Nessen noted that the outgoing president still has responsibility for submitting a proposal for a fiscal 1978 budget to Congress shortly after it convenes in January.

After that, Ford, who spent 25 years in Congress before being elevated to the White House after the resignation of Richard Nixon, has no definite plans, Nessen said. "He's talked of an interest in teaching political science at a university," Nessen said.

Ford plans to leave Sunday for a week-long vacation in Palm Springs, Calif. Mondale and Carter have talked on the telephone but have not seen each other since the balloting.

Mondale was in Minneapolis on Wednesday, where he said the efforts toward a government transition were well underway. He said he planned on having a "significant role" in Carter's administration. After spending the day relaxing with his family, the vice president-elect met with reporters and said he hoped to work effectively with the Senate, which will be made up largely of fellow Democrats.

"The vice president does not run the Senate," he said. "I'm under no illusions about that. But a vice president can work effectively with Congress." There was one quick negative reaction to Carter's election. Wall Street analysts said the stock market, with its normal GOP leanings, was jolted by the Democratic win. They blamed a 10-point decline in the Dow Jones average on the Carter election. The market cut those losses by almost half that amount by the time trading ended.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, the losing vice presidential candidate, returned to Washington on Wednesday. He said he doesn't believe the defeat of the Ford-Dole ticket is a sign the country is moving leftward politically. "The majority of the country is moderate to conservative," Dole told a news conference. "Southern pride prevailed, not liberalism."

When Carter takes office in January, it will put the Democrats in control of the two elected branches of the federal government for the first time since 1969, when Democrat Lyndon B. Johnson turned over the White House to Richard M. Nixon, a Republican whose party was the minority in Congress. The party lineup in the Senate remained 62 Democrats to 38 Republicans following Tuesday's elections, even though there was a muscously high turnover among senators. Seventeen new senators will take seats in January, eight Democrats and nine Republicans. Eight of the new faces will replace veterans who didn't run for re-election. But the other nine defeated incumbents.

In the House, Democrats may add as many as three seats to the 280 in 145 majority they held in the last Congress. Four House races are not decided. The Democrats hold a slim lead in three of those. In races decided so far, the lineup is 289 Democrats and 142 Republicans. The Democrats picked up one more governorship to bring their total to 37. There now are only 12 Republican governors and one independent.

But the Republicans won the gubernatorial race in the biggest state that elected a chief executive on Tuesday, James Thompson, a former prosecutor, won big in Illinois to give control of that state's administration back to the GOP after four years in Democratic hands. Washington State elected Dixy Lee Ray, a Democrat, governor. Miss Ray, a former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was an assistant secretary of state until she quit after a dispute with Henry Kissinger. She will be the nation's second woman governor. The other is Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut, also a Democrat.

Carter aides, discussing characteristics the public might expect in the new administration, said the Cabinet might be filled with "people you've probably never heard of." Hamilton Jordan, who was Carter's campaign manager, predicted that "there'll be a lot of new faces." Jack Watson, an Atlanta lawyer heading the Carter transition, said he thinks the White House staff will be smaller and less authoritarian than under Nixon or Ford.

"I think we'll see the White House staff operating in a staff capacity rather than a command role," Watson said. Charles Kirbo, a longtime Carter adviser, said he expects Carter to give appointees named to head agencies "a great deal of authority, letting them understand he expects them to manage whatever department or agency they take over. If they don't, he'll relieve them."

California Rocked By 60 Quakes

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A series of more than 60 earthquakes rocked a wide portion of Southern California today, but authorities said there were no reports of major damage.

The quakes began Wednesday night and continued through the predawn hours. The quakes were centered near Brawley, about 40 miles south of the Salton Sea in the sprawling agricultural area, according to Carl Johnson, a spokesman for the California Institute of Technology here.

Johnson said that one of the quakes registered 5.7 on the Richter scale, but the majority of them registered about 2.0 on the scale.

A reading of 2.0 is considered minor. Each step up on the scale represents a tenfold increase in ground motion and a 30-fold increase in the amount of energy released. A reading of 4.0 is considered a moderate earthquake.

Brawley police said they had received a flurry of calls Wednesday night when the quakes first hit. The only reported damage was about $200 in food products knocked from the shelves of a market.

At El Centro, about 25 miles south of Brawley, police dispatcher Kathy Walker said the biggest tremor hit while she was standing in the communications room.

"I didn't think it would ever stop," she said. "The walls are cement and they kept moving. The feeling was one of waving, rolling motion which just kept going, kept going."

Fuse Box Is Source Of Fire

Benton township firemen said a short circuited electrical fuse box in the furnace room at Better Building Products, Territorial road, Millbury, caused an estimated $2,500 fire damage, mainly to the ceiling and roof of the room.

Firemen said the 9:18 p.m. fire was confined to the room. Township police said a passerby, Richard Blocker, 260 Britain avenue, Benton Harbor, saw the flames and called firemen.

Rolfe's Gallery

ROLFE, Iowa (AP) — Camera in hand, Marion the Librarian has snapped her way through her Bicentennial project. Marion Gunderson, 57, who works at the Public Library here, has nearly achieved her goal of collecting snapshots of everyone who lived in the area during 1776. "I've gone through something like 65 rolls of black and white film and had all the pictures processed, and then with photos people have brought in, we must have between 1,100 and 1,200 faces," she said. "I've just wandered all over town with my camera, taking pictures of people at a carnival, at a quilting party, a Chamber of Commerce coffee — just about anything where people gather." Mrs. Gunderson said she got her inspiration from a similar project by a Rolfe druggist. In the 1920s he took pictures of the men living in the town at the time, and the picture albums are now stored at the library.

SMC Ends Year In Black For Tenth Straight Time

DOWAGIAC — The Southwestern Michigan college board of trustees last night accepted an annual audit showing a general fund balance of $40,000 for fiscal year 1975-76.

David Briegel, vice president for business affairs at SMC, said this morning that the audit showed total revenues of $2,319,998, and spending totaling $2,359,998, leaving a balance of $40,000.

Dr. Fred Mathews, board chairman, said trustees were proud SMC's budget ended in the black for the 10th year in a row. "The balanced budget was accomplished without any new taxes and with only a slight increase in tuition," he said.

In other areas, the board accepted the following gifts and grants: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jessup, Dowagiac, $100; William and Carolyn Livingston, Dowagiac, $100; Mr. and Mrs. John J. Nate, Dowagiac, $600; Dr. A. K. Warren, Cassopolis, $100; Art Springsteen's Sons, Inc., Dowagiac, $200; Wolverine Mutual Insurance Co., Dowagiac, $230; Schato Nursing Home, Dowagiac, $100; Dowagiac Lions Club, $200 and a gift of an eight-horsepower, vertical shaft engine, valued at $272, from Briggs and Stratton Corp., Milwaukee.

Three men were appointed directors of the SMC foundation for terms extending through June 30, 1978. They are Donald France, Marcellus; Harold Franklin, Dowagiac, and Charles King, Green Valley, Ariz.

It was announced that the foundation has voted to provide music scholarship support of $2,000 for 1977-78 toward the development of the SMC music program.

The board approved a resolution of commendation to the SMC Roadrunners cross country team for its sixth straight state and regional championship win at Jackson cently.

The board approved closing college offices on Friday, Nov. 26, during the Thanksgiving holiday.

FIGHT OUTSIDE BAR

Hartford Policeman Injured In Scuffle

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

HARTFORD — A Hartford police officer was injured early this morning as he attempted to break up a fight between five people outside a local bar. Police Chief Lee Spencer reported.

Spencer said Officer James Padgett complained of pains in the back, ribs and pelvic areas and was scheduled to undergo X-rays at Waterford Community hospital later today.

Spencer said Tonya Fuller, 21, Billie Johnson, 25, both of 202 West Main, Hartford, and Lizzandro Saenz, 23, 210 South Main, Hartford, were lodged in Van Buren county jail on charges of being drunk and disorderly. The chief said he will seek authorization from the prosecutor's office for additional charges.

Spencer said Ronald Willoughby, 26, 533 West Main, Hartford, and Lyle Fitzgerald, 25, route 2, Bangor, were charged with being disorderly persons by fighting but were not lodged in county jail.

The fight, according to the chief, started in the bar about 1:30 a.m. and continued outside. The cause remains under investigation, he said, but apparently pitted Willoughby and Fitzgerald against Miss Fuller, Saenz and Johnson.

Spencer said the fight resumed again after the suspects were taken to the city hall — police station next to the bar.

Padgett was punched a number of times, the chief said. He was aided in the arrest by Hartford Officer Kevin English, Judy Layman, a reserve Hartford officer and a Covent police officer who answered a Hartford call for assistance.

Korean Soldiers Take Own Lives

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Two South Korean soldiers with grudges against their officers deserted and invaded a hotel, shot an employee of the hotel to death and held 10 hostages for nearly four hours today before killing themselves with hand grenades, officials said.

The gunmen, armed with M16 rifles and about 10 hand grenades, released their hostages before they exploded two grenades about 9:45 a.m., police said.

Pol Say 'Story' Beat Esch

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Top state political leaders said Wednesday a Detroit News story about Democrat Donald Riegle's 1968 extramarital affair with an unpaid staffer cost Republican Marvin Esch the U.S. Senate race.

"When The Detroit News busted that story about Riegle's affair, that ended the campaign," said state Republican Chairman William McLaughlin.

"Marv had pulled within one point of Riegle when that story broke. It stopped him dead in his tracks. Riegle turned it (to his advantage)," McLaughlin said Wednesday.

He said Democrats drew votes from the story because they claimed Esch and the News, which had endorsed Esch, were conspiring to sabotage Riegle's campaign. Esch said repeatedly after the story was published he had nothing to do with it.

"Esch, ever got over being blamed for the story," McLaughlin said. He said Esch, a congressman from Ann Arbor, could have overcome the sympathy backlash for Riegle if he had "done a better and quicker job of disassociating himself from the story."

Riegle, 38, a congressman from Flint, received 53 per cent of the votes cast Tuesday with 99 per cent of the votes counted. Riegle will replace U.S. Sen. Philip Hart, who is retiring.

State Democratic Chairman Morley Winograd said the publication of the News story Oct. 17 quickly drew public attention to what had been a dull campaign.

"Voters started paying attention when the story broke," Winograd said Wednesday. "When they took a closer look, they didn't like what they saw. They saw a person unjustly wounded and voted for him."

Proposals D, to replace the flat-rate state income tax with a graduated tax, was losing by a margin of 78 per cent to 22 per cent with 56 per cent tabulation.

Doug Ross, director of the Michigan Citizens Lobby, which promoted Proposal D, said there was "no question" another attempt would be made despite the defeat — the third for the graduated income tax.

"The failing was ours in not explaining it effectively enough," he said.

DETROIT VOTE DOOMS HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit schools will not have high school sports programs after this fall because voters defeated a five-mill school tax request Tuesday, officials said Wednesday.

Other programs which will not be restored, some of them cut several months ago after voters rejected a similar proposal, include reduced class hours for some students and limitations on the elective courses for high school students.

Officials said Wednesday they had no plans to have another millage vote.

Although the millage came closer to passing than any request since 1966, voters rejected it by 1,931 votes, or a half-percent of the 369,915 votes cast.

Unofficial final returns showed 183,992 votes for the millage hike and 185,923 votes against it.

School officials said the millage if passed would have brought in about $37 million. They said they would have used the money to restore budget cuts made since 1971, including the latest round.

"We're right back where we were on July 1 when Dr. Arthur Jefferson (school superintendent) told us there would be no sports," said Roy Allen, assistant barely above a whisper, Ford told reporters at the White House that in the 78 days until Carter's inauguration on Jan. 20 "there's a lot of work to do and we're going to keep on doing it."

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford plans to continue pursuing an arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union as well as peace initiatives in the Middle East and Southern Africa. On domestic policy, Nessen noted that the outgoing president still has responsibility for submitting a proposal for a fiscal 1978 budget to Congress shortly after it convenes in January.

After that, Ford, who spent 25 years in Congress before being elevated to the White House after the resignation of Richard Nixon, has no definite plans, Nessen said. "He's talked of an interest in teaching political science at a university," Nessen said.

Ford plans to leave Sunday for a week-long vacation in Palm Springs, Calif. Mondale and Carter have talked on the telephone but have not seen each other since the balloting.

Mondale was in Minneapolis on Wednesday, where he said the efforts toward a government transition were well underway. He said he planned on having a "significant role" in Carter's administration. After spending the day relaxing with his family, the vice president-elect met with reporters and said he hoped to work effectively with the Senate, which will be made up largely of fellow Democrats.

"The vice president does not run the Senate," he said. "I'm under no illusions about that. But a vice president can work effectively with Congress." There was one quick negative reaction to Carter's election. Wall Street analysts said the stock market, with its normal GOP leanings, was jolted by the Democratic win. They blamed a 16-point decline in the Dow Jones average on the Carter election. The market cut those losses by almost half that amount by the time trading ended.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, the losing vice presidential candidate, returned to Washington on Wednesday. He said he doesn't believe the defeat of the Ford-Dole ticket is a sign the country is moving leftward politically. "The majority of the country is moderate to conservative," Dole told a news conference. "Southern pride prevailed, not liberalism."

When Carter takes office in January, it will put the Democrats in control of the two elected branches of the federal government for the first time since 1969, when Democrat Lyndon B. Johnson turned over the White House to Richard M. Nixon, a Republican whose party was the minority in Congress. The party lineup in the Senate remained 62 Democrats to 38 Republicans following Tuesday's elections, even though there was an unusually high turnover among senators. Seventeen new senators will take seats in January, eight Democrats and nine Republicans. Eight of the new faces will replace veterans who didn't run for re-election. But the other nine defeated incumbents.

In the House, Democrats may add as many as three seats to the 290 to 145 majority they held in the last Congress. Four House races are not decided. The Democrats hold a slim lead in three of those. In races decided so far, the lineup is 289 Democrats and 142 Republicans. The Democrats picked up one more governorship to bring their total to 37. There now are only 12 Republican governors and one independent.

But the Republicans won the gubernatorial race in the biggest state that elected a chief executive on Tuesday. James Thompson, a former prosecutor, won big in Illinois to give control of that state's administration back to the GOP after four years in Democratic hands. Washington State elected Dixy Lee Ray, a Democrat, governor. Miss Ray, a former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, was an assistant secretary of state until she quit after a dispute with Henry Kissinger. She will be the nation's second woman governor. The other is Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut, also a Democrat.

Carter aides, discussing characteristics the public might expect in the new administration, said the Cabinet might be filled with "people you've probably never heard of." Hamilton Jordan, who was Carter's campaign manager, predicted that "there'll be a lot of new faces." Jack Watson, an Atlanta lawyer heading the Carter transition, said he thinks the White House staff will be smaller and less authoritarian than under Nixon or Ford.

"I think we'll see the White House staff operating in a staff capacity rather than a command role," Watson said. Charles Kirbo, a longtime Carter adviser, said he expects Carter to give appointees named to head agencies "a great deal of authority, letting them understand he expects them to manage whatever department or agency they take over. If they don't, he'll relieve them."

FIGHT OUTSIDE BAR

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

HARTFORD — A Hartford police officer was injured early this morning as he attempted to break up a fight between five people outside a local bar, Police Chief Lee Spencer reported.

Spencer said Officer James Padgett complained of pains in the back, ribs and pelvic areas and was scheduled to undergo X-rays at Watervliet Community hospital later today.

Spencer said Tonya Fuller, 21, Billie Johnson, 25, both of 202 West Main, Hartford, and Lizardo Saenz, 23, 210 South Mary, Hartford, were lodged in Van Buren county jail on charges of being drunk and disorderly. The chief said he will seek authorization from the prosecutor's office for additional charges.

Spencer said Ronald Willoughby, 26, 533 West Main, Hartford, and Lyle Fitzgerald, 25, route 2, Bangor, were charged with being disorderly persons by fighting but were not lodged in county jail.

The fight, according to the chief, started in the bar about 1:30 a.m. and continued outside. The cause remains under investigation, he said, but apparently pitted Willoughby and Fitzgerald against Miss Fuller, Saenz and Johnson.

Spencer said the fight resumed again after the suspects were taken to the city hall police station next to the bar.

Padgett was punched a number of times, the chief said. He was aided in the arrest by Hartford Officer Kevin English, Judy Laymon, a reserve Hartford officer and a Covert police officer who answered a Hartford call for assistance.

The gunmen, armed with M16 rifles and about 10 hand grenades, released their hostages before they exploded two grenades about 9:45 a.m., police said.

California Rocked By 60 Quakes

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A series of more than 60 earthquakes rocked a wide portion of Southern California today, but authorities said there were no reports of major damage.

The quakes began Wednesday night and continued through the predawn hours. The quakes were centered near Brawley, about 40 miles south of the Salton Sea in the sprawling agricultural area, according to Carl Johnson, a spokesman for the seismology laboratory at the California Institute of Technology here.

Johnson said that one of the quakes registered 5.7 on the Richter scale, but the majority of them registered about 2.0 on the scale.

A reading of 2.0 is considered minor. Each step up on the scale represents a tenfold increase in ground motion and a 30-fold increase in the amount of energy released. A reading of 4.0 is considered a moderate earthquake.

Brawley police said they had received a flurry of calls Wednesday night when the quakes first hit. The only reported damage was about $200 in food products knocked from the shelves of a market.

At El Centro, about 25 miles south of Brawley, police dispatcher Kathy Walker said the biggest tremor hit while she was standing in the communications room.

Pols Say 'Story' Beat Esch

Top state political leaders said Wednesday a Detroit News story about Democrat Donald Riegle's 1969 extramarital affair with an unpaid staffer cost Republican Marvin Esch the U.S. Senate race.

"When The Detroit News busted that story about Riegle's affair, that ended the campaign," said state Republican Chairman William McLaughlin.

"Marv had pulled within one point of Riegle when that story broke. It stopped him dead in his tracks. Riegle turned it (to his advantage)," McLaughlin said Wednesday.

He said Democrats drew votes from the story because they claimed Esch and the News, which had endorsed Esch, were conspiring to sabotage Riegle's campaign. Esch said repeatedly after the story was published he had nothing to do with it.

"Esch, ever got over being blamed for the story," McLaughlin said. He said Esch, a congressman from Ann Arbor, could have overcome the sympathy backlash for Riegle if he had "done a better and quicker job of disassociating himself from the story."

Riegle, 38, a congressman from Flint, received 53 per cent of the votes cast Tuesday with 99 per cent of the votes counted. Riegle will replace U.S. Sen. Philip Hart, who is retiring.

State Democratic Chairman Morley Winograd said the publication of the News story Oct. 17 quickly drew public attention to what had been a dull campaign.

"Voters started paying attention when the story broke," Winograd said Wednesday. "When they took a closer look, they didn't like what they saw. They saw a person unjustly wounded and voted for him."

Berrien Farm Bureau Calls For Repeal Of OSHA

By JOHN FENNELL
Staff Writer

Berrien county Farm Bureau members last night pledged to work toward the goal of repealing the Occupational Act, Safety and Health as well as working toward national agricultural bargaining legislation.

The action came as part of a number of resolutions passed by Berrien county Farm Bureau members at their annual meeting held Wednesday night at the Youth Memorial building, Berrien Springs.

More than 300 people were on hand as the resolution to work toward repealing OSHA passed unanimously. Members have previously passed resolutions opposing OSHA actions but have never come out officially with a goal toward repeal of the act.

The resolution seeking national bargaining legislation also passed unanimously and said that if a society forces restrictions, which upon farmers that are a financial burden, then farmers must have some tool to recover the added costs. That tool, the resolution said, should be national bargaining legislation.

Members also passed resolutions to work toward repealing a federal law that bans children under 12 years old from working in the fields with their parents and went on record opposing the recent single business tax.

Members also passed a resolution favoring the continuation of the present farm program under the Agricultural and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, or one that would let the farmer produce and market his commodity on the basis of supply and demand.

Another resolution calling for federal and state agencies to be held accountable for their own activities by being subject to reviews periodically also passed.

Following the meeting Alan Prillwitz was re-elected as president of the county Farm Bureau, but directors delayed the election of vice president and third member of the executive committee until a board meeting later this month.

Five new board members were elected as were 14 delegates to the Farm Bureau state convention. The directors and their posts are Ed Sills, Young Farmer; Louise Prillwitz, Women's Representative; Larry Culby, District 6 representative; Kirt Weber, Director at Large; and John Chestnut, District 1 representative.

William J. Kuhfuss of Illinois, former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the guest speaker for the evening, told the group that he is concerned about the election of Jimmy Carter as president and how he stands on critical issues affecting farmers.

Kuhfuss, who was defeated in his third bid for federation president this year, said farmers must do a better job of producing. He said what has made this country the best producer is the motivation of our people, our resources, our educational system and extension services, which take the knowledge gained through research and distribute it to farmers all over the country.

Kuhfuss said he sees in American a future of great promise if we don't head down the same paths as England, which, he said, is in a terrible dilemma both socially and economically.

Grant Bid Gets Final Approval

HARTFORD — The Hartford township board last night gave final approval to an application for federal funds to build a township hall and a utilities building.

The application will be for $125,386 through the Public Works Employment act of 1976. The board is seeking 100 per cent funding for the construction.

Action on the application came at a special township board meeting where the board listed details of planned construction expenses as $2,000 for administration and application for funds; for architectural and inspection, $19,470; for construction labor, $52,961; construction material, $59,721; and $5,634 for a contingency fund.

He Suffered A Painful Loss

MINERAL WELLS, Tex. (AP) — Tony Paciello of Mineral Wells bet that President Ford would beat Jimmy Carter and has sore legs as a result.

Paciello's loss meant he had to push the winner, Reno Pance, the 18 miles from Mineral Wells to Weatherford in a wheelbarrow.

The board on Oct. 20 signed contracts with Leslie Cripps & Associates for preparation of the fund application, and with Wightman & Associates of St. Joseph for architectural and engineering fees.

Board officials said the proposed township hall will be about 72 by 36 feet (2,600 square feet) and the utility building will be about 30 by 48 feet (1,440 square feet).

The township hall will front on CR-687, the highway that leads from the city to I-94, and will have 25 parking spaces and its own sewage and water systems, according to the preliminary construction plans. The utility building is to be next to it.

The township has applied for federal funds because township voters in August rejected a proposed tax to finance construction of the buildings.

Village Clerk Janet Helsley said a decision on the apartment complex is expected at the council's next monthly meeting. She said the developer's plans are available for inspection by village residents at the village hall.

Berrien Farm Bureau Calls For Repeal Of OSHA

By JOHN FENNEL
Staff Writer

Berrien county Farm Bureau members last night pledged to work toward the goal of repealing the Occupational Act, Safety and Health as well as working toward national agricultural bargaining legislation.

The action came as part of a number of resolutions passed by Berrien county Farm Bureau members at their annual meeting held Wednesday night at the Youth Memorial building, Berrien Springs. More than 300 people were on hand as the resolution to work toward repealing OSHA passed unanimously. Members have previously passed resolutions opposing OSHA actions but have never come out officially with a goal toward repeal of the act.

Seaker

The resolution seeking national bargaining legislation also passed unanimously and said that if a society forces restrictions, which upon farmers that are a financial burden, then farmers must have some tool to recover the added costs. That tool, the resolution said, should be national bargaining legislation.

Members also passed resolutions to work toward repealing a federal law that bans children under 12 years old from working in the fields with their parents and went on record opposing the recent single business tax.

Members also passed a resolution favoring the continuation of the present farm program under the Agricultural and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, or one that would let the farmer produce and market his commodity on the basis of supply and demand.

Another resolution calling for federal and state agencies to be held accountable for their own activities by being subject to reviews periodically also passed.

Following the meeting Alan Prillwitz was re-elected as president of the county Farm Bureau, but directors delayed the election of vice president and third member of the executive committee until a board meeting later this month.

Five new board members were elected as were 14 delegates to the Farm Bureau state convention. The directors and their posts are Ed Sills, Young Farmer; Louise Prillwitz, Women's Representative; Larry Culby, District 6 representative; Kirt Weber, Director at Large; and John Chestnut, District 1 representative.

William J. Kuhfuss of Illinois, former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the guest speaker for the evening, told the group that he is concerned about the election of Jimmy Carter as president and how he stands on critical issues affecting farmers. Kuhfuss, who was defeated in his third bid for federation president this year, said farmers must do a better job of producing. He said what has made this country the best producer is the motivation of our people, our resources, our educational system and extension services, which take the knowledge gained through research and distribute it to farmers all over the country.

U.S. Foreign Policy Will Stagnate Until January 20

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's failure to win election means key foreign policy issues that languished under the pressure of vote gathering now will stagnate during the remaining 12 weeks of Ford's lame-duck administration.

U.S. officials said the goal of Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will be to hold things together while working to create an impression that business will go on as usual.

But there will be no new initiatives taken and no new commitments made, the officials said, not only because Jimmy Carter would object, but because few if any foreign governments will be willing to deal on crucial matters with an administration on its way out. Kissinger himself is expected to stay in office until Carter takes over next Jan. 20, but many other State Department officials and ambassadors probably will be leaving.

Already Richard M. Helms, the former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has resigned as ambassador to Iran. One key Kissinger aide who has lobbied for the secretary since 1969 is preparing to leave soon, first to take a long vacation and then to seek outside employment.

"This will be the time of the 'actors,'" said one State Department source, meaning that as high-level officials leave, they will be replaced by "acting" officials.

Mentioned prominently among those retiring early or leaving the Foreign Service are Deputy Secretary Charles Robinson, Counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt, Under Secretary for Economic Affairs William D. Rogers and director of Policy Planning Winston Lord.

The major casualties by Ford and Kissinger's own views will be their hopes for a new U.S.-Soviet treaty limiting offensive nuclear weapons and, on a wider plane, détente with Russia.

Because of charges by conservative Republicans as well as Carter that Kissinger was not strong enough with the Russians, the Ford administration has been dormant since last spring in negotiating a second phase strategic arms limitation treaty.

Kissinger also canceled meetings last summer of U.S.-Soviet commissions on trade and other matters when Ford was under strong challenge for the Republican nomination by conservative Ronald Reagan, who charged the administration with being soft on Moscow.

Another important issue on which the administration has been marking time is the Middle East. The administration was reluctant to move in such a touchy area pending the election.

For example, Kissinger chose not to respond to a Soviet move in September indicating interest in an American idea to convene a preliminary conference involving Israel and Arab nations to prepare for a full-fledged Geneva peace conference.

He said privately that no answer would be given until after Nov. 2. Now that response will be further delayed.

U.S. officials laughed when asked if negotiations on a new Panama Canal treaty would be finished before Ford leaves. The canal issue would have been sensitive even if Ford had won, they said.

In all these areas: SALT, détente, the Middle East and Panama, Carter has indicated that he has his own ideas on how to proceed, even if he plans no major policy changes.

To reinforce his determination to keep Kissinger from starting anything new in major areas, sources familiar with Carter's foreign policy thinking say the president-elect will name a transition team to work with the State Department.

This team, as yet unnamed, will expect to be closely advised, even involved, in the day-to-day operations of the department.

Kissinger and his virtuoso style of running foreign policy also will be curtailed: no more shuttles or other spectacular exercises.

The only definite overseas travel on his agenda is the North Atlantic Treaty organization foreign ministers meeting in Brussels early next month.

The Rhodesian issue is one area Kissinger might move on with some latitude. U.S. involvement is in motion already, and Carter has shown no disapproval of Kissinger's efforts to arrange a peaceful transfer of power from the white minority regime to a black government.

The Ford defeat has complicated Kissinger's ability, because the black governments in Southern Africa that have supported him might back away since he has lost power.

On the other hand, the Rhodesian whites might be more amenable to Kissinger's efforts since Carter is expected to show even less sympathy for the white position.

Business as usual is expected in the upcoming U.S.-Vietnamese talks on improving relations. Both Republicans and Democrats insist that no movement on over-all relations will be made unless Hanoi gives a full accounting of the 899 Americans still listed as missing in action from the Vietnamese war.

But once this is done, if it ever is, most U.S. officials doubt Kissinger would continue on the broader questions on his own. It is even more doubtful that the Vietnamese would, since there are signs they expect better responses from a Democratic administration. Of course, events could change all this and not permit Ford, Kissinger and Carter to conduct a passive foreign policy until late January.

Canadian Workers Striking

TORONTO (AP) — Negotiations were scheduled to resume today after 14,000 United Auto Workers at Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. walked out as the Wednesday strike deadline passed without a new agreement.

The walkout was the second major UAW strike in the 1976 round of contract talks with the auto industry.

A contract reached between the Ford Motor Co. and the UAW in the United States after a month-long walkout this fall set the pattern for a Canadian wage settlement. Unresolved issues in Canada include non-monetary clauses, said Ford spokesman Tony Fredo.

A spokesman at Ford headquarters in Dearborn, Mich., said a brief Canadian impact would have no impact on U.S. operations. However, a lengthy strike could begin to hurt U.S. output and sales, he said.

Workers at two assembly plants in Oakville, Ont., and one at Talbotville, Ont., jumped the strike deadline and walked off their jobs Tuesday. Other plants at Windsor, Niagara Falls and Brampton, Ont., operated normally earlier in the day, but workers walked out when the deadline passed.

About 10 per cent of Ford cars sold in the United States are produced in Canada. Ford also has several key parts plants in Ontario which feed U.S. assembly facilities.

In Detroit, meanwhile, bargainers for the UAW and Chrysler Corp. meet until late Wednesday in hopes of fashioning a new contract and averting a strike set for 6 p.m. Friday by 118,000 U.S. and Canadian workers.

New Governors Take Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days after the election, there already is talk of national prominence for two of the nation's new governors, Democrat John D. "Jay" Rockefeller IV of West Virginia and Republican James R. Thompson of Illinois.

Both swept into office Tuesday with huge record-setting electoral margins, drawing attention to themselves as fresh faces likely to be heard from again outside their states.

Thompson, for one, has acknowledged a lifelong ambition for the presidency. Nicknamed "Big Jim" because of his 6-foot-6-inch frame, Thompson beat Democratic machine candidate Michael J. Howlett by 1.3 million votes.

Asked about his White House ambitions Wednesday, Thompson recalled his career as a tough federal prosecutor who brought more than 200 public officials to trial on corruption charges, a record that propelled him to the governorship.

"I'm just going to put talk of national leadership for a national role ... behind me, until I've got a handle on my job," he said. "The No. 1 lesson I've learned is you don't go anywhere else until you first have done a good job where you are."

Thompson declared that he plans to seek a second term in 1978, but he did nothing to discourage any speculation about his potential as an eventual presidential aspirant. But there are potential hazards, including serious budget problems and a possible tax increase, both issues that must be negotiated with a Democratically-controlled state legislature.

In West Virginia, Rockefeller, nephew of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, outspent his opponent 10 to 1, using mostly his own funds, to reach the governor's mansion on the second try.

State political observers have no doubt that one day Rockefeller will move to seek a national constituency, but for now Rockefeller says he has plans only to run for re-election in four years.

Democratic U.S. Sen. Jennings Randolph is 78 and expected to retire when his term expires in 1978, but a Rockefeller aide said Wednesday the governor-elect has no interest in seeking that seat.

But the aide noted that "a lot of people think he (Rockefeller) wants to be president, but for now the only plan is to run again for governor." The aide declined to rule out the possibility that Rockefeller would eventually go for the big prize.

Thompson is 40 and Rockefeller 39, allowing both men ample time to run their states for two elected terms while building a political base for a run at the presidency.

U.S. Foreign Policy Will Stagnate Until January 20

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's failure to win election means key foreign policy issues that languished under the pressure of vote gathering now will stagnate during the remaining 12 weeks of Ford's lame-duck administration.

U.S. officials said the goal of Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will be to hold things together while working to create an impression that business will go on as usual.

But there will be no new initiatives taken and no new commitments made, the officials said, not only because Jimmy Carter would object, but because few if any foreign governments will be willing to deal on crucial matters with an administration on its way out. Kissinger himself is expected to stay in office until Carter takes over next Jan. 20, but many other State Department officials and ambassadors probably will be leaving.

Already Richard M. Helms, the former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, has resigned as ambassador to Iran. One key Kissinger aide who has labored for the secretary since 1969 is preparing to leave soon, first to take a long vacation and then to seek outside employment.

"This will be the time of the actors," said one State Department source, meaning that as high-level officials leave, they will be replaced by "acting" officials.

Mentioned prominently among those retiring early or leaving the Foreign Service are Deputy Secretary Charles Robinson, Counsellor Helmut Sonnenfeldt, Under Secretary for Economic Affairs William D. Rogers and director of Policy Planning Winston Lord.

The major casualties by Ford's and Kissinger's own views will be their hopes for a new U.S.-Soviet treaty limiting offensive nuclear weapons and, on a wider plane, detente with Russia.

Because of charges by conservative Republicans as well as Carter that Kissinger was not strong enough with the Russians, the Ford administration has been dormant since last spring in negotiating a second phase strategic arms limitation treaty.

Kissinger also canceled meetings last summer of U.S.-Soviet commissions on trade and other matters when Ford was under strong challenge for the Republican nomination by conservative Ronald Reagan, who charged the administration with being soft on Moscow.

Another important issue on which the administration has been marking time is the Middle East. The administration was reluctant to move in such a touchy area pending the election.

For example, Kissinger chose not to respond to a Soviet move in September indicating interest in an American idea to convene a preliminary conference involving Israel and Arab nations to prepare for a full-fledged Geneva peace conference.

He said privately that no answer would be given until after Nov. 2. Now that response will be further delayed.

U.S. officials laughed when asked if negotiations on a new Panama Canal treaty would be finished before Ford leaves. The canal issue would have been sensitive even if Ford had won, they said.

In all these areas: SALT, detente, the Middle East and Panama, Carter has indicated that he has his own ideas on how to proceed, even if he plans no major policy changes.

To reinforce his determination to keep Kissinger from starting anything new in major area, sources familiar with Carter's foreign policy thinking say the president-elect will name a transition team to work with the State Department.

This team, as yet unnamed, will expect to be closely advised, even involved, in the day-to-day operations of the department.

Kissinger and his virtuoso style of running foreign policy also will be curtailed; no more shuttles or other spectacular exercises.

The only definite overseas travel on his agenda is the North Atlantic Treaty organization foreign ministers meeting in Brussels early next month.

The Rhodesian issue is one area Kissinger might move on with some latitude. U.S. involvement is in motion already, and Carter has shown no disapproval of Kissinger's efforts to arrange a peaceful transfer of power from the white minority regime to a black government.

The Ford defeat has complicated Kissinger's ability, because the black governments in Southern Africa that have supported him might back away since he has lost power.

On the other hand, the Rhodesian whites might be more amenable to Kissinger's efforts since Carter is expected to show even less sympathy for the white position.

Business as usual is expected in the upcoming U.S.-Vietnamese talks on improving relations. Both Republicans and Democrats insist that no movement on over-all relations will be made unless Hanoi gives a full accounting of the 800 Americans still listed as missing in action from the Vietnamese war.

But once this is done, if it ever is, most U.S. officials doubt Kissinger would continue on his own.

It is even more doubtful that the Vietnamese would, since there are signs they expect better responses from a Democratic administration.

Of course, events could change all this and not permit Ford, Kissinger and Carter to conduct a passive foreign policy until late January.

Canadian Workers Striking

TORONTO (AP) — Negotiations were scheduled to resume today after 14,000 United Auto Workers at Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. walked out as the Wednesday strike deadline passed without a new agreement.

The walkout was the second major UAW strike in the 1976 round of contract talks with the auto industry.

A contract reached between the Ford Motor Co. and the UAW in the United States after a month-long walkout this fall set the pattern for a Canadian wage settlement. Unresolved issues in Canada include non-monetary clauses, said Ford spokesman Tony Fredo.

A spokesman at Ford headquarters in Dearborn, Mich., said a brief Canadian walkout would have no impact on U.S. operations. However, a lengthy strike could begin to hurt U.S. output and sales, he said.

Workers at two assembly plants in Oakville, Ont., and one at Talbotville, Ont., jumped the strike deadline and walked off their jobs Tuesday. Other plants at Windsor, Niagara Falls and Brampton, Ont., operated normally earlier in the day, but workers walked out when the deadline passed.

About 10 per cent of Ford cars sold in the United States are produced in Canada. Ford also has several key parts plants in Ontario which feed U.S. assembly facilities.

In Detroit, meanwhile, bargainers for the UAW and Chrysler Corp. meet until late Wednesday in hopes of fashioning a new contract and averting a strike set for 6 p.m. Friday by 118,000 U.S. and Canadian workers.

New Governors Take Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days after the election, there already is talk of national prominence for two of the nation's new governors, Democrat John D. "Jay" Rockefeller IV of West Virginia and Republican James R. Thompson of Illinois.

Both swept into office Tuesday with huge record-setting electoral margins, drawing attention to themselves as fresh faces likely to be heard from again outside their states.

Thompson, for one, has acknowledged a lifelong ambition for the presidency. Nicknamed "Big Jim" because of his 6-foot-6 inch frame, Thompson beat Democratic machine candidate Michael J. Howlett by 1.3 million votes.

Asked about his White House ambitions Wednesday, Thompson recalled his career as a tough federal prosecutor who brought more than 200 public officials to trial on corruption charges, a record that propelled him to the governorship.

"I'm just going to put talk of national leadership for a national role ... behind me, until I've got a handle on my job," he said. "The No. 1 lesson I've learned is you don't go anywhere else until you first have done a good job where you are."

Thompson declared that he plans to seek a second term in 1978, but he did nothing to discourage any speculation about his potential as an eventual presidential aspirant. But there are potential hazards, including serious budget problems and a possible tax increase, both issues that must be negotiated with a Democratically-controlled state legislature.

In West Virginia, Rockefeller, nephew of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, outspent his opponent 10 to 1, using mostly his own funds, to reach the governor's mansion on the second try.

State political observers have no doubt that one day Rockefeller will move to seek a national constituency, but for now Rockefeller says he has plans only to run for re-election in four years.

Democratic U.S. Sen. Jennings Randolph is 76 and expected to retire when his term expires in 1978, but a Rockefeller aide said Wednesday the governor-elect has no interest in seeking that seat.

But the aide noted that "a lot of people think he (Rockefeller) wants to be president, but for now the only plan is to run again for governor." The aide declined to rule out the possibility that Rockefeller would eventually go for the big prize.

Thompson is 40 and Rockefeller 39, allowing both men ample time to run their states for two elected terms while building a political base for a run on the presidency.

Hawaii Vote Could Have Turned Tide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Neither President Ford nor President-elect Jimmy Carter bothered to campaign in Hawaii. But as it turned out, their battle was close enough so that a few thousand votes in the islands might have given the election to Ford.

As the returns continued trickling in Wednesday, Carter held a substantial margin in the national popular vote, 40,276,040 to 38,532,630. In percentages, Carter had 51 to Ford's 48. But in the electoral college, it was much closer.

Carter's victories in 22 states, including Hawaii, won him 272 electoral votes, two more than the 270 needed for an absolute majority.

His margin of victory in Hawaii was 7,300 votes. If Hawaii's four electoral votes had swung to Ford, Carter would have been stopped two short of a majority. The nation would now be agonizing over the contents of some absentee ballots in Oregon and Ohio.

Oregon and Ohio are so close that no winners have been declared as of early today. In Oregon, Ford leads Carter for the six electoral votes by 485,305 to 484,643, or a margin of 662 votes. The final results may be known by the end of the week, when absentee ballots are tallied.

Ohio's 25 electoral votes are leaning toward Carter. He has 1,980,381 popular votes to 1,901,881 for Ford. But those results could change in the final canvass, which will not be held for two weeks.

Although the elections were equally close in other states, many states count their absentee ballots before the election, so the final results are known sooner.

Ford counted several finger-nail victories in his list of 26 states and 235 electoral votes. He won by 130,000 votes out of 7.5 million cast in California; by 13,000 of 1.25 million cast in Iowa; by 3,000 of 460,000 cast in Maine; by 57,000 of 2.9 million cast in New Jersey; by 5,000 of 300,000 cast in South Dakota.

Some of Carter's close victories, aside from Hawaii, were in Wisconsin, 34,000 out of 2 million cast; and Mississippi, 12,000 of 735,000 cast.

The election turnout was either high or low, depending on the statistics used. About 79.4 million voted, the highest figure ever. In 1972, the turnout was 77.6 million; in 1968 it was 73 million; and in 1964, it was 70 million.

As a percentage of the voting age population, however, the turnout was low, continuing a decline that began in 1964.

Only about 53 per cent of the voting age population went to the polls, compared with the record high 62.8 per cent which voted in 1960. The figure dropped to 36 per cent by 1972.

The South has bucked the turnout trend since 1965, primarily because of the enfranchisement of blacks. Turnouts which once averaged 30-40 per cent have increased to about 50 per cent in this year's election.

"I feel that alienation, at least outside of the South, is continuing. In long-range terms, the only thing that will engage the people will be sound policies and a group of leaders that are for them," said one expert, Curtis Gans of the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

HOPING FOR OLD DAYS: Al Packman pulls lever on model slot machine he sells on boardwalk at Atlantic City, N.J., Wednesday. He says he hopes for return of business "like in the old days." ## 'The Greek' Rates Atlantic City Gambling Success As 'No Cinch'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — This fading resort city, permitted by state voters to stake its future on casino gambling, is celebrating as if it had already hit the jackpot. But oddsmaker Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder rates the chances of financial success as "no cinch."

On Tuesday, New Jersey voters approved a constitutional amendment making Atlantic City's home of the famous Boardwalk and the Miss America Pageant, the nation's only area outside Nevada to allow casino gaming.

Snyder sounded one of several notes of caution as city residents gave a chorus of hurrahs. He predicted that gambling would spread as other areas try to cash in, too — and he warned that running a gambling house is no sure thing unless you know what you're doing.

Meanwhile, New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne said he considers careful supervision of gambling more important than setting it up quickly. Promoters said it would be at least a year before gambling starts. And a prominent banker warned of a wave of speculation on property.

Caution was hardly the general mood, however, as hotels threw parties here and bars served up free drinks.

"I foresee Atlantic City once again becoming the greatest seashore resort in the world," said Mayor Joseph Lazarow.

"We're going to rebuild this town," vowed John Rich, president of a bricklayers union, many of whose members have been unemployed. "The skyline will change dramatically," predicted lawyer-bunker James Cooper.

Jimmy "The Greek," interviewed in New York, saw it differently.

"Now that the rolling stone has been let go," Snyder said, "I'm just wondering how many other states are going to pick it up."

"Pandora's door is open. ... What's going to stop the places up in the Catskills (a resort area just north of New York City) from doing it?"

Atlantic City hopes to capitalize on the gambling market among tens of millions of people who live on the East Coast and are unwilling to go to Nevada.

Atlantic City does offer some advantages, Snyder said, such as "the community" and the population. Unlike Las Vegas promoters, he said, operators here won't have to spend money luring people to an area out of their way.

But he pointed to New York City, 100 miles north of here, as an area of potential competition. On the day the amendment was approved here, voters in New York approved a more limited measure allowing religious and philanthropic groups to raise money with so-called "Las Vegas nights."

"Everybody and his brother is going to be running a Las Vegas night," Snyder predicted. "They're going to have to open schools for gambling."

UTAH DEATH ROW INMATE Murderer Wants To Die

By BILL BEECHAM
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Mark Gilmore, a convicted murderer scheduled to face a firing squad on Nov. 13, has tried to fire his lawyers to keep them from appealing the execution.

It would be the first execution in the United States since June 1967 and the first execution by firing squad since 1900.

Craig Snyder, one of two court-appointed defense attorneys, said Wednesday that he would ask the court to appoint new counsel for Gilmore, but that he planned to go ahead with the motion for a stay of execution.

"There is a question, and a substantial one, as to whether he has the right personally to die on the 15th or at any time that might be set," Snyder said. Appeal of a death sentence is not mandatory in Utah.

Snyder said he and Public

Defender Michael Espin had been notified by the 35-year-old Gilmore that he no longer wanted them to represent him. But Snyder said he questioned whether Gilmore was capable of deciding what was best because of the pressures he is under.

Meanwhile, Samuel Smith, warden of the Utah State Prison, has asked the attorney general's office whether he should start recruiting a five-man firing squad.

On Monday, Gilmore, who has spent 18 years in state and federal prisons, told District Judge J. Robert Bullock that he wanted to go through with the scheduled execution "because I don't want to spend the rest of my life in jail."

"You sentenced me to die. Unless it's a joke or something, I want to go ahead and do it," Gilmore was sentenced to death in October by a jury that convicted him of killing a Provo motel clerk during a holdup last summer. The state gives the condemned a choice of death by firing squad or hanging. Gilmore said he preferred to be shot.

Bullock ordered Gilmore to undergo a psychiatric evaluation, including a determination of his state of mind and factors that might have made him decide not to appeal.

Gilmore was a parolee when he was arrested in July and charged with killing the clerk and another man in the Provo area. He is still scheduled to be tried for the second slaying.

The last legal execution in the United States was in Colorado on June 2, 1967, Utah's last execution was in 1960, when James W. Rodgers died before a firing squad for killing a fellow inmate in San Juan County.

Utah is one of many states that passed new capital punishment laws after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the death penalty was unconstitutional as it was generally being applied. The high court earlier this year upheld the constitutionality of some new state laws, and state officials have said they believe Utah's law meets court standards.

Hawaii Vote Could Have Turned Tide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Neither President Ford nor President-elect Jimmy Carter bothered to campaign in Hawaii. But as it turned out, their battle was close enough so that a few thousand votes in the islands might have given the election to Ford.

As the returns continued trickling in Wednesday, Carter held a substantial margin in the national popular vote, 40,276,040 to 38,532,630. In percentages, Carter had 51 to Ford's 48. But in the electoral college, it was much closer.

Carter's victories in 22 states, including Hawaii, won him 272 electoral votes, two more than the 270 needed for an absolute majority.

His margin of victory in Hawaii was 7,300 votes. If Hawaii's four electoral votes had swung to Ford, Carter would have been stopped two short of a majority. The nation would now be agonizing over the contents of some absentee ballots in Oregon and Ohio.

Oregon and Ohio are so close that no winners have been declared as of early today. In Oregon, Ford leads Carter for the six electoral votes by 485,305 to 484,643, or a margin of 662 votes. The final results may be known by the end of the week, when absentee ballots are tallied.

Ohio's 25 electoral votes are leaning toward Carter. He has 1,999,481 popular votes to 1,991,881 for Ford. But those results could change in the final canvass, which will not be held for two weeks.

Although the elections were equally close in other states, many states count their absentee ballots before the election, so the final results are known sooner.

Ford counted several finger-nail victories in his list of 26 states and 235 electoral votes. He won by 130,000 votes out of 7.5 million cast in California; by 13,000 of 1.25 million cast in Iowa; by 3,000 of 460,000 cast in Maine; by 57,000 of 2.9 million cast in New Jersey; by 5,000 of 300,000 cast in South Dakota.

Some of Carter's close victories, aside from Hawaii, were in Wisconsin, 34,000 out of 2 million cast; and Mississippi, 12,000 of 735,000 cast.

The election turnout was either high or low, depending on the statistics used. About 79.4 million voted, the highest figure ever. In 1972, the turnout was 77.6 million; in 1968 it was 73 million; and in 1964, it was 70 million.

As a percentage of the voting age population, however, the turnout was low, continuing a decline that began in 1964.

Only about 53 per cent of the voting age population went to the polls, compared with the record high 62.8 per cent which voted in 1960. The figure dropped to 56 per cent by 1972.

The South has bucked the turnout trend since 1965, primarily because of the enfranchisement of blacks. Turnouts which once averaged 30-40 per cent have increased to about 50 per cent in this year's election.

"I feel that alienation, at least outside of the South, is continuing. In long-range terms, the only thing that will engage the people will be sound policies and a group of leaders that are for them," said one expert, Curtis Gans of the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate.

'The Greek' Rates Atlantic City Gambling Success As 'No Cinch'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — This fading resort city, permitted by state voters to stake its future on casino gambling, is celebrating as if it had already hit the jackpot. But oddsmaker Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder rates the chances of financial success as "no cinch."

On Tuesday, New Jersey voters approved a constitutional amendment making Atlantic City, home of the famous Boardwalk and the Miss America Pageant, the nation's only area outside Nevada to allow casino gaming.

Snyder sounded one of several notes of caution as city residents gave a chorus of hurrahs. He predicted that gambling would spread as other areas try to cash in, too — and he warned that running a gambling house is no sure thing unless you know what you're doing.

Meanwhile, New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne said he considers careful supervision of gambling more important than setting it up quickly. Promoters said it would be at least a year before gambling starts. And a prominent banker warned of a wave of speculation on property.

Caution was hardly the general mood, however, as hotels threw parties here and bars served up free drinks.

"I foresee Atlantic City once again becoming the greatest seashore resort in the world," said Mayor Joseph Lazarow.

"We're going to rebuild this town," vowed John Rich, president of a bricklayers union, many of whose members have been unemployed. "The skyline will change dramatically," predicted lawyer-banker James Cooper.

Jimmy "The Greek," interviewed in New York, saw it differently.

"Now that the rolling stone has been let go," Snyder said, "I'm just wondering how many other states are going to pick it up."

"Pandora's door is open. ... What's going to stop the places up in the Catskills (a resort area just north of New York City) from doing it?"

Atlantic City hopes to capitalize on the gambling market among tens of millions of people who live on the East Coast and are unwilling to go to Nevada.

Atlantic City does offer some advantages, Snyder said, such as "the community and the population ... the transient trade." Unlike Las Vegas promoters, he said, operators

UTAH DEATH ROW INMATE Murderer Wants To Die

By BILL BEECHAM
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Mark Gilmore, a convicted murderer scheduled to face a firing squad on Nov. 15, has tried to fire his lawyers to keep them from appealing the execution.

It would be the first execution in the United States since June 1967 and the first execution by firing squad since 1960.

Craig Snyder, one of two court-appointed defense attorneys, said Wednesday that he would ask the court to appoint new counsel for Gilmore, but that he planned to go ahead with the motion for a stay of execution.

"There is a question, and a substantial one, as to whether he has the right personally to die on the 15th or at any time that might be set," Snyder said. Appeal of a death sentence is not mandatory in Utah.

Snyder said he and Public

Dixie Didn't Carry Dixie

DIXIE, Wash. (AP) — Dixie didn't carry Dixie.

This little town near Walla Walla in southeastern Washington voted for the Republican gubernatorial candidate, John Spellman, 75 to 66 over the Democratic candidate, Dixie Lee Ray.

Defender Michael Esplin had been notified by the 35-year-old Gilmore that he no longer wanted them to represent him. But Snyder said he questioned whether Gilmore was capable of deciding what was best because of the pressures he is under.

Meanwhile, Samuel Smith, warden of the Utah State Prison, has asked the attorney general's office whether he should start recruiting a five-man firing squad.

On Monday, Gilmore, who has spent 18 years in state and federal prisons, told District Judge J. Robert Bullock that he wanted to go through with the scheduled execution "because I don't want to spend the rest of my life in jail."

"You sentenced me to die. Unless it's a joke or something, I want to go ahead and do it."

Gilmore was sentenced to death in October by a jury that convicted him of killing a Provo motel clerk during a holdup last summer. The state gives the condemned a choice of death by firing squad or hanging. Gilmore said he preferred to be shot.

Bullock ordered Gilmore to undergo a psychiatric evaluation, including a determination of his state of mind and factors that might have made him decide not to appeal.

Gilmore was a parolee when he was arrested in July and charged with killing the clerk and another man in the Provo area. He is still scheduled to be tried for the second slaying.

The last legal execution in the United States was in Colorado on June 2, 1967. Utah's last execution was in 1960, when James W. Rodgers died before a firing squad for killing a fellow miner in San Juan County.

Utah is one of many states that passed new capital punishment laws after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the death penalty was unconstitutional as it was generally being applied. The high court earlier this year upheld the constitutionality of some new state laws, and state officials have said they believe Utah's law meets court standards.

Earp Died With His Boots Off, And He Lies Among Respectable

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
COLMA, Calif. (NEA) — The legend of Wyatt Earp doesn't jibe with the simple letters notched in the dark marble stone, which is tilted slightly off the ground and encased in concrete so that nobody'll steal it.

Underneath it lie the ashes of the notorious gunslinger of the Old West — in a Jewish cemetery on a hillside in the fog belt just south of San Francisco.

Wyatt Earp
1848-1929
Josephine Earp
1861-1944

Wyatt Earp, who along with his brothers Morgan and Virgil shot it out with the Clanton gang at the O.K. Corral (Oct. 26, 1881), should — to fit history — be buried in some place like Tombstone or Deadwood or Dodge City.

But here on this sunny Indian summer day — in the well-tended Hills of Eternity cemetery — you find out that Wyatt Earp lived to the ripe old age of 81 and died with his boots off, and that for the ages he reposes in the company of the Marcus family, his Jewish in-laws.

Maury Fitzgerald, a pipe-smoking English professor at the College of San Mateo, led this pilgrimage to the grave of Wyatt Berry Stapp Earp, who was a buffalo hunter, rode shotgun on a stage, was an assistant marshal and blasted and gambled his way through the silver and gold camps of Arizona, Colorado and Alaska before finding sedateness and respectability with Josephine Sarah Marcus, whom he married in 1897.

Earp died in Los Angeles. He was cremated and the ashes later transferred to the Marcus family plot here. The headstone, weighing more than a quarter of a ton, was stolen a couple of times — and once found in some bushes off nearby Skyline Drive — before it was sealed in cement.

The curious still wander by. A history teacher from southern California happens along, with his teenaged sons, and snaps a picture with an Instamatic. "We get a few every week," says Don Kuczyński, the caretaker, a refugee from Poland and the only Jew in Cemetery Workers Local 263.

Fitzgerald, who brought us here, has more than a pedantic interest in grave sites, too. He is executive secretary-treasurer of the union, which has 450 members stretched out from San Jose to Antioch. Maury has held the job for 17 years while dispensing syntax and grammar to junior college students.

He is the only union leader who lives in Hillsborough, a swank suburb where Bing Crosby is his near neighbor. But Maury's working domain is Colma, a unique community on the Peninsula ridge below San Francisco. Graves are its main business (there are no active cemeteries in the city). A hundred yards from Wyatt Earp's urn stands the crypt of William Randolph Hearst, the immensely influential newspaper tycoon who was the model for "Citizen Kane." He lies in adjoining Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

Altogether there are 12 cemeteries in Colma. Fitzgerald, a San Francisco native, picked up spare cash here — 42 a day — digging graves as a 15-year-old high school kid.

"Grave digging isn't what it used to be," he admits. "Forty per cent of our business is now in cremation — except for the orthodox Jewish, Greek and Catholic cemeteries."

Those huge ornate headstones that have traditionally cluttered cemeteries are now out, too. Modest marble monuments with simple lines and simple designations are the fashion.

So Wyatt Earp in his final resting place, noted by a plain marker, sits right in with his neighbors. Little did they realize they'd achieve immortality of a sort by reposing near the man who won the Gunfight at the O.K. Corral.

Honesty Pays For Busboy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hector Carrillo, a night bus boy at a restaurant, picked up dishes from a table, saw a folded bill under a plate and automatically put it in his pocket.

At home, he realized what he thought was $1 was actually $100. Carrillo figured it was a mistake, came in early the following morning and left the money with the manager.

A few minutes later, an agitated couple from Mexico came in, asking if the restaurant had found a $100 bill on a table. It was the only money they had left beside their airline tickets home.

They were so overjoyed to recover the bill that they insisted the bus boy accept a $20 tip.

Only CBS Still Ponders Expansion Of Evening News

By JAY SHARBUITT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The idea of an expanded evening news show is dead at NBC and ABC. But it still is kicking around at CBS, a top corporate official at that emporium says.

"We're not printing banners or campaigning, but it's still alive," says John A. Schneider, head of the CBS Broadcast Group, which runs the company's radio and TV networks and the CBS-owned stations.

He spoke by phone from New York this week shortly after ABC became the second of the three television networks to shelve the idea of lengthening its half-hour nightly newscasts to 45 minutes or an hour.

NBC shelved its plans on Oct. 21. NBC and ABC both cited near-unanimous affiliate opposition as the main reason for their actions.

Schneider, in saying the idea of a longer "CBS Evening News" still was under consideration, said no decision has been made on whether CBS actually will or won't adopt a longer format.

He said any decision depends on a number of things, and "what I'm doing is keeping my own counsel because with the other two (networks) already having committed themselves to something, it leaves me with all kinds of competitive latitude here."

Industry observers say most affiliates oppose longer nightly network news shows because such take time they want for their own local news and entertainment programs which can earn them great local advertising revenue.

Schneider says that view is correct, but too simplistic.

The question of advertising revenue, he says, could be handled simply by offering the affiliates all the commercial time available in the expanded part of a nightly network news show.

But to do a 45-minute or hour-long network news show, he added, one has to consider the Federal Communications Commission's prime-time access rule limiting what networks can air in the early evening.

For example, he said, they say "the only way you can go beyond 7 p.m. (EST) for a news broadcast is if it's preceded by a one-hour local newscast."

"Obviously, you aren't going to go 45 minutes or an hour (with a network news show) starting at 7 p.m."

You'd have to start earlier, which stations wouldn't like, he added, because it'd force a contraction in length or a shift in starting time of a local news show viewers expect at a certain hour each night.

CBS in September 1963 became the first network to expand its nightly news from 15 to 30 minutes. NBC did it later that month, with ABC delaying expansion until January 1967.

Schneider says any decision on another CBS expansion — or none at all — would of course be made after consultation with affiliates. But he refused to say when the matter would be settled one way or the other.

All he would say is that right now "all my options are open."

Canceled Shows End In Cellar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three canceled new series — NBC's "Gemini Man" and ABC's "Mr. T. and Tina" and "Cos" — ended their television runs last week with ratings of the kind that caused their demise.

All wound up among the lowest-rated shows in the week ending Oct. 31, according to A. C. Nielsen Co. audience estimates made public Wednesday.

For the sixth straight week, ABC came out No. 1 in the weekly ratings averages, its "Happy Days" again the nation's top-rated show. The program was seen in 21.2 million homes.

In contrast, the week's lowest-rated program — CBS' now canceled "Spencer's Pilots" — was seen in about 5.5 million homes, according to Nielsen estimates.

The Nielsen figures said the 20 most-watched shows last week were "Happy Days," "Charlie's Angels," "Bionic Woman" and "Laverne and Shirley" (ABC); "Bob Hope Special" (NBC); "Barretta" and "Six Million Dollar Man" (ABC); "All in the Family" (CBS); "M-A-S-H" and "The Waltons" (CBS); "Live and Let Die" (ABC); "Disney" (NBC); "Alice" and "Hawaii Five-O" (CBS); "Welcome Back, Kotter" (ABC); "One Day at a Time" and "Maude" (CBS); "NFL Monday Night Football" (ABC).

Grand Rapids Residents Mourn Defeat Of Ford

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — President Ford's loss saddened most of his hometown's citizens Wednesday, but some still cling to a faint hope that a legal challenge in New York might keep him in the White House.

"We're down ... It's tough to lose a close election, especially when you believe in your man as strongly as the people in Grand Rapids believe in Jerry Ford," said Robert Eleveld, the 5th District Republican chairman.

Eleveld was the only top GOP leader in the area who could be reached for comment Wednesday. Repeated calls to Kent County Republican headquarters in downtown Grand Rapids went unanswered.

But a local radio station reported receiving numerous calls after it carried network stories indicating legal action in New York still might put that state's 41 electoral votes in Ford's column.

One television reporter said several longtime Ford backers were extremely emotional, including some who were in tears, when he spoke with them Wednesday morning. The reporter would not identify those who wept over Ford's defeat.

Grand Rapids residents did their bit to keep their longtime congressman and fellow citizen in the White House. Ford carried Grand Rapids by almost 21.

But a local GOP celebration Tuesday night fizzled quickly as the national returns showed the tide running against their man. A band was on hand but went home without playing and plans for displays of fireworks were dropped just as quietly.

About the only bright spot for the GOP in Grand Rapids was that the party regained control of the congressional seat Ford held for 25 years. Ford drew much of the credit for the victory by Harold Sawyer.

Homes In Outer Space Just 'Round The Corner

This week we present an outer space story with a difference. We're not going to show you a plexiglass cube on a crater-scarred surface and tell you a story that's straight out of the comic books. This space story involves you. It's about the fact that your life in space is a prospect that's just around the corner.

The government's been financing research that will send you rocketing to your new "space colony" home in an awfully short time. To give you an idea of how far beyond the dream-and-drawing-board stage this is, we'll tell you that experts have already figured out how to simulate the earth's atmosphere and gravity in space. They've also gone ahead and up where "Star Trek" left off. And, if you want a great marriage, you'd better be prepared to spend some time on it. And not a little time, either. We know you're busy, but if you'll give Family Weekly just a few minutes this week, we'll give you an expert's bag of tricks.

You'll learn how to schedule days, make decisions, and establish priorities so that there's time for the most important thing in your life — the man or woman you married.

Read it Saturday in Family Weekly, a regular feature of The Herald-Palladium.

Only CBS Still Ponders Expansion Of Evening News

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The idea of an expanded evening news show is dead at NBC and ABC. But it still is kicking around at CBS, a top corporate official at that emporium says.

"We're not printing banners or campaigning, but it's still alive," says John A. Schneider, head of the CBS Broadcast Group, which runs the company's radio and TV networks and the CBS-owned stations.

He spoke by phone from New York this week shortly after ABC became the second of the three television networks to shelve the idea of lengthening its half-hour nightly newscasts to 45 minutes or an hour.

NBC shelved its plans on Oct. 21. NBC and ABC both cited near-unanimous affiliate opposition as the main reason for their actions.

Schneider, in saying the idea of a longer "CBS Evening News" still was under consideration, said no decision has been made on whether CBS actually will or won't adopt a longer format.

He said any decision depends on a number of things, and "what I'm doing is keeping my own counsel because with the other two (networks) already having committed themselves to something, it leaves me with all kinds of competitive latitude here."

Industry observers say most affiliates oppose longer nightly network news shows because such take time they want for their own local news and entertainment programs which can earn them great local advertising revenue.

Schneider says that view is correct, but too simplistic. The question of advertising revenue, he says, could be handled simply by offering the affiliates all the commercial time available in the expanded part of a nightly network news show.

But to do a 45-minute or hour-long network news show, he added, one has to consider the Federal Communications Commission's prime-time access rule limiting what networks can air in the early evening.

For example, he said, thep says "the only way you can go beyond 7 p.m. (EST) for a news broadcast is if it's preceded by a one-hour local newscast."

"Obviously, you aren't going to go 45 minutes or an hour (with a network news show) starting at 7 p.m."

You'd have to start earlier, which stations wouldn't like, he added, because it'd force a contraction in length or a shift in starting time of a local news show viewers expect at a certain hour each night.

CBS in September 1963 became the first network to expand its nightly news from 15 to 30 minutes. NBC did it later that month, with ABC delaying expansion until January 1967.

Schneider says any decision on another CBS expansion — or none at all — would of course be made after consultation with affiliates. But he refused to say when the matter would be settled one way or the other.

All he would say is that right now "all my options are open."

California Has 'Rest Home' For Elderly Felons

CHINO, Calif. (AP) — Like many other elderly men confined to institutions, the 140 residents of Elm Hall spend their days dreaming of the past and fighting off loneliness.

But the residents here are not patients in a rest home — they are all convicted felons, housed in California's only prison facility exclusively for aging criminals.

Elm Hall is one part of the California Correctional Facility at Chino, a small town south of Los Angeles. The youngest inmate is 50, prison officials said, though there is no official age requirement.

"Older convicts spend their whole day devising little ways to stay out of everybody's way," said Dr. Joseph Ham, an expert on the problems of older prisoners.

"I had one guy who had done 20 years for murder," he said. "He was 76 when he got out and he didn't have any place to go. He deliberately committed a crime so he could get back in."

An Elm Hall inmate, interviewed while he worked a jigsaw puzzle, said that for most of his fellow prisoners "there's nothing for them outside."

"They don't have any family or any friends. Nobody ever comes to see them. They'd just as soon die here as outside."

The inmate, who asked not to be identified, said many Elm Hall residents fear the younger prisoners they come in contact with at other prisons.

"The young guys hate prison authority and they fight the system," he said. "They do things the older people think are crazy. So the old guys just try to stay out of their way."

Another prisoner said he preferred life at Elm Hall to San Quentin Prison, where he spent a year.

"This is better," he said. "We have an occasional fight and some of the guys are grouchy. But we don't have stabbings or anything like that."

"You're under more stress when you're around the young guys. They give way to their emotions and you've got to worry whether they're going to start a riot."

Researcher Fears Michigan Meat

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Concerned about possible PBB-contamination in the food supply, the head of a research team says he is reluctant to eat meat in Michigan and urges women not to breast-feed their babies.

The alarm was sounded Wednesday by Dr. Irving Slikoff as his research team, sent by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, launched a study of possible health effects of PBB on Michigan residents.

"I would not advise breastfeeding at this time," said Slikoff of Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

Asked if he would feel at ease eating food that might be contaminated with PBB, he said, "I would be reluctant to eat those foods which I suspect are contaminated with PBBs."

In the summer of 1973, Michigan Farm Bureau Services, a profit-making cooperative, accidentally mixed a fire-retardant chemical with cattle feed later sold to farmers across the state. The Farm Bureau thought it was purchasing a healthy feed additive from Michigan Chemical Co. of St. Louis, Mich., which accidentally shipped the farm bureau bags of PBB.

For two years, some Michigan farmers have complained that PBB, polybrominated biphenyl, is responsible for health problems.

Tests by the state Public Health Department showed the presence of PBB in mothers' milk.

Another prisoner said he preferred life at Elm Hall to San Quentin Prison, where he spent a year.

"This is better," he said. "We have an occasional fight and some of the guys are grouchy. But we don't have stabbings or anything like that."

Researcher Fears Michigan Meat

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Concerned about possible PBB-contamination in the food supply, the head of a research team says he is reluctant to eat meat in Michigan and urges women not to breast-feed their babies.

The alarm was sounded Wednesday by Dr. Irving Selikoff as his research team, sent by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, launched a study of possible health effects of PBB on Michigan residents.

"I would not advise breastfeeding at this time," said Selikoff of Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

Asked if he would feel at ease eating food that might be contaminated with PBB, he said, "I would be reluctant to eat

those foods which I suspect are contaminated with PBBs."

In the summer of 1973, Michigan Farm Bureau Services, a profit-making cooperative, accidentally mixed a fire-retardant chemical with cattle feed later sold to farmers across the state. The Farm Bureau thought it was purchasing a healthy feed additive from Michigan Chemical Co. of St. Louis, Mich., which accidentally shipped the farm bureau bags of PBB.

For two years, some Michigan farmers have complained that PBB, polybrominated biphenyl, is responsible for health problems.

JFK's Birthplace, Firebomb Target, Is Being Restored

By LARRY LAUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — From the horsehair plaster in the kitchen to the wallpaper in the bedroom, workmen are putting the finishing touches on repairs at the birthplace of the late John F. Kennedy to get it ready to reopen to the public.

The restored home on Beals Street was damaged the night of Sept. 9, 1975, the day Boston's public schools opened for a second year of court-ordered busing. An arsonist's firebomb crashed through the kitchen door at the rear of the house.

Nov. 15 is the target date for the reopening of the two-story house as a historic site.

The physical restoration continued into October, according to John Heath, the National Park Service ranger overseeing the work. Then came the housecleaning.

The fire left the kitchen a charred ruin. The rest of the house, spared from flames by the quick response of firefighters, was damaged by heat and smoke.

The arsonist apparently also spray-painted the words "Bus Teddy" on a sidewalk in front of the house, in a reference to the late president's brother, U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a supporter of the busing program. Heath said chemicals were used to erase the slogan.

The president's parents — Rose and Joseph Kennedy — moved into the house in 1914. Four of their children, including the future president, were born there. The family moved to New York in 1921.

The house passed through about six owners before the Kennedy family bought it back in 1966 and decided it to the federal government. The park service dedicated the site in 1968.

The kitchen furnishings, selected with Rose Kennedy's advice in order to recreate conditions when the family lived there, were not authentic pieces. Heath said none of the genuine Kennedy furnishings were lost in the fire.

All the articles of furniture had to be cleaned afterward, but the unfortunate incident gave officials the chance to assess the landmark fully.

"The fire gave us an opportunity to have a professional analysis of the home done," said Heath. "We went back to the original layers of paint to see exactly what kind was used."

The fire also revealed a china hutch in the wall between the kitchen and dining room. "No one even knew it was there. It must have been covered over years ago," said Heath.

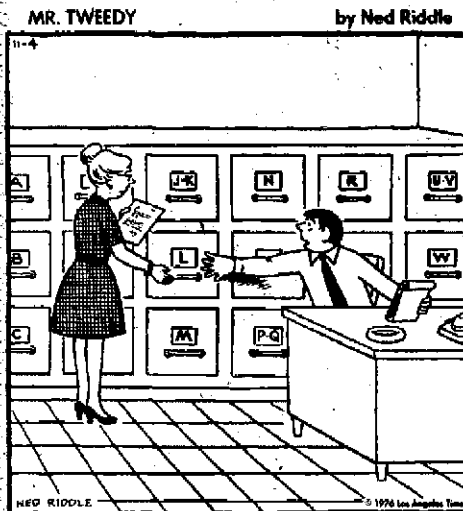

"The original plaster in the kitchen was made with horsehair," said Heath of another post-fire discovery. "They don't make it that way nowadays. In order to replaster the kitchen, we had to go to Suffolk Downs racetrack to purchase horsehair, and then we had to find someone old enough to have worked with it."

A craftsman with experience in working horsehair plaster, which resists cracking with the settling of walls, was located in Boston and another historic detail was preserved.

"The restoration carpenters are trying to preserve everything possible," said Heath.

Helping Rhodesian Blacks Ousted Premier Returns

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Sir Garfield Todd was ousted as prime minister of Rhodesia 18 years ago, branded a traitor by other Rhodesian whites, confined to his ranch for more than five years and almost forgotten. Now he has reappeared in Rhodesian politics, buoyed by new hope. He's one of the few whites on the black delegations at the talks on Rhodesia's future. A rangy 68-year-old with a shock of snow-white hair, Todd is a political adviser to Joshua Nkomo, head of the Zimbabwe African People's Union

(ZAPU).

One of his first acts after his release last June 2 was to visit the man responsible for his detention, Prime Minister Ian Smith, the head of the white Rhodesian government.

Todd said he decided to make the overture so Smith would not hesitate to call on him if he was needed as a go-between with the blacks in a crisis.

"I thought after having put me away for 5½ years he probably wouldn't be able to talk to me in an emergency if he wanted to," said Todd in an interview.

"So I thought I'd better go over and break down the wall, which I did. It was pleasant enough. He asked me how I was."

Todd went to Rhodesia in 1934 as a Church of Christ missionary from New Zealand.

"I was saying within a year of arriving that we should make it possible for leaders to emerge from these (black) people," he said.

"And I, in my naivete, of which I've always had lots, thought that if one could really put it before the white electorate, they would respond. But of course I was wrong."

As prime minister from 1963 to 1968, Todd tried in vain to get blacks on the all-white voting rolls. His rebellious white cabinet drove him from office.

Four years later, Smith's white-supremacist Rhodesian Front ousted Todd's liberal United Federal Party from power. On Nov. 11, 1965, Smith declared Rhodesia independent from Britain rather than bow to British pressure for a start toward black-majority rule. Smith's regime detained hundreds of black political opponents without trial and one white, Todd, who was confined to his ranch for a year.

He was arrested again in 1972, imprisoned for five weeks and then confined to his ranch again as a threat to public security, with a police guard, to keep nearly everyone away.

"Oh, it was an ordeal," said Todd. "You can't just be taken out of circulation and made incommunicado with no letters, no phone calls and only a certain number of screened people to come and see you. After leading a pretty extroverted sort of life, it hits you hard."

He also said suggestions that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger should be asked to take part in the conference were premature.

"I think he would feel he would want to get some of the groundwork cleared before intervening himself," Smith said.

Meanwhile, Rhodesian government security officials said four 122mm rockets fired from Mozambique hit Umtali, near the border 135 miles southwest of Salisbury, late Wednesday afternoon. They did little damage and injured no one, the officials said.

Rhodesian troops retaliated with mortars, and the rocket fire stopped immediately, the sources reported.

Verbal Sniping Emerges At Rhodesian Conference

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Rhodesian conference on black rule settled down to verbal sniping and technical talks today, with no progress toward agreement in sight.

Prime Minister Ian Smith left for home on Wednesday after telling a British television interviewer that "some of the rather stupid black politicians" were wasting the conference's time.

"We've had some stupid people behave from some of the delegates," he said.

"We don't care what Smith thinks. His presence is not essential," said a spokesman for black leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

Nkomo and Mugabe contend that Britain, despite the Rhodesian whites' successful declaration of independence 11 years ago, should take the government away from them, and hand it over to the blacks.

Foreign Minister Pieter van der Byl, left in charge of Smith's delegation, said no progress can be made until the four rival black factions stop "squabbling" with the whites and with each other.

Van der Byl was scheduled to meet black leaders today for technical talks.

In an effort to keep the talks going, British conference chairman Ivor Richard proposed the delegations skip such substantive issues as when black rule would be established and discuss instead the technicalities involved in transferring power from the 278,000 whites to the 6.4 million blacks.

"I am leaving because nothing is taking place," Smith said in the television interview. "It is procrastination and people are walking around the problem instead of getting to grips with the problem."

However, on his arrival in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, Smith said it would be premature to say the talks had no chance of success.

"If only people would get organized and get to grips with the thing it would have been over by now," he said.

He also said suggestions that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger should be asked to take part in the conference were premature.

"I think he would feel he would want to get some of the groundwork cleared before intervening himself," Smith said.

Meanwhile, Rhodesian government security officials said four 122mm rockets fired from Mozambique hit Umtali, near the border 135 miles southwest of Salisbury, late Wednesday afternoon. They did little damage and injured no one, the officials said.

Rhodesian troops retaliated with mortars, and the rocket fire stopped immediately, the sources reported.

STOCK SLUMP: Traders sit and talk or rest at New York Stock Exchange Wednesday. The stock market fell sharply with losers overwhelming gainers by a 9-to-1 margin at noon in the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks. (AP Wirephoto) was dismayed when black friends told him there was no way open to them but war.

"I was at my lowest point. I said, 'This is terrible, this is not what I worked for all my life.'"

Then came Smith's broadcast Sept. 24 agreeing to black majority rule in two years.

"It was unbelievable, incredible," said Todd.

Though still highly skeptical of Smith's intentions, he said the slow-moving Geneva talks have given him new hope again.

"I am very happy," he said simply.

Todd said his goal is a democratic Zimbabwe, the black nationalist name for Rhodesia, in which race will play no part. He asserted that he has no personal ambition for a role in the future black political establishment.

"I am just one of the citizens of the new Zimbabwe, with the vote, I hope," he said.

Visit To Chicago Was Sick Affair

CHICAGO (AP) — Hermann Streckert, who came here from Germany to visit his son's family, is returning home in a respirator after he became sick and ran up a $72,000 hospital bill.

"Dad looked good and got around fine when he arrived to visit us in May," said his son, Hans Streckert, who makes $4.18 an hour as a greenhouse employee. "Then he began getting sick."

Streckert, a 72-year-old former coal miner, entered St. Elizabeth's Hospital July 26. His ailment was diagnosed as "black lung" disease, and he was placed in intensive care. Doctors said he would not survive outside a respirator.

At first he needed a machine to work his kidneys, one to work his lungs and a third to help his liver. Rosemarie Garcia, social service worker at the hospital, said his condition now is stable.

As Streckert's $800-a-day hospital bills quickly reached the $72,000 mark, Mrs. Garcia sought help from the state without luck and went to the German consulate.

"If Mr. Streckert had become ill in Germany, all his bills would have been paid under socialized insurance there," said Mrs. Garcia. "But nothing could be done outside the country for him."

She said the three specialists who took care of Streckert had withdrawn their bills. "The hospital is not pressuring payment although the younger Streckert signed a statement when his father entered that he would be responsible," she added.

A German newspaper in Chicago helped organize a fund that raised $3,782. A spokesman for the Chicago German community said a fund-raising campaign had been started in Germany.

Streckert and his wife, Erna, leave today on a German airliner specially equipped with a respirator and 10 bottles of oxygen. The airline is giving free passage to the Streckerts and a German nurse from Chicago who volunteered her help.

Helping Rhodesian Blacks

Ousted Premier Returns

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Sir Garfield Todd was ousted as prime minister of Rhodesia 18 years ago, branded a traitor by other Rhodesian whites, confined to his ranch for more than five years and almost forgotten.

Now he has reappeared in Rhodesian politics, buoyed by new hope. He's one of the few whites on the black delegations at the talks on Rhodesia's future. A rangy 68-year-old with a shock of snow-white hair, Todd is a political adviser to Joshua Nkomo, head of the Zimbabwe African People's Union

(ZAPU).

One of his first acts after his release last June 2 was to visit the man responsible for his detention, Prime Minister Ian Smith, the head of the white Rhodesian government.

Todd said he decided to make the overture so Smith would not hesitate to call on him if he was needed as a go-between with the blacks in a crisis.

"I thought after having put me away for 5½ years he probably wouldn't be able to talk to me in an emergency if he wanted to," said Todd in an interview.

"So I thought I'd better go over and break down the wall, which I did. It was pleasant enough. He asked me how I was."

Todd went to Rhodesia in 1934 as a Church of Christ missionary from New Zealand.

"I was saying within a year of arriving that we should make it possible for leaders to emerge from these (black) people," he said.

"And I, in my naivete, of which I've always had lots, thought that if one could really put it before the white electorate, they would respond. But of course I was wrong."

As prime minister from 1953 to 1958, Todd tried in vain to get blacks on the all-white voting rolls. His rebellious white cabinet drove him from office.

Four years later, Smith's white-supremacist Rhodesian Front ousted Todd's liberal United Federal Party from power. On Nov. 11, 1965, Smith declared Rhodesia independent from Britain rather than bow to British pressure for a start toward black-majority rule. Smith's regime detained hundreds of black political opponents without trial and one white, Todd, who was confined to his ranch for a year.

He was arrested again in 1972, imprisoned for five weeks and then confined to his ranch again as a threat to public security, with a police guard, to keep nearly everyone away.

"Oh, it was an ordeal," said Todd. "You can't just be taken out of circulation and made incommunicado with no letters, no phone calls and only a certain number of screened people to come and see you. After leading a pretty extroverted sort of life, it hits you hard."

But this was mild, he said, compared with the hardships endured by black leaders who came to Geneva straight from 10 or 15 years in jails or detention camps.

"They absolutely amaze me, these chaps. Their lives have been so damaged, some of them have had no homes to go back to. The worries, the concerns, they get stomach ulcers and so on. In one big camp I know, there are 600 in it. There's not a chair or a table in the camp. They sit on the floor. Terrible."

The former missionary said when he was freed in June he was dismayed when black friends told him there was no way open to them but war.

"I was at my lowest point. I said, 'This is terrible, this is not what I worked for all my life.'"

Then came Smith's broadcast Sept. 24 agreeing to black majority rule in two years.

"It was unbelievable, incredible," said Todd.

Though still highly skeptical of Smith's intentions, he said the slow-moving Geneva talks have given him new hope again.

"I am very happy," he said simply.

Todd said his goal is a democratic Zimbabwe, the black nationalist name for Rhodesia, in which race will play no part. He asserted that he has no personal ambition for a role in the future black political establishment.

"I am just one of the citizens of the new Zimbabwe, with the vote, I hope," he said.

Verbal Sniping Emerges At Rhodesian Conference

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Rhodesian conference on black rule settled down to verbal sniping and technical talks today, with no progress toward agreement in sight.

Prime Minister Ian Smith left for home on Wednesday after telling a British television interviewer that "some of the rather stupid black politicians" were wasting the conference's time.

"We've had some stupid puerile behavior from some of the delegates," he said.

"We don't care what Smith thinks. His presence is not essential," said a spokesman for black leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

Nkomo and Mugabe contend that Britain, despite the Rhodesian whites' successful declaration of independence 11 years ago, should take the government away from them, and hand it over to the blacks.

Foreign Minister Pieter van

der Byl, left in charge of Smith's delegation, said no progress can be made until the four rival black factions stop "squabbling" with the whites and with each other.

Van der Byl was scheduled to meet black leaders today for technical talks.

In an effort to keep the talks going, British conference chairman Ivor Richard proposed the delegations skip such substantive issues as when black rule would be established and discuss instead the technicalities involved in transferring power from the 278,000 whites to the 6.4 million blacks.

"I am leaving because nothing is taking place," Smith said in the television interview. "It is procrastination and people are walking around the problem instead of getting to grips with the problem."

However, on his arrival in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, Smith said it would be premature to say the talks had no chance of success.

"If only people would get organized and get to grips with the thing it would have been over by now," he said.

He also said suggestions that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger should be asked to take part in the conference were premature.

"I think he would feel he would want to get some of the groundwork cleared before intervening himself," Smith said.

Meanwhile, Rhodesian government security officials said four 122mm rockets fired from Mozambique hit Umtali, near the border 135 miles southwest of Salisbury, late Wednesday afternoon. They did little damage and injured no one, the officials said.

Rhodesian troops retaliated with mortars, and the rocket fire stopped immediately, the sources reported.

Visit To Chicago Was Sick Affair

CHICAGO (AP) — Hermann Streckert, who came here from Germany to visit his son's family, is returning home in a respirator after he became sick and ran up a $72,000 hospital bill.

"Dad looked good and got around fine when he arrived to visit us in May," said his son, Hans Streckert, who makes $4.18 an hour as a greenhouse employee. "Then he began getting sick."

Streckert, a 72-year-old former coal miner, entered St. Elizabeth's Hospital July 26. His ailment was diagnosed as "black lung" disease, and he was placed in intensive care. Doctors said he would not survive outside a respirator.

At first he needed a machine to work his kidneys, one to work his lungs and a third to help his liver. Rosemarie Garcia, social service worker at the hospital, said his condition now is stable.

As Streckert's $800-a-day hospital bills quickly reached the $72,000 mark, Mrs. Garcia sought help from the state without luck and went to the German consulate.

"If Mr. Streckert had become ill in Germany, all his bills would have been paid under socialized insurance there," said Mrs. Garcia. "But nothing could be done outside the country for him."

She said the three specialists who took care of Streckert had withdrawn their bills. "The hospital is not pressuring payment although the younger Streckert signed a statement when his father entered that he would be responsible," she added.

A German newspaper in Chicago helped organize a fund that raised $3,782. A spokesman for the Chicago German community said a fund-raising campaign had been started in Germany.

Streckert and his wife, Erna, leave today on a German airliner specially equipped with a respirator and 10 bottles of oxygen. The airline is giving free passage to the Streckerts and a German nurse from Chicago who volunteered her help.

NO. 1 POST AT UN

It's A Love-Hate Thing

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — They all say it is an impossible job, a frustrating job, a back-breaking job. But once they get it, they don't want to give it up.

The job is secretary-general of the United Nations, and all the men who have held it seemed to have had a love-hate relationship with it.

The first, Trygve Lie of Norway, who was elected on Feb. 1, 1946, called the post "the most impossible job on this earth."

Yet he accepted a three-year extension of his five-year term and would have served beyond his seven years in office had not the Soviet Union in effect forced him out because of his stand against the North Korean invasion of South Korea.

The second, Dag Hammarskjöld of Sweden, who was elected in April, 1952, wrote in his deeply religious private diary the day he was elected secretary-general:

"He who has surrendered himself to it knows that the way ends on the cross."

Hammarskjöld, too, accepted a second five-year term and served 8½ years in all before he was killed in a plane crash on a peace mission in Africa.

His immediate successor, U Thant of Burma, spoke of the "heavy responsibilities" of the office. Still he served two terms totaling 10 years before he retired because of illness.

The fourth and current secretary-general, Kurt Waldheim of Austria, has called the job "the most strenuous I ever had" and sometimes the "most frustrating."

But now Waldheim says he would "regard it as a privilege and an honor" if he were reelected to a second, five-year term to follow the one he will finish Dec. 31.

It looks as if he will be reelected.

The secretary-general gets what it takes to live well — roughly $62,000 a year in salary and expenses and the use of a limousine and the use of a $1 million Manhattan town house.

But he scarcely has time to take advantage of the job benefits. He is too busy with the problems of a far-flung bureaucracy of upward of 10,000 international civil servants, and those of many of 145 member nations as well.

"There is no family life anymore," Waldheim said in an interview in his 38th floor office after some years on the job. "I have to be here from early in the morning until late in the evening."

"But it's part of the job. I used to say when my wife was complaining about no family life. I said, 'You can't have the cake and eat it. You must accept the challenge.' And I always accepted the challenge. Otherwise I wouldn't have accepted this job."

"And this job is a job which only somebody can really do who is ready to accept the challenge, because it's sometimes a most frustrating job — must frustrating. You want to do so much more ..."

"But what I want to say is that there are moments when you have satisfaction, if you liberate — if you're able to achieve the liberation of a few human beings who are captured, put in a prison, and you are able to get them out; if you are able to settle a border conflict; if you are able to contribute to the beginning of a negotiating process somewhere in the world instead of having a new war there — this is a satisfaction, whether it's recognized or not."

Luis Echeverria, who finished up as president of Mexico at the beginning of December, has made it a race for the job here by sending word that he would run for secretary-general "should there be a current of opinion favoring a candidate from the Third World."

China is known to favor diplomat from the Third World for secretary-general, though not necessarily Echeverria.

Also understood to be interested in the job are Argentina's U.N. ambassador, Carlos Ortiz de Rozas, and Sri Lanka's Ambassador, Hamilton Shirley Amerasinghe, president of both the General Assembly and the conference on the Law of the Sea.

There are others, too, but whether any could get past the big-power veto in Security Council is problematical at this stage.

To be elected secretary-general by the General Assembly, a candidate first must win the recommendation of the council.

St. Joe Poll Beaters Hosting Cellar-Dwelling Dutch

The poll was certainly wrong about St. Joseph this season. St. Joe was picked to finish next to last in the Big Seven football race in a pre-season poll of coaches, but the Bears can be guaranteed a second place finish with a win over Holland Friday night at Dickinson Stadium.

"I think it just proves what you can do if you get your mind set on something and go at it enthusiastically," declares St. Joseph coach Ike Muhlenkamp. "The players have worked very hard."

The Bears opened the season with just four starters from last year's 5-4 squad, but they are now 5-2 overall and 3-2 in the league. Holland, meanwhile, was picked to finish last in the Big Seven, and that's exactly where the Dutch now stand with a 1-4 record. Holland is 1-5 overall with a string of five straight winless games.

Holland, under coach Ray Backus, has had a sputtering offense this season while never scoring more than two touchdowns per game.

"They are turning the ball over at times, and they can't get consistent," notes Muhlenkamp. "They will run one play great, but not the next one."

Tailback John Hosta leads Holland rushers with an average of 3.7 yards per carry. Fullback Duane Berkompas is second while carrying a 4.1 mark.

Junior Gerg Gogolin took over at quarterback last week and is expected to start again Friday. His top receivers have been Kevin Beertuis (11 receptions) and Steve VanTongerren.

"They play pretty good defense," adds Muhlenkamp. "They have a good, hard hitting ball club, and if we are not on our toes, we will be in trouble. They look dangerous on film."

A comparison of scores from five common league opponents makes St. Joe a one touchdown favorite for the 7:30 p.m. game.

St. Joe is also strong on defense. Muhlenkamp was particularly impressed with his secondary in last week's shutout over Portage Central. "We put a lot of pressure on them (Harry Coburn, Brian Lannon and Kurt Feigler) by playing three deep, and they responded well," he explains.

Muhlenkamp plans to use a combination of defenses this week, including the 3-3 which "bent but didn't break" against Central. Tackles Ken Fette and Jim Foulkes were honored as last week's top defensive players for doing a "very nice job."

Linebacker Brian Hansen got the game breaker award for an interception which set up St. Joe's second touchdown. End Dennis Boehm was also credited with causing two fumbles.

Tailback Kevin Wheeler got the offensive award for scoring two touchdowns while gaining 111 yards, his best effort of the season.

Husky award to prep team players went to Mike Mackles and Steve Eckert.

Two injured Bears, tailback Dale Rupley and monster back Paul Wall, are doubtful for Friday after missing last week's game. Holland linebacker Bill Altman, the team's leading tackler, will be back Friday after being sidelined in last Friday's 14-0 loss to Lakeview.

SHOT BLOCKED: Marcel Dionne (16) of Los Angeles Kings, tries for a goal against Gary Simmons, Cleveland Barons goalie, during first period action

Wednesday night at Cleveland Coliseum. Simmons managed to block this shot, but Kings went on to win NHL game 4-2. (AP Wirephoto)

Benton Harbor Injuries High For LMAC Finale

Injuries continue to mount for Benton Harbor's football team at just the wrong time of the season.

The Tigers travel Friday to Traverse City for their final LMAC game of the year. And Benton Harbor will be minus eight players who opened the season as regulars.

"We're really crippled up," Tiger coach Paul Bergan says. "It's a tough situation. We don't know whether to take a chartered bus to Traverse City or Rampart (Ambulance)."

The list grew during last Friday's game with Muskegon Catholic Central. Defensive end Keith Taylor is probably lost for the season with torn knee ligaments and offensive guard Hank Talley is finished for the year with a broken leg and torn knee ligaments.

The duo joint offensive tackle Gene Eddy (broken leg), offensive end Carl Allison (sprained ankle), running back Maverick Burton (sprained ankle), defensive end Carl Cotton (torn ankle ligaments), linebacker Desmond Parker (bruised shoulder), and Napoleon Lark (torn jaw muscle) on the sidelines.

"We're going to have to put some kids together with chewing gum and wire," Bergan says. "We're just going to try and give Traverse City a good football game. If we can come back with enough bodies to play Lakeshore, we'll consider it a victory."

Benton Harbor has lost 10 straight times to Traverse City, last winning in 1965.

The Trojans can still tie for the LMAC crown with a win over Benton Harbor. Traverse City brings a 3-1 league record and 5-2 overall mark into the game. Benton Harbor stands 1-3 and 3-4, respectively.

Traverse City is coming off a 33-0 loss to league-leading Muskegon. It marked the first shutout against the Trojans since 1973, the worst Traverse City loss since 1969 and the first home defeat to Muskegon in 10 years.

The Trojans do not lose at home very often, making the Tigers' task even tougher.

On paper Benton Harbor would appear to have a chance to upset Traverse City. Alpena beat Traverse City, Battle Creek Central stunned Alpena last Friday and Benton Harbor has beaten Battle Creek Central.

Traverse City returns just four starters from last year's class A state finalist team. The offense has been almost totally rebuilt. Rushing has been the Trojan's forte and a year ago Traverse City set a league record of 467 total yards against the Tigers.

Heading this year's ground gainers is junior Jon Buday, a 5-11, 185-pounder, who is in his first year on varsity. Buday has gained 625 yards. Joining Buday is senior Ben Lautner who has moved over from defense to add 501 yards. Dave Mahn (6-3, 200) runs the offense at quarterback.

The Trojans are sparked by two linemen, offensive tackle Gary Provins (6-4, 240) and defensive standout Chuck Fitzgerald (6-4, 230).

"Anything can happen," Bergan says. "We just hope we can move the football. They're huge so it's going to be a real challenge. The kids are looking forward to it. If we can capitalize on their mistakes we can stay in the hallgame."

Traverse City fumbled five times last week against Muskegon and Bergan is hopeful for some of the same kind of breaks Friday.

With all of the injuries, Bergan has been forced to play some people both ways Friday for the first time this year. Defensive tackle Reggie Smith will also go at offensive tackle. Offensive guard John Bailey is also going at linebacker. Quarterback Andrew Hurst will probably also get the call at defensive halfback. Going at defensive end will be offensive tackle Dan Alkanon.

'Rocks, Indians Meet For Title Arrow Collision Set

WARNING!

Come Friday night if windows begin to rattle and the walls begin to shake, fear not, for it isn't an earthquake...Hartford and Berrien Springs high school football teams have just collided at Berrien Springs.

The rumbling sound will continue for about two hours and when it ends, the Indians or Shamrocks will be crowned champion of the Red Arrow conference. Undeclared Hartford, winners of nine straight over two seasons and the No. 5 team in this week's AP Class C poll come in as a 5½ point favorite, based on a comparison of common opponent scores.

Berrien Springs on the other hand, has the home field advantage and are riding the crest of a six game win streak.

Neither team has ever won a Red Arrow Conference crown in football.

In other conference games, which will have no effect on any seismograph, Watervliet (4-2, in conference) travels to Bridgman (3-3); Hartford (0-6) invades Eau Claire (1-5) and Saturday night Lake Michigan Catholic (3-3) heads south for Galien (1-5).

"This is it," Hartford coach Bob Teske says. "We're ready, mentally and physically. I look for a good, hard hitting, clean game. Since they (Berrien Springs) joined the Red Arrow we've always had good games."

In fact, last year Hartford won it 8-6. In 1974 Berrien Springs came out on top 19-13 in overtime.

"We feel we can play ball against them...we're pretty tough against the run," Shamrock first-year coach Dick Bartz says. "I look for a fairly low scoring game, which will be decided by key breaks, penalties and the kicking game."

Bartz says his Shamrocks, off to their best start since 1956, are "...going to have to hang on to them at the line. We'll probably tighten it up in terms of bringing people up close to the line to try and shut off those backs before they get much running room."

Hartford operating out of a straight-T has been running people over all year. "They just come right at you, nothing fancy, just excellent execution...and seldom make mistakes offensively," Bartz says.

The Shamrock mentor feels it's "...going to be critical for us to keep good field position...you can't give them four cracks at first downs inside your own 40."

Bartz also feels his Shamrocks have to contain Hartford's Phil Wiresles. "We can't let him get loose up the middle...he's a good one."

Hartford's Teske says the key to victory will be stopping Shamrock quarterback Tim Sunday, the area's leading scorer who ran wild against Lake Michigan Catholic last week and the Shamrocks' trapping game.

"They run a lot of straight roll out stuff with Sunday," Teske says. "He's a big, tough athlete."

Another main concern of Teske is Berrien Springs size. "They're bigger than we are overall," he says. "We got big tackles, but our guards and ends are smaller."

Key blocker on Hartford's line, according to Bartz, is all-state candidate, 6-1, 190-pound tackle Duane Toney.

Teske says Hartford offensively "...plans on doing a lot more optioning" to the outside if they get jammed up in the middle.

Hartford has been averaging 42 points per game in the Red Arrow and needs eight more points to break the 1975 record of 37 per game set by Watervliet in 1972. In all games, Hartford ranks first in the area in scoring and defense, while Berrien Springs is second on defense and fourth in scoring.

Watervliet will try to clinch third place when the Panthers travel to Bridgman to take on the Bees. Coach Jerry Barchett's Panthers have won all 10 games in the Red Arrow series with Bridgman and have yielded one touchdown or less in three straight this season. Bridgman could tie the Panthers for third with a victory.

Lake Michigan Catholic can also tie for third if the Lakers down Galien and Bridgman pulls an upset. The Lakers travel to Galien Saturday night. Lake Michigan Catholic has lost two straight and has yielded two TD's or more in five straight.

The Lakers' Gary Bartalone has now rushed for 1,067 yard this season and has scored 34 points, fifth on the area scoring list. It will be the senior halfback's final Red Arrow game.

New Buffalo's Blum will attempt to snap the area's longest losing streak, which has now reached 24 games, when they travel to Eau Claire for their final game of the season. The Beavers have yielded 22 or more points in eight straight games and have lost three straight for a 1-7 overall record.

SLAPPED AWAY: Houston Rockets' Kevin Kunnert (44) slaps away attempted shot of Boston Celtics' Sidney Wicks (12) during first period of NBA game at Houston Wednesday night. Celtics' John Havlicek (17) moved in to control deflected ball as Dave Cowens (18) looks on. Houston won thrilling game 117-111 in overtime. (AP Wirephoto)

Expansion Teams Can't Touch Free Agent List

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Gorman has seen a lot of baseball lists in the last two weeks, but none is more appealing than today's available free agent players. Only this is one list Gorman can't touch.

Gorman is the director of player personnel for the expansion Seattle Mariners, who will be forced to come into the cold, competitive baseball world in 1977 with young hopefuls, old has-been and middle-aged mediocres.

That's the lot of all expansion teams. They are given a license to drive with the big boys, but then allowed to use only rollerskates or a broken-down Edsel.

"I wish we could have a shot at some of these free agents," said Gorman, whose infant club could grow up very quickly with the likes of Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi or Don Gullett on the roster. "But these are the rules of the game."

Seattle and its twin brother, Toronto, paid a hefty price to get into the American League. Part of that entrance fee for each team included $5.25 million for 30 players. Among the available players to the Mariners and Blue Jays will be Pat Dobson, Wilbur Wood, Brooks Robinson, Bill Melton, Boog Powell, Rico Carty, Paul Blair and Bill Freehan.

"The clubs did an excellent job of protecting their best players," said Gorman.

All 12 existing AL clubs have 15 untouchable players, along with all their minor leaguers signed after 1975. Each team must lose one player per round. When a team loses a player, it can protect three more after the first three rounds and two more after the fourth round.

"I'm somewhat disappointed," said Peter Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Blue Jays. "The clubs didn't leave unprotected as many young players as I would have liked."

"Now we'll have to change our approach and go with what's around. There are certainly a lot of old guys available."

Building teams eventually attain success because of young, talented players who mature into stars together. Old teams tend to do little but get old together.

"Our goal is still to draft the best young players we can get, except now there are fewer available than we counted on," says Bavasi, who estimates he and his scouting staff have put in 13,000 man hours to bone up on the available personnel.

"When we run out of young guys, we'll pick the veterans we feel can do the best job. Maybe even two or three at one position to provide us with trading material."

Anderson Leads Punters

CHICAGO (AP) — Football coaches like to emphasize the kicking game and one of the closest races in the Big Ten is among individual punters.

John Anderson of Michigan is the current leader with a 40.0 average but five others are within range of the lead. Dan Matter of Iowa is second with a 39.6 average while Dave Eagin of Purdue and Dan Zarling of Indiana are tied at 39.0. Tom Skladany, the defending champion from Ohio State, and Phil Viernisei of Illinois are tied for fifth with 38.8 averages.

Rob Lytle of Michigan is the rushing leader with a 146.4 average followed by Jeff Logan of Ohio State at 108.0, Scott Dierking of Purdue at 103.0 and Mike Harkrader of Indiana at 101.1.

Mike Carroll of Wisconsin leads in total offense with an average of 186.4 yards a game with Ed Smith of Michigan State second at 181.5. Carroll and Smith also run one-two in passing.

David Charles of Wisconsin leads in pass reception with 22 for 259 yards with Kirk Gibson of Michigan State second on 18 catches for 314 yards.

Pete Johnson of Ohio State is the scoring leader with 80 points and Harlan Huckleby of Michigan has 54 points. Bob Wood of Michigan is the kick scoring leader with 36 points followed by Skladany with 34.

Todd Sheets of Northwestern leads in kickoff returns with a 36.9 average and Ira Matthews of Wisconsin is first in punt returns with a 10.5 average. Paul Beery of Purdue leads in interceptions with four.

Michigan dominates the team statistics. The Wolverines are first in rushing with a 352.8 average, in total offense with a 472.6 average and in scoring with 300 points in five games.

Michigan State leads in passing with an average of 212.3 yards a game with Wisconsin second at 172.3.

Ohio State leads in total defense allowing 263.4 yards a game with Michigan second at 274.4 and Iowa third at 278.4.

Michigan leads in rushing defense, allowing 118.3 yards a game and in scoring defense, giving up 44 points in five games. Northwestern leads in pass defense by allowing only 84.2 yards a game.

Benton Harbor Injuries High For LMAC Finale

Benton Harbor has lost 10 straight times to Traverse City, last winning in 1965.

The Trojans can still tie for the LMAC crown with a win over Benton Harbor. Traverse City brings a 3-1 league record and 5-2 overall mark into the game. Benton Harbor stands 1-3 and 3-4, respectively.

Traverse City is coming off a 33-0 loss to league-leading Muskegon. It marked the first shutout against the Trojans since 1973, the worst Traverse City loss since 1969 and the first home defeat to Muskegon in 10 years.

The Trojans do not lose at Offensive guard John Bailey is also going at linebacker. Quarterback Andrew Hurst will probably also get the call at defensive halfback. Going at defensive end will be offensive tackle Dan Atkinson.

"Now we'll have to change our approach and go with what's around. There are certainly a lot of old guys available."

Building teams eventually attain success because of young, talented players who mature into stars together. Old teams tend to do little but get old together.

"Our goal is still to draft the best young players we can get, except now there are fewer available than we counted on," says Bavasi, who estimates he and his scouting staff have put in 13,000 man hours to bone up on the available personnel.

"When we run out of young guys, we'll pick the veterans we feel can do the best job. Maybe even two or three at one position to provide us with trading material."

Anderson Leads Punters

CHICAGO (AP) — Football coaches like to emphasize the kicking game and one of the closest races in the Big Ten is among individual punters.

John Anderson of Michigan is the current leader with a 40.0 average but five others are within range of the lead. Dan Matter of Ohio State is second with a 39.6 average while Dave Eagin of Purdue and Dan Zarlingo of Indiana are tied at 39.0. Tom Skladany, the defending champion from Ohio State, and Phil Viernese of Illinois are tied for fifth with 38.8 averages.

Rob Lytle of Michigan is the rushing leader with a 146.4 average followed by Jeff Logan of Ohio State at 109.0, Scott Dierking of Purdue at 103.0 and Mike Harkrader of Indiana at 100.2.

Mike Carroll of Wisconsin leads in total offense with an average of 186.4 yards a game with Ed Smith of Michigan State second at 161.5. Carroll and Smith also run one-two in passing.

David Charles of Wisconsin leads in pass reception with 22 for 259 yards with Kirk Gibson of Michigan State second on 18 catches for 314 yards.

Pete Johnston of Ohio State is the scoring leader with 60 points and Harlan Huckleby of Michigan has 54 points. Bob Wood of Michigan is the kick scoring leader with 36 points followed by Skladany with 34.

Todd Sheets of Northwestern leads in kickoff returns with a 36.9 average and Ira Matthews of Wisconsin is first in punt returns with a 10.5 average. Paul Beery of Purdue leads in interceptions with four.

Michigan dominates the team statistics. The Wolverines are first in rushing with a 382.8 average, in total offense with a 472.6 average and in scoring with 200 points in five games.

Michigan State leads in passing with an average of 212.8 yards a game with Wisconsin second at 172.2.

Ohio State leads in total defense allowing 263.4 yards a game with Michigan second at 274.4 and Iowa third at 278.4.

Michigan leads in rushing defense, allowing 118.8 yards a game and in scoring defense, giving up 44 points in five games. Northwestern leads in pass defense by allowing only 64.2 yards a game.

Denver Wins Fifth Straight In NBA

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The undefeated Denver Nuggets have made a successful transition from the American Basketball Association to the National Basketball Association.

The upstart Nuggets, who joined the NBA this season in the merger of the leagues, are adjusting well to their new environment.

In fact, Denver is making winning look easy, as its 5-0 record attests. The Nuggets' latest victim was the New York Knicks, whom they beat 119-100 Wednesday night. Denver leads the Midwest Division by two games.

In other games, the New York Nets upended the Buffalo Braves 100-96, the Washington Bullets eased past the Milwaukee Bucks 117-105, the Indiana Pacers whipped the San Antonio Spurs 113-97, the Kansas City Kings topped the Seattle SuperSonics 126-106 and the Houston Rockets outlasted the Boston Celtics 117-111 in overtime.

Coach Larry Brown of Denver was succinct after the Knicks' game. "It's great meeting the Knicks. Now, we know we're in the NBA," he said.

The other clubs now know it, too.

Veteran forward Paul Silas sees Denver "as a potentially great team" that can compete on even terms with the Boston Celtics, the NBA champs he played for last season.

Except for Silas, the Nuggets consist of players who were in the ABA last season. Silas was obtained from Boston in a three-way deal also involving Detroit, with Ralph Sampson going from Denver to the Pistons, who sent Curtis Rowe to the Celtics.

Against the Knicks, the Nuggets bolted to a 23-point third-period lead and coasted the rest of the way before a record crowd of 17,808 in Denver.

David Thompson supplied most of the Nuggets' scoring impetus with 24 points and Dan Issel added 19. Five other players hit double figures in the balanced Denver attack.

Wall Frazier of New York topped all scorers with 27 points, while Earl Monroe was limited to 14.

John Williamson scored a season-high 36 points, triggering New York past Buffalo. The Nets snapped a three-game losing streak and handed the Braves their fourth successive setback.

Elvin Hayes was a virtual one-man show for Washington against Milwaukee. He scored 31 points, snared 14 rebounds and blocked six shots.

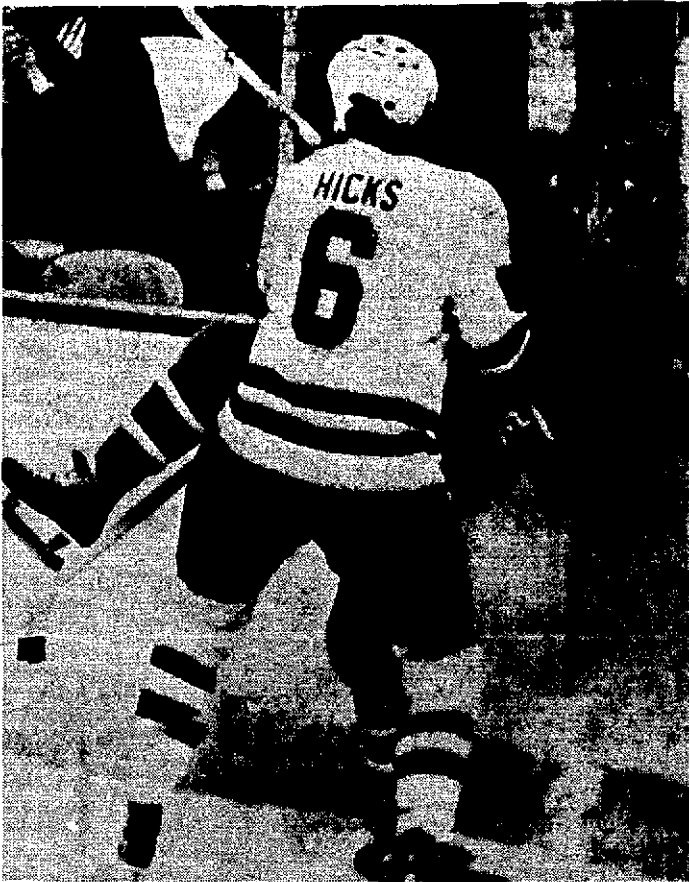

Dan Roundfield hit for 24 points, 16 in the third period, keying Indiana's fourth triumph in a row, at the expense of San Antonio.

Ron Boone and Jim Eakins provided the scoring punch with 26 and 23 points, respectively, as Kansas City took advantage of costly Seattle turnovers.

Mike Newlin connected for 35 points, including six in overtime, as Houston handed the Celtics their second loss in two nights.

The game was enlivened by a third-quarter fight between 5-foot-10 Calvin Murphy of the Rockets and 6-7 Sidney Wicks of the Celtics. Wicks suffered a bloody nose but neither player was ejected.

Lineman Still Unknown

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Ken Bowman was at center for the Green Bay Packers, he always bemoaned the fact that offensive linemen rarely were recognized by pro football fans.

Now a lawyer, Bowman ran into much the same problem Tuesday when he lost his bid for a seat in the Wisconsin State Senate.

"I guess maybe I should have been a quarterback," Bowman said after being defeated by Republican incumbent Thomas Petri.

"We thought we were going to win, but unfortunately it didn't come out that way," the Democrat said. "But I've played enough football games to know that there are many instances where you fight real hard and the team still loses."

Bowman was one of 13 former athletes to run for office in Tuesday's election. Six were winners.

Democrat Joe DeNucci, a former fighter, was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives, polling 70 per cent of the vote.

"One thing about boxing, the rules are all defined pretty much," said DeNucci, who retired from the ring after losing two close decisions to Emile Griffith in 1972. "Politics is a different kind of business. You don't have that much control over your own destiny."

Other former athletes to win were Republicans Jack Kemp and Larry Jackson, and Democrats Ralph Metcalfe, Mickey Owen and Ray Jarvis.

On the losing end were Republicans Wilmer "Vinegar Bowl" Mizell, Bobby Richardson, Don Demeter, Wes Santee and Ron Shotts.

Kemp, who quarterbacked the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, posted a big victory in his re-election bid to the U.S. House of Representatives from New York's 35th Congressional District.

Jackson, who pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies, won re-election to the Idaho House, out-polling his Democratic challenger by nearly 2-to-1. He is in line to become chairman of the Idaho House Appropriations Committee.

Metcalfe, a member of the victorious American 400-meter relay team in the 1936 Berlin Olympics, also ran well in Illinois' 1st District, crushing his opponent while winning his fourth two-year term to the U.S. House.

Owen, best remembered as the catcher whose passed ball helped the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1941 World Series, narrowly was re-elected as sheriff of Greene County in Missouri. It is Owen's fourth consecutive four-year term as sheriff, and he defeated Republican Ron Ginn, who was on Owen's staff until quitting five years ago.

Jarvis whipped Republican Bob Williams, taking 61.2 per cent of the vote, in becoming sheriff of DeKalb County in Georgia.

Mizell, another former major league pitcher, lost to incumbent Democrat Steve Neal in the contest for North Carolina's 5th Congressional District seat. Mizell, who was unseated by Neal two years ago after serving three terms, polled only 46 per cent of the vote.

Richardson, the former New York Yankees second baseman, lost to Democratic Congressman Kenneth L. Holland in South Carolina's 5th District, polling 48 per cent of the vote. Mizell pitched for the St. Louis Cards, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Giants before retiring after the 1962 season.

Richardson, the former New York Yankees second baseman, lost to Democratic Congressman Kenneth L. Holland in South Carolina's 5th District, polling 48 per cent of the vote.

"I'll have to wait and see what comes along," Richardson said of his future plans. He resigned this summer as baseball coach at the University of South Carolina to enter politics. "I really didn't put anything in the back drawer for after the election. I went in to win."

Demeter was defeated in his bid for a seat in the Oklahoma state legislature by incumbent Democrat Ken Nance. Now an Oklahoma City businessman, Demeter was an outfielder for the Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies and Detroit Tigers, batting .307 in 1962 when he was with the Phils.

Former University of Oklahoma football star Ron Shotts was defeated in his bid for a seat on the Oklahoma Corporation Commission. But Shotts got 48 per cent of the votes in an office generally dominated by Democrats, and Oklahoma GOP officials believe the Oklahoma City attorney may win two years from now.

Lancers Lose

Lakeshore's freshman football team ended its season on a losing note, falling before Edwardsburg 14-12 at home Tuesday.

Kevin Warnock scored a first quarter touchdown for the Lancers on a five-yard run and Mike Hamilton went over from the one-yard line in the fourth quarter.

Green Bay Loses Smith

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers will have to make it through the rest of the season without fullback Barty Smith, their leading rusher and scorer, although his replacement does have some experience.

Smith was placed on the injured reserve list Wednesday with a bum knee. He suffered a stretched ligament during Sunday's loss to Detroit.

He will be replaced in the starting lineup by veteran John Brockington, who was the starter until Smith replaced him in the third game of the season.

Smith had picked up 365 yards rushing this year, averaging 3.8 yards per carry, and scored five touchdowns. His blocking was generally credited with providing an important boost to the Packer offense.

Brockington, who set a National Football League record by rushing for more than 1,000 yards in each of his first three pro seasons, has 102 yards in 32 carries, a 3.1 yard average.

Packer Coach Bart Starr said he was seeking a roster replacement, and hoped to have a new running back in camp today.

The Packers waived wide receiver Eddie Bell from injured reserve earlier Wednesday, leaving the club with 10 players on the list, and only four running backs on the active roster.

Three Stars Retire In Characteristic Fashion

NEW YORK (NFA) — Three sports figures who made an impact on American society announced their retirement this fall. It is rare when an athlete will make an unusual contribution beyond the parameters of his field. But here we have three, and each went out in rather characteristic fashion.

One is George Blanda, the antiquarian kicker, who departed kicking (he didn't want to be cut from the Oakland Raiders, at age 48, and threw a tantrum of sorts); another is Henry Aaron, who went out hitting, with a single in his last time at bat. The third is Muhammad Ali, whose leave-taking, like virtually every other aspect of his career, was a swirl with controversy.

For none of the above is retirement now news. Blanda and Ali had retired before, while Aaron had been suggesting for the last couple years that the season coming up would be his last.

And all followed Dylan Thomas's advice, whether they were aware of it or not: "Do not go gently into that good night. Rage, rage against the dying of the light." Blanda was pushed out by a young man who was not yet born when Blanda turned pro with the Chicago Bears in 1950. When he found out what non-plans the Raiders had for him, he complained bitterly, kicked a locker, and, with a half, left.

Aaron broke Babe Ruth's all-time home run record in April of 1974, at age 41. He hung on for two more years. For two reasons: One, the money was substantial. And two, he could still stroke, even if he was no longer a flash on the bases. (One can picture Henry Aaron, grown old and gray, hobbling up to the plate with a bat for a cane and lining one through the box.)

Ali retired for as many reasons as there are facets of the man. Few felt that Ali would stay retired — even though he reiterated his feelings that, being a man of pacifism, fighting was no kind of life for him, same thing he said three fights ago. Added persuasion for his decision this time came when he found that, in his last bout, Ken Norton could hurt him without his hurting Norton.

In this "retirement" announcement, one sensed that even if it was not true in fact, it was true in spirit. The great Ali could no longer float like a butterfly, sting like a bee. No, what he did do was lumber like a moose, paw like a bear.

No matter. The curtain must fall for all of us, eventually. Blanda, more than any athlete in history, demonstrated Picasso's dictum that "Youth has no age." Blanda retired in 1960 from the National Football League, but returned when the American Football League was organized.

How the pulse beat when in the waning, dusky moments of a football game, Blanda was called in to save the day. The camera zoomed in as the elderly, leathery Blanda pulled on his helmet and trotted onto the field to boot — and we knew he would — the winning field goal. He was for anyone beyond 35 our psychic Geritol.

Aaron and Ali meant something beyond age to us. What they dealt with was at the core of our nation — the division over race.

How threatened many seemed by Aaron's breaking of Babe Ruth's home run record. Somehow, Ruth's record stood for some as a symbol of white supremacy. As his pursuit of the 714 homers drew near, one word in Aaron's mail became more and more pervasive, the word "Nigger."

In the spring before he drove No. 715 over the wall, Aaron was assigned a body guard. Aaron discussed in a newspaper story the possibilities of being shot. He was fatalistic.

Aaron possessed a quiet dignity. For much of his career he was little celebrated. Once the nation's spotlight fell on him, however, he took advantage to speak out against the injustices of the black man in America. It was dignified but it was passionate.

Ali was a man well ahead of his time, as a fighter and as an individual. He could move like a middleweight and yet was 6-3 and weighed 220 pounds. He fought all the meanest sluggers of his day — Liston, Frazier, Foreman — and triumphed.

What got the goat of many, however, was his stand on politics and religion and race. After winning the heavyweight title in 1964 from Sonny Liston, Ali announced he was a Black Muslim, reputed then to be a black militant religious sect. Ali's stand on not sleeping forward in the draft, soured others who, apparently, preferred he follow the hypocritical rule of many other athletes who joined the military and then accepted showy sinecures.

Ali was unfairly stripped of his title and forced into a three and a half year retirement. His case went before the Supreme Court, which, in a 9-0 decision, upheld Ali's claim to status as a conscientious objector. A few short years later, most of the politicians who opposed Ali's stand, jumped on his philosophical bandwagon.

Meanwhile, Ali was becoming the most widely known athlete in the world. Rather, Ali was becoming the most widely known living person in the world.

Blanda, Aaron and Ali enriched our lives, for they did not simply survive, they prevailed.

Injured Flames Shutout Capitals

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
There's nothing like some shorthanded goals and a shutout to perk up a National Hockey League team starting a home stand and beset with injuries and illness.

The Atlanta Flames found the prescription to cure what ailed them Wednesday night with a 7-0 conquest of the Washington Capitals. The victory put the third-place Flames back at .500 with two points behind idle Philadelphia, runner-up in the Patrick Division.

In other NHL games, the Los Angeles Kings beat the Cleveland Barons 4-2, the St. Louis Blues defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2, the Montreal Canadiens downed the Minnesota North Stars 5-2 and the New York Rangers routed the Vancouver Canucks 6-1.

In the World Hockey Association, the Cincinnati Stingers turned back the Indianapolis Racers 8-2 and the Edmonton Oilers upended the Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2.

Penalty-killers Hilliard Graves, Bill Clement and Eric Vail each scored goals for Atlanta while the Flames were shorthanded and goalie Phil Myre held the Capitals scoreless for his first shutout of the season.

Graves' shorthanded goal, gave Atlanta an early 1-0 first-period lead. Clement's came in the third period and was his third of the season, most ever by a Flames' player in a season. Vail, who also had a power play goal, also scored his shorthanded goal in the third period. Tom Lysiak produced a pair of power play goals for Atlanta.

Dave Hutchinson and Tommy Williams scored goals in the final 60 seconds, lifting Los Angeles past Cleveland as the Barons absorbed their fifth straight setback.

A pair of goals by Pierre Plante triggered St. Louis' victory and snapped Toronto's three-game winning streak.

Doug Riesenbrough, Rejean Houle and Mario Tremblay scored in the third period as Montreal handed Minnesota its third consecutive setback.

Rookie Don Murdoch and veteran Rod Gilbert each connected for two goals in New York's victory against Vancouver. One of Murdoch's goals was on a penalty shot, and he now has 14 goals in 14 games.

Claude Larose and Peter Marsh collected two goals apiece in Cincinnati's rout of Indianapolis.

Rusty Patenaude produced three goals and Rick Morris accounted for the winning score in Edmonton's success over Minnesota.

Even the fans got into the act Wednesday during a fight-marred International Hockey League contest between Saginaw and Kalamazoo at Saginaw.

Six fights broke out during the game, in which Saginaw trounced Kalamazoo, 8-4. Kalamazoo left winger Alvin White, who scored two goals, was handed a game misconduct after taking a swing at a fan with his stick.

Saginaw center Wayne Zuk and right winger, Marcel Comeau each had two goals. The Goats, in last place in the IHL North Division, outshot Kalamazoo 43-24, and brought their season record to 3-4-1. Kalamazoo, in first place in the North, is 5-3.

In other IHL action Wednesday, Muskegon defeated Toledo, 5-3; Fort Wayne swept past Port Huron, 8-3; and Flint edged Columbus, 3-2.

Mike Usitalo snapped a 3-all tie at 19:31 of the second period to give Muskegon the lead over Toledo. Jeff Green scored one goal and had one assist. Ian MacPhee had a pair of goals for Toledo.

The Mohawks now are 4-6 in the IHL's North Division while Toledo is 4-3-1 in the IHL South.

D'Arcy Keating's two goals propelled Fort Wayne to its fourth straight victory. The Goats jumped to a 2-0 lead after one period and took a 5-2 advantage into the final stanza.

Bob McNeice, Robbie Laird, Terry McDougall and Marc Gaudreault added single goals for the Komets, now tied for the IHL South division lead with Columbus.

Clyde Simon slipped in a 20-footer with 6:14 remaining in the game to give Flint the victory. The winning goal came after Flint had battled back from a 2-0 first period deficit to tie it up in the second stanza on goals by Jim Kiolek and Mike Charlie.

The victory improved Flint's record to 3-4-3. Columbus now is 4-2-2.

Suspension Decision Due Today

DETROIT (AP) — The fate of Detroit Red Wings defenseman Bryan Watson, suspended after punching Chicago's Keith Magnuson, is under consideration today by National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell.

The NHL president said he would try to decide what to do with the suspended Watson sometime before tonight's game between Detroit and the Philadelphia Flyers.

Campbell made his announcement Wednesday after a meeting with officials of the Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks, whose defenseman, Magnuson, suffered a broken jaw at the hand of Watson Saturday night.

Earlier this week Campbell described Watson's punch as "cold-cocking."

The incident marks the second in as many seasons in which a Detroit player has made news for unusually rough play. The Wings' Dan Maloney touched off a civil court case last summer in Toronto after a fight with a Maple Leafs' player.

Watson's suspension was the first by Campbell under a new NHL rule which gives the president the right to suspend a player without a hearing. That rule grew out of last season's Maloney incident.

Alex Delvecchio, Red Wings general manager, said he hoped Campbell wasn't trying to make an example of Watson in order to enforce cleaner play under the new rule.

Watson was one of nine players who, between them, accumulated 12 per cent of the penalties in the league last season, according to Campbell.

Three Stars Retire In Characteristic Fashion

NEW YORK (NEA) — Three sports figures who made an impact on American society announced their retirement this fall. It is rare when an athlete will make an unusual contribution beyond the parameters of his field. But here we have three, and each went out in rather characteristic fashion.

One is George Blanda, the antiquarian kicker, who departed kicking (he didn't want to be cut from the Oakland Raiders, at age 49, and threw a tantrum of sorts); another is Henry Aaron, who went out hitting, with a single in his last time at bat. The third is Muhammad Ali, whose leave-taking, like virtually every other aspect of his career, was a swirl with controversy.

For none of the above is retirement now news. Blanda and Ali had retired before, while Aaron had been suggesting for the last couple years that the season coming up would be his last.

And all followed Dylan Thomas's advice, whether they were aware of it or not: "Do not go gently into that good night. Rage, rage against the dying of the light." Blanda was pushed out by a young man who was not yet born when Blanda turned pro with the Chicago Bears in 1950. When he found out what non-plans the Raiders had for him, he complained bitterly, kicked a locker, and, with a huff, left.

Aaron broke Babe Ruth's all-time home run record in April of 1974, at age 41. He hung on for two more years. For two reasons: One, the money was substantial. And two, he could still stroke, even if he was no longer a flash on the bases. (One can picture Henry Aaron, grown old and gray, hobbling up to the plate with a bat for a cane and lining one through the box.)

Ali retired for as many reasons as there are facets of the man. Few felt that Ali would stay retired — even though he reiterated his feelings that, being a man of pacifism, fighting was no kind of life for him, same thing he said three fights ago.

Added persuasion for his decision this time came when he found that, in his last bout, Ken Norton could hurt him without his hurting Norton.

In this "retirement" announcement, one sensed that even if it was not true in fact, it was true in spirit. The great Ali could no longer float like a butterfly, sting like a bee. No, what he did do was lumber like a moose, paw like a bear.

No matter. The curtain must fall for all of us, eventually.

Blanda, more than any athlete in history, demonstrated Picasso's dictum that "Youth has no age." Blanda retired in 1960 from the National Football League, but returned when the American Football League was organized.

How the pulse beat when in the waning, dusky moments of a football game, Aaron was called in to save the day. The camera zoomed in as the elderly, leathery Blanda pulled on his helmet and trotted onto the field to boot — and we knew he would — the winning field goal. He was for anyone beyond 35 our psychic Geritol.

Aaron and Ali meant something beyond age to us. What they dealt with was at the core of our nation — the division over race.

How threatened many seemed by Aaron's breaking of Babe Ruth's home run record. Somehow, Ruth's record stood for some as a symbol of white supremacy. As his pursuit of the 714 homers drew near, one word in Aaron's mail became more and more pervasive, the word "Nigger."

In the spring before he drove No. 715 over the wall, Aaron was assigned a body guard. Aaron discussed in a newspaper story the possibilities of being shot. He was fatalistic.

Aaron possessed a quiet dignity. For much of his career he was little celebrated. Once the nation's spotlight fell on him, however, he took advantage to speak out against the injustices of the black man in America. It was dignified but it was passionate.

Ali was a man well ahead of his time, as a fighter and as an individual. He could move like a middleweight and yet was 6-3 and weighed 220 pounds. He fought all the meanest sluggers of his day — Liston, Frazier, Foreman — and triumphed.

What got the goat of many, however, was his stand on politics and religion and race. After winning the heavyweight title in 1964 from Sonny Liston, Ali announced he was a Black Muslim, reputed then to be a black militant religious sect. Ali's stand on not stepping forward in the draft, soured others who, apparently, preferred he follow the hypocritical route of many other athletes who joined the military and then accepted showy sinecures.

Ali was unfairly stripped of his title and forced into a three and a half year retirement. His case went before the Supreme Court, which, in a 9-0 decision, upheld Ali's claim to status as a conscientious objector. A few short years later, most of the politicians who opposed Ali's stand, jumped on his philosophical bandwagon.

Meanwhile, Ali was becoming the most widely known athlete in the world. Rather, Ali was becoming the most widely known living person in the world.

Blanda, Aaron and Ali enriched our lives, for they did not simply survive, they prevailed.

Paralyzed Playing Football

Cripple Tries To Adjust

STOCKTON, Calif. — (NEA) — The boy is linked irrevocably for life to the chair in which he is strapped. His body is gaunt and spastic. His face is hollow and somber. But there is an apparent sensitivity to Rob Mudd that cries out for release.

He is a 20-year-old in a crippled body who is still in the throes of reconciling himself to the fact that he will never walk again, never even stand up — that he will be dependent on others for his physical care and needs as long as he lives.

It's heartbreaking. And, for Rob Mudd, the memory of that Oct. 26 afternoon is still traumatic. He was a 15-year-old kid then, out for high-school football because it was the thing to do.

"I remember there was a big drug scene at Lincoln High School," says his mother, Carol, "so I didn't mind him going out for football because I felt it would keep him occupied."

Rob was a sophomore, and the coaching system then was to let the kids act as cannon fodder for the varsity seniors in practice scrimmages. Rob weighed 150 pounds and was lined up at walkaway defensive end (comparable to a linebacker) on the left side. The scrimmage play was run his way. Rob ducked his head and stuck it in the path of the ball carrier, as he was taught — "face to the numbers," they call it in football lexicon. In the violent contact, something snapped. And Rob found himself lying on the ground, not really feeling much pain but knowing something was wrong. He couldn't move.

"I was somewhat scared," he recalls, "but I didn't know what had happened at the time. I'd heard of broken necks and that you die when you had a neck broken."

He had never heard of quadriplegia. He was paralyzed in all four extremities and from mid-chest down.

He couldn't anticipate the boredom and occasional resignation that have become part of his daily life.

The Robert Mudd Sr. family is notched out of typical middle-class America. Bub, a silver-haired man in his late 40s whose face is bronzed from the California sun, is a marketing representative for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. His wife, Carol, is dark-haired and pleasant. They were both born and raised in Stockton, Calif., a small city near to where the San Joaquin River empties into a rich delta: an agricultural hub.

Bob and Carol bought their home, a typical California ranch-style house, 17 years ago. It was the first one built on Stanton Way, set in the comfortable enclave called Lincoln Village, which is located on the north side of Stockton, close to the city line. Farms spread unbroken there just a couple of decades ago. Now there are trees and neatly clipped shrubs and watered green lawns. It's a nice neighborhood, and the high school is just a few blocks away.

There is a "For Sale" sign on the Mudds' front lawn. They are moving, just as soon as their house sells, to a home they have had built in the Quail Lakes district a little to the south. They really hate to part with their home, but they feel the need for a house more related to the special needs of Rob, who right now can't wheel himself outside.

His life is wheel chairs and catheters, urinary tract infections and fear of bed sores, a mother cranking a hydraulic device to lift him out of bed and swing him into a wheel chair, 25 days of hospitalization each year, physical therapy, diaphragmatic corsets and breathing difficulty, phantom pains and depression.

The care of Rob Mudd is costly. His father's insurance coverage has accounted for some of the expense. The bulk has been provided by the Crippled Children's Fund, which has already spent about $50,000 on his treatment. The Mudds contribute $200 a month.

Rob speaks softly because part of his chest and everything below is paralyzed. He has motion in his arms but no elasticity in his thumbs — his hands are frozen. A special tendon transplant operation is being contemplated to give him a chance for more freedom of movement with his hands.

"At times," he admits, "I have pain. I get these contractures in my elbows."

Sometimes there are also uncontrollable spasms in his lower limbs which almost throw him out of his chair. These could be controlled by an operation to completely sever the spinal cord, which was severely bruised, but the Mudds are reluctant to accede to this. Somewhere in the future they hope for miraculous medical advancement to help Rob.

After his accident, Rob's weight plummeted to 105. He is now up to 135, but still gaunt. His body has grown five inches. If he were ever to stand up, he'd stretch to 6-2.

The biggest problem is loneliness. The kids he grew up with and went to Lincoln High with seldom come around any more, though in the first flush of sympathy after the accident they raised a special fund of $15,000 which is now held in trust.

"I can see why they don't come around," shrugs Rob. "Out of sight, out of mind."

His days are spent reading and watching television — "just because it's there." Since the fall of 1974, he has been enrolled at Delta Junior College. He carries nine units and attends three afternoons a week, studying English literature, anthropology and psychology. He has an idea he'd like to study law some day.

The toughest part of his curriculum is typing study papers. A special contraption is fitted to his hand, enabling him to strike one key at a time on an electric typewriter — laborious work. But he has a fine 3.2 average in his courses.

At school, he uses an electric chair to get around by himself, but the cobblestones on the modern campus sometimes jar the battery connection loose, causing the chair to go around in circles until someone can come along to rescue him.

Anne Marie is a sophomore at the same school. "Rob is more patient than he was before the accident," his sister says. "And he's using his brain more."

His IQ has been evaluated in the 140 range. He is a little morose about the future. "They talk about rehabilitating the boy," says his father. "He hasn't rehabilitated yet."

"It's kind of a bother," he says frankly about his confinement, "a built-in nuisance. It's kind of hard to accept."

"Of course, I'm bitter," says his mother. "Can't you see? I feel a point should be made, the way football is played, with the helmet being used as a weapon."

Since Rob's injury, the National Federation of State High Schools has banned the type of tackling which caused his injury. Last spring, the Mudds sued the school district for $3 million in damages because of Rob's injury, but a verdict was returned for the defendant. The case is now on appeal. Legal action has also been instituted against the California Interscholastic Federation.

Meanwhile, life as such must go on for Rob Mudd.

"Boredom," he says, "is my biggest enemy."

ANOTHER OLD PRO? When Mal Dixon, a placekicker for the football team at Fairleigh Dickinson University in Teaneck, N.J., graduates next June, he'd like to turn pro. If he does, the 46-year old retired restaurateur will be the oldest active player in the National Football League. (AP Wirephoto)

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — When Mal Dixon, a college place-kicker, graduates next June, he'd like to turn pro. If he does, he'll be the oldest rookie — in fact, the oldest active player — in the National Football League.

He's already the George Blanda of the college set. Dixon is a 46-year-old senior at Fairleigh Dickinson University and the oldest active college player.

"I'm old but I'm eager," Dixon says, suiting up to take the ribbing and hard hits from opponents half his age. "There's no easy treatment for me — they're trying to knock off my head and I'm trying to knock off theirs."

Dixon retired from the restaurant business four years ago and went to college to get a degree in education. It had been his lifelong dream to play college football, and he didn't let his age stand in the way.

"My first year here, I happened to see the football team working out. So I thought I'd go out for it," he says. "My wife thought I was crazy and my kids didn't believe me, but they came around."

Dixon not only does the place-kicking but also occasionally fills in as a defensive lineman. He has hit on 11 of 12 extra points but missed his only field goal attempt this year. The team is 1-5 and usually playing catch-up, so he doesn't get a chance to try too many field goals. In practice he booms 45-yards.

"I'm in better condition now than when I was in my freshman year," says Dixon, who, like many collegians, would like to play pro ball.

"There are a lot of pro teams that can use a backup kicker, and if I'm given the chance I'd like a tryout," he says.

Dixon started out life with a heart murmur that kept him on the sidelines during his early years, but went away after he started school.

"I had to stand around and watch other kids have fun, but when I finally could play I built myself up so I could do 200 pushups at a time," he says. "I enjoy it very much — the physical activity, the competitiveness, even the warming up. It's a matter of doing things, rather than sitting back in your living room getting."

"It's not just me. There are plenty of older people now who want to take part in sports, and there's no reason they can't. Some people in their 50s and 60s can play soccer and basketball, and I know a fellow in his 70s who can beat me in a foot race."

Eau Claire Girls Fourth At State Meet

ANN ARBOR — Eau Claire's girls cross country team finished fourth Wednesday at the state meet at Ann Arbor Pioneer high school here.

The meet was not sanctioned by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

Bath took the Class C title with 47 points, followed by Fowlerville (51) and Mt. Clemens Lutheran North (72).

The Beaver girls had 80 points to post their fourth place finish.

Shepherd's Nora Green took the individual Class C crown, covering the three-mile course in 19:13. Faith Otte was the top Beaver finisher, placing ninth.

Other Eau Claire runners were Joan Blough (10th), Anita Layman (14th), Judy Simaz (20th), Becky Eichler (27th), Nancy Palis (28th) and Lori Dustin (42nd).

Livonia Stevenson won the Class A title, Hillsdale was the Class B winner and Pottsville captured the Class D title.

Individually, Buchanan's Sue Trull was fourth (19:35) and Decatur's Kathy Selbel was fifth (20:02) in Class C.

Sheila Varga of River Valley placed eighth in the Class B race.

Team Play New Golf Challenge

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — The National Team championship, which got underway today, presents the players with a strategic challenge different from any other on the pro golf tour.

"It really helps to know your partner's game," said veteran Dave Hill, teamed with brother Mike in one of the two-man squads given the best chance of winning the $40,000 first prize in the last event of the year.

Scoring in this unique tournament is based on the better ball of each team. That is, if one player scores three on the hole and the other partner scores four, the team score is three.

"Getting it in position, giving the other guy a chance to pull out the stups, is the thing," Hill said. For example, he said, if he hits first off the tee and drives in the fairway, hard-hitting Mike then can attempt an exceptionally long drive. If Dave misses the fairway, then Mike must be more careful to keep the ball in play.

Or, if Dave hits his approach first and puts it on the green, Mike then can go boldly for the pin, ignoring the traps and potential trouble in order to give the team a good shot at a birdie.

"Playing as a team, if you work it right, you're going to have a much better ball than if the two of you were playing in a regular tournament," Dave said.

He and Mike have a history of high finishes in this event being played on two courses at Walt Disney World. But they haven't won.

Dave has had an exceptional season, winning the Milwaukee Open and collecting $116,180. He was second in the Sahara, third twice, including the World Series of Golf, and has been fourth twice. Mike has won $58,478 and had his best finish, third, in the Jacksonville Open.

ABC-TV will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Cripple Tries To Adjust

STOCKTON, Calif. — (NEA) — The boy is linked irrevocably for life to the chair in which he is strapped. His body is gaunt and spastic. His face is hollow and somber. But there is an apparent sensitivity to Rob Mudd that cries out for release.

He is a 20-year-old in a crippled body who is still in the throes of reconciling himself to the fact that he will never walk again, never even stand up — that he will be dependent on others for his physical care and needs as long as he lives.

AUSCOS ADDS EQUIPMENT: George Edmonds, Watervliet, machine operator at Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co. plant, Hartford, checks on brake part being machined on one of new machines installed at Hartford operation of St. Joseph-based firm.

Horizontal lathe in photo and other equipment are among latest numerical control metal working machines available, according to company, and represents near $500,000 investment.

AMONG ADDITIONS: This vertical lathe is among new equipment added to Hartford plant of Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co., St. Joseph. It is used in making disc brake parts. George (Red) Sefcik, Bangor, is operator. Equipment is part of group of new machines added by firm for production of brakes. "The equipment means more jobs in the area, because it supports Ausco's substantial new product lines," according to F. D. Griswold, general manager of firm's brake division.

South Haven Auto Salvage Yard Gets Tentative OK

BY TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent
SOUTH HAVEN — Tentative approval of a license for Howard Auto Parts Co., M-140, to establish an auto salvage yard was granted by the South Haven township board during its regular monthly meeting last night.

Owner Bernard Moret presented a petition signed by approximately 35 property owners within a one-half mile radius of the proposed business stating they did not object to it.

Approval was given on a tentative basis pending construction of a fence and posting of necessary bond.
In other matters, the board forwarded to the city of South Haven a request from Merton Jones that a building he owns on Blue Star Memorial highway be allowed to tap into a city-owned water line. The building is presently leased to Vander Zee motors for a body shop.

A payment policy for the township's ambulance attendants who are called to work while off-duty was approved. The policy calls for payment of $5 for the first hour on duty and the department's prevailing hourly rate for each hour thereafter.

Supervisor James Schnake

announced that the township's equalization factor has been increased by the state for both real and personal property.
The factor for real property is now 2.48 as opposed to 2.20 last year. The factor on personal property is 1.87 as against 1.82. Schnake noted that the township assesses property on 25 percent of market value and that under ideal conditions the factor would be 2.00.

He said that a rapid turnover of property owners within the township and accelerating values of land along the Lake Michigan shoreline makes it impossible for him to keep the valuation at a level high enough to satisfy the state resulting in the increase in factor.

Based on the new factor Schnake reported that the winter tax bill, to be sent out on Dec. 1, will be $90.49 per $1,000 of assessed valuation for township residents within the South Haven school district as opposed to $84.21 last year. The rate for residents of the Covert school district who live in South Haven township will be $119.49 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as opposed to $104.28 last year.

Clerk Franklin Torp took exception with a recent city of South Haven decision not to allow a South Haven township business to connect to a city-owned water line.

The city council denied the request of E-Jay Theron products, Blue Star Memorial highway, on the grounds that the township lacks a zoning ordinance.

Calling the city's rationale "petty", Torp said he believed the city has a responsibility to allow township property owners to attach to existing water lines that already extend into the township.

He said he could understand the city's policy regarding zoning as far as the extension of new lines is concerned.

"They (the city) don't mind taking our money for electricity, but when it comes to water there seems to be a difference," Torp said.

Tenant-Rating Service Started

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A Grand Rapids man has formed a new company he says will provide frustrated landlords with a tenant-rating service. Eugene Stinson said Wednesday he formed the company after passage of new laws which hold landlords liable if they evict a tenant without a court hearing. Stinson said he hopes to provide — for a fee — some protection to landlords from unsavory renters.

Firemen Make Food Run

DETROIT (AP) — When groceries were needed at understaffed Firehouse No. 3 Tuesday, there was only one solution — close shop for about 20 minutes. So the facility was locked up while two firemen bought supplies. A third stayed at the wheel of their vehicle, the station's only hook and ladder truck. Before Detroit embarked on an austerity program, five men staffed the downtown firehouse. It takes three men to run the hook and ladder truck, and that's the total contingent at Firehouse No. 3 now. "We needed food for our lunch and supper," explained one of the firemen who went to the store. An "unwritten law" forbids the use of fire trucks on shopping trips. Chief John Fastig said. "But with the manpower shortage, there was no choice," he said.

AUSCOS ADDS EQUIPMENT: George Edmonds, Watervliet, machine operator at Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co. plant, Hartford, checks on brake part being machined on one of new machines installed at Hartford operation of St. Joseph-based firm.

Horizontal lathe in photo and other equipment are among latest numerical control metal working machines available, according to company, and represents near $500,000 investment.

AMONG ADDITIONS: This vertical lathe is among new equipment added to Hartford plant of Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co., St. Joseph. It is used in making disc brake parts. George (Red) Sefcik, Bangor, is operator. Equipment is part of group of new machines added by firm for production of brakes. "The equipment means more jobs in the area, because it supports Ausco's substantial new product lines," according to F. D. Griswold, general manager of firm's brake division.

South Haven Auto Salvage Yard Gets Tentative OK

BY TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent
SOUTH HAVEN — Tentative approval of a license for Howard Auto Parts Co., M-140, to establish an auto salvage yard was granted by the South Haven township board during its regular monthly meeting last night. Owner Bernard Moret presented a petition signed by approximately 35 property owners within a one-half mile radius of the proposed business stating they did not object to it.

Approval was given on a tentative basis pending construction of a fence and posting of necessary bond.

In other matters, the board forwarded to the city of South Haven a request from Merton Jones that a building he owns on Blue Star Memorial highway be allowed to tap onto a city-owned water line. The building is presently leased to Vander Zee motors for a body shop.

A payment policy for the township's ambulance attendants who are called to work while off-duty was approved. The policy calls for payment of $5 for the first hour on duty and the department's prevailing hourly rate for each hour thereafter.

Supervisor James Schnake

announced that the township's equalization factor has been increased by the state for both real and personal property.

The factor for real property is now 2.48 as opposed to 2.20 last year. The factor on personal property is 1.87 as against 1.82. Schnake noted that the township assesses property on 25 percent of market value and that under ideal conditions the factor would be 2.00.

He said that a rapid turnover of property owners within the township and accelerating values of land along the Lake Michigan shoreline makes it impossible for him to keep the valuation at a level high enough to satisfy the state resulting in the increase in factor.

Based on the new factor Schnake reported that the winter tax bill, to be sent out on Dec. 1, will be $90.49 per $1,000 of assessed valuation for township residents within the South Haven school district as opposed to $84.21 last year. The rate for residents of the Covert school district who live in South Haven township will be $118.40 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as opposed to $104.28 last year.

Clerk Franklin Torp took exception with a recent city of South Haven decision not to allow a South Haven township business to connect to a city-owned water line.

The city council denied the request of E-Jay Thermo products, Blue Star Memorial highway, on the grounds that the township lacks a zoning ordinance.

Calling the city's rationale "petty", Torp said he believed the city has a responsibility to allow township property owners to attach to existing water lines that already extend into the township.

He said he could understand the city's policy regarding zoning as far as the extension of new lines is concerned.

"They (the city) don't mind taking our money for electricity, but when it comes to water there seems to be a difference," Torp said.

Firemen Make Food Run

DETROIT (AP) — When groceries were needed at understaffed Firehouse No. 3 Tuesday, there was only one solution — close shop for about 20 minutes. So the facility was locked up while two firemen bought supplies. A third stayed at the wheel of their vehicle, the station's only hook and ladder truck. Before Detroit embarked on an austerity program, five men staffed the downtown firehouse. It takes three men to run the hook and ladder truck, and that's the total contingent at Firehouse No. 3 now. "We needed food for our lunch and supper," explained one of the firemen who went to the store. An "unwritten law" forbids the use of fire trucks on shopping trips, Chief John Fustig said. "But with the manpower shortage, there was no choice," he said.

Tenant-Rating Service Started

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A Grand Rapids man has formed a new company he says will provide frustrated landlords with a tenant-rating service. Eugene Stinson said Wednesday he formed the company after passage of new laws which hold landlords liable if they evict a tenant without a court hearing. Stinson said he hopes to provide — for a fee — some protection to landlords from unsavory renters.

VAUGHN: Back on television with UNCLE

UNCLE Is Coming Back From TV's 'Scrap Heap'

Q: I was glad to read in your column about the revival of that great old-time TV hit, "The Avengers." Would you have good news about any other old favorites? — L. Q., Atlanta, Ga.

A: Only the best. After nine years on the scrap heap, the men from "UNCLE" are coming back in a TV series. Still heading the cast that used to top the ratings will be Robert Vaughn as agent Napoleon Solo and David McCallum playing his blond sidekick, Ilia Kiriakin. Good thinking, MGM. Q: Is there any serious man in Susan Ford's life? — D. S., Lexington, S.C.

A: She had several dates with Redskins quarterback Billy Kilmer, but her romances seem to fizzle, probably due to the Secret Service men always at her side. Susan's journalism career may be taking a turn for the better. We hear rumors that she's getting some choice photography assignments, like one to photograph bullet-badman Rudolph Nureyev for the Ladies Home Journal.

Q: Why is Esther Williams suing MGM for a million dollars? — R.T., Auburn, Me.

A: Like a lot of other former movie stars, Esther feels exploited by the fact that she didn't get a penny from the use of her film in those two very successful compilation movies, bathing suit days. But isn't that true of most women in their 30's?

Q: You mentioned the rumors about Ronald Reagan having a facelift. Are there any other male celebrities who have had cosmetic surgery? — F. L., Warwick, R. I.

A: Years ago, Gary Cooper admitted he had a facelift before making his final movie, and his widow ended up marrying the plastic surgeon. Very few celebrities, with the exception of Piyiliss Diller, ever admit to surgical touchups. Rumors are always rife, however, and those most often mentioned include Cliff Robertson, Tony Curtis, Rock Hudson and Dean Martin.

Q: What's behind the rumors Frank Sinatra has bought control of some important Las Vegas gambling casinos? — P. C. H., Santa Barbara, Calif.

A: The rumors are exaggerated, so far. Old Blue Eyes has bought some shares in four casinos that were owned by the late Del Webb.

Q: Is it really true that the late King Farouk's once unbelievably rich sister is reduced to scrubbing floors in Los Angeles to make ends meet? — R. L. A., Albany.

A: All too true. And Fathia Ghali, now 45, has just seen the last of her royal riches — necklaces, earrings and a bracelet — hauled into bankruptcy court to pay off her debts. She lives with her 81-year-old mother in an L.A. apartment paid for by a friend. A far cry from those days in Cairo.

Q: What's the threatened "bombshell" that reportedly has Elvis Presley so worried? — L. T. J., Louisville.

A: It's a manuscript, titled "The Man Behind the Myth," that's being offered to book publishing houses. Three former Presley henchmen whom he fired earlier this year are peddling the book, which supposedly would reveal dark corners of Elvis's private life — exactly what he does and how he lives when out of the public limelight. Given the authors' obvious bitterness, we kind of hope the book doesn't make it.

Q: How do ordinary British seamen treat Prince Charles when the heir to the throne takes command of a ship as part of his Royal Navy training? — H.L., Springfield, Mass.

A: Well, one sailor approached the prince recently with a cheekiness that once would have earned him a flogging. He held out a plate of food and protested that it was inedible. Prince Charles tried some and said it tasted all right to

him. "I'm afraid I intend to take this higher," said the sailor. "And exactly how much higher," asked the prince, "do you think you can go?" The tale remained up.

KEEPING TRIM: Sit in a straight chair with feet wrapped around chair legs and twist body 90 degrees without moving hips. It's great for the waistline. Morning After Tip: Honey, a deep source of energy, is excellent for hangovers when mixed with prune juice. Bar-Snooping at The Assembly, NYC: Room temperature in the U.S. is at least five degrees above that of France and Italy. So when you want to serve a wine at room temperature, it should be slightly cooled first. Beauty Hint from George (Toluca Lake) Carroll: Always rinse hair and scalp with cool to cold water after shampooing your hair. It will close the pores and give the hair a sheen. Famous Last Words: "It could never be twins — they just don't run in either of our families."

+++ IN THE 1840s, the bathtub was denounced in this country as a corruption of our democratic simplicity! Attempts were made to legislate against it. Item for a Lull-in-Conversation: The four suits in playing cards represent the four orders of society in the Middle Ages.

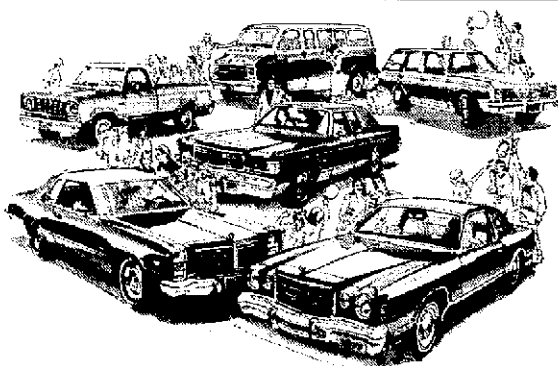

Spades, an adaptation of the scepter, represented the nobility; hearts, a modification of a chalice, the clergy; diamonds, the merchant class; and clubs, an adaptation of the slave, the peasantry. You can trust your Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) friend with a secret forever — he'll never betray your confidence. Graphology Note: When letters are not always slanted in the same direction, it indicates a basic security. Researchers say that blondes have more tendency to be quarrelsome than brunettes. Those Laws: The rabbit population of any one block in Tusculum, Ala., must be eight or less. (But do the rabbits know this?) Fresh fruit and raw vegetables are nature's toothbrushes. They require chewing that cleans the teeth, and the surrounding soft tissues.

+++ THINGS One Learns in a Bar: That the Swedish toast, "Skål," is not actually a toast like "here's to you." It means "Drink up — and have another." Exercise your toes for greater foot comfort. Wiggle them a lot in the mornings and at night. Also try picking up a pencil with your toes. Bar-Snooping at the Ritz Carlton, Boston: Try cranberry juice and applejack mixed in a blender, and served in a champagne glass. Add a clove to slice of orange and float it atop drink. Overworked Expression: "Don't do anything I wouldn't do." Home Decor Tip: For an unusual decorative headboard, cover it with the same fabric as the bedspread. Shampoo Tip from Pelula Clark: Let beer for a shampoo sit for two or three days and then add two spoonfuls of vinegar before washing. And remember that a 10-minute rinse is important to get solution out of hair.

+++ HELPFUL HINTS: Remove leaves below waterline in a vase to let cut flowers keep longer. Decaying vegetable matter poisons the water. To draw an accurate line on a board, use a knife rather than a pencil. If paper has stuck to a varnished table top, apply a few drops of any oil that's handy, and the paper will come off.

A: Only the best. After nine years on the scrap heap, the men from "UNCLE" are coming back in a TV series. Still heading the cast that used to top the ratings will be Robert Vaughn as agent Napoleon Solo and David McCallum playing his blond sidekick, Ilya Kuryakin. Good thinking, MGM.

Q: Is there any serious man in Susan Ford's life? — D. S., Lexington, S.C.

A: She had several dates with Redskins quarterback Billy Kilmer, but her romances seem to fizzle, probably due to the Secret Service men always at her side. Susan's journalism career may be taking a turn for the better. We hear rumors that she's getting some choice photography assignments, like one to photograph ballet badman Rudolph Nureyev for the Ladies Home Journal.

Q: Why is Esther Williams suing MGM for a million dollars? — R.T., Auburn, Me.

A: Like a lot of other former movie stars, Esther feels exploited by the fact that she didn't get a penny from the use of her film in those two very successful compilation movies, bathing suit days. But isn't that true of most women in their 50's?

Q: You mentioned the rumors about Ronald Reagan having a facelift. Are there any other male celebrities who have had cosmetic surgery? — F. L., Warwick, R. I.

A: Years ago, Gary Cooper admitted he had a facelift before making his final movie, and his widow ended up marrying the plastic surgeon. Very few celebrities, with the exception of Phyllis Diller, ever admit to surgical touchups. Rumors are always rife, however, and those most often mentioned include Cliff Robertson, Tony Curtis, Rock Hudson and Dean Martin.

Q: What's behind the rumors Frank Sinatra has bought control of some important Las Vegas gambling casinos? — P. C. H., Santa Barbara, Calif.

A: The rumors are exaggerated, so far. Old Blue Eyes has bought some shares in four casinos that were owned by the late Del Webb.

Q: Is it really true that the late King Farouk's once unbelievably rich sister is reduced to scrubbing floors in Los Angeles to make ends meet? — R. L. A., Albany.

A: All too true. And Fathia Ghali, now 45, has just seen the last of her royal riches — necklaces, earrings and a bracelet — hauled into bankruptcy court to pay off her debts. She lives with her 81-year-old mother in an L.A. apartment paid for by a friend. A far cry from those days in Cairo.

Q: What's the threatened "bombshell" that reportedly has Elvis Presley so worried? — L. T. J., Louisville.

A: It's a manuscript, titled "The Man Behind the Myth," that's being offered to book publishing houses. Three former Presley henchmen whom he fired earlier this year are peddling the book, which supposedly would reveal dark corners of Elvis's private life — exactly what he does and how he lives when out of the public limelight. Given the authors' obvious bitterness, we kind of hope the book doesn't make it.

Q: How do ordinary British seamen treat Prince Charles when the heir to the throne takes command of a ship as part of his Royal Navy training? — H.L., Springfield, Mass.

A: Well, one sailor approached the prince recently with a cheekiness that once would have earned him a flogging. He held out a plate of food and protested that it was inedible. Prince Charles tried some and said it tasted all right to him. "I'm afraid I intend to take this higher," said the sailor. "And exactly how much higher," asked the prince, "do you think you can go?" The tar clammed up.

So when you want to serve a wine at room temperature, it should be slightly cooled first. . . . Beauty Hint from George (Toluca Lake) Carroll: Always rinse hair and scalp with cool to cold water after shampooing your hair. It will close the pores and give the hair a sheen. . . . # VIRGINIA: Land Of Living Legends

BY RICHARD BOYD

BRISTOL, Va. (NEA) — On a dogwood-redbud blossoming bright spring day, the world might well be more in accord if everyone could slowly drive the 14 miles across the north fork of the Holston River from Abingdon to the Hansville crossroads.

The gloriously unfolding panorama along this brief but breathtaking Robert Porterfield Memorial Highway — the misty mountain distances, the sun sparkling waters, the technicolor profusion of spring and fall colors, the sweeping serenity — dares the mind to manufacture harsh thoughts.

Maybe these 14 miles are the soul of Virginia. But then, that can't be if you walk barefoot during a rioting summer sunset along the beach at Chincoteague and absorb the shadowy solitude.

And world travelers returning to Virginia attest there is no experience more rejuvenating and more stirring than driving the long Valley south from Winchester to Abingdon; cradled and cleansed by the mellow hues of Blue Ridge Mountains on one side and the rugged peaks and green valleys of the Allegheny Mountains on the other.

This is one approach to attempting to comprehend Virginia: perhaps, in many respects, the most inwardly rewarding approach. The problem with a state that gave the new land its first permanent settlement at Jamestown and later gave it the "Father of the Country" and the tableau for much of the history and heritage we are celebrating this

You drive, in the far and rugged Southwest, over what is part of the old Daniel Boone Wilderness Trail, stopping near the hamlet of Ewing to view the spot where Indians killed Boone's son. You can follow Boone's footsteps through Cumberland Gap, the picturesque slash through the mountains which opened the way West.

Choose your geography and you can gaze upon George Washington's initials carved in the tobacco tycoon and Benge, the notorious half-breed who terrorized the white settlers in the Southwest. It's the land of sand and surf and oyster fishermen on the east and of dirt farms and deep mine coal in the mountainous west.

At times, one has to guard against a tendency to treat Virginia as a rare and fragile piece of a family heirloom china.

For instance, a 10-year battle between a power company and conservationists over the fate of a river (should it be harnessed for electrical power or left to flow freely?) is not even a typical environmental confrontation because this involves the New River and despite its misnomer name, it's the second oldest river in the world.

That is why as perhaps in no other state, the byroads, backroads, sideroads, dirt roads, no roads demand to be discovered. And in that respect, Virginia — a sprawling, odd-shaped expanse of real-estate offering such geographic designations as the Tidewater, the Piedmont, the Blue Ridge, the Valley and the Alleghenies — can provide a lifetime of adventure for the modern-day explorer.

Here's Number 46

Here's No. 46 in a series on some of the colorful people, history and facts about each of America's 50 states. Today's author is editor of the Bristol Virginia-Tennessean.

Bicentennial is not to let all of that become intimidating.

One can become overwhelmed by the power and grandeur of this diverse, contrasting, contradictory living legend of a state! Here you walk the tree-lined, hallowed streets of Old Williamsburg, marvel at Monticello and Mount Vernon, and absorb the antiquity of the University of Virginia and the State Capitol built by Thomas Jefferson.

the rock wall at Natural Bridge, visit Yorktown and buy the handblown glass, or stroll the spacious grounds of the Carter Grove Plantation on the James River and mull over the mysterious-silences of Manassas and Bull Run, or dine in the preserved elegance of Martha Washington Inn in historic Abingdon, where presidents and statesmen and just plain folks have made themselves at home. It's the land of King Carter, Discovering Virginia can include winding through the mountains to Breaks Interstate Park to view, in awe, the churning, muddy Big Sandy River flowing far below in this "Grand Canyon of the East" and it can include first rate state-supported professional theater at Barter in Abingdon. Barter got its name from the fact that originally admission was by bartering of fruits and vegetables and meats and poultry to feed the hungry actors.

How Vote Went For President

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here at a glance are the latest election returns in the race for president with 100 per cent of the nation's precincts reporting.

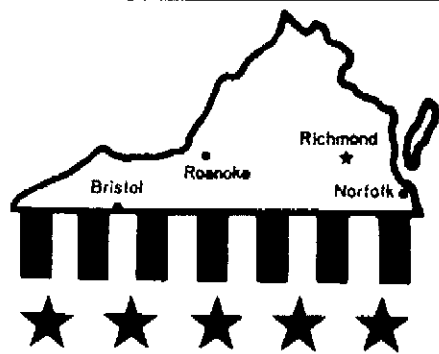

Carter 40,276,040 votes—51 p.c. Has won 23 states with 272 ev. Leads in 1 state with 25 ev.

Ford 38,532,630 votes—48 p.c. Has won 26 states with 235 ev. Leads in 1 state with 6 ev.

Needed to win: 270 of the 538 electoral votes (ev) from the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

It's no wonder the most fitting slogan is "Virginia is for Lovers" because if love includes the varieties of experience, it is all here in the Old Dominion.

But Virginia is also people. This is a grand time to discover not only the major and minor history of the state but also the people: the fiddle players in June at Galax during the granddaddy of all fiddle conventions; the crusty tobacco farmers in southside cultivating the precious seed Sir Walter Raleigh introduced to the fertile soil; the coal miners of the mountains, most with a tall tale and a song and a life often of constant sorrow; the lobster and shrimp fishermen of eastern shore who can read the moods of the fickle sea with astounding familiarity; the tooming masses of northern Virginia who surge daily across the oft-polluted Potomac keeping the gears of government relatively untangled; the street corner historians of Richmond and Williamsburg where nearly every resident is eager to relate their personal and vital "gem" of the past that every historian, somehow, has overlooked.

Winter Socks Area With Sneak Attack

BY STEVE McQUOWN
Assistant State Editor

The weatherman chose a sneak attack to advertise the coming winter season by dropping a heavy wet snow overnight, causing power outages in scattered parts of Berrien and

Cass counties and snarled early morning traffic today. But the season's first real snow assault was to end today, according to the U.S. Weather service, with widely scattered snow showers, and temperatures in the upper 20's, predicted for tonight and partly cloudy skies and temperatures in the upper 40's for Friday.

The storm dropped the snow in heaviest reported amounts in south Berrien county and northern Indiana. Lesser amounts of snow were reported in the Twin Cities area and Paw Paw reported only a trace of snow.

Thomas Webb, engineer-manager of the Berrien road commission, estimated that some six to seven inches fell in southern Berrien county, while snowfall in the Twin Cities area was reported at from 1½ to two inches.

He said road commission workers were to clear roadways of tree branches snapped off by the weight of the snow.

John Banyon, Indiana & Michigan Electric company's Benton Harbor division manager, said some branches toppled onto power lines, depriving some 2,000 customers in Berrien and Cass counties of power at one time or another.

The snow accumulation caused River Valley and Galien schools to cancel classes for today.

State police at the Benton Harbor post said early morning interstate traffic was slowed "to about 30 miles per hour," and that there were numerous reports of cars and trucks sliding off the highway into ditches.

The Berrien sheriff's department said they too were struggling with a backlog of minor accident reports.

The snow apparently thinned out inland from the lake.

Ralph Smith, a supervisor with the Van Buren county road commission, reported snowfall at South Haven at about 4½ to five inches; at about four inches at Hartford; about two inches in Lawrence; and about ½ to 1½ inch in Paw Paw.

The Cass county sheriff's department in Cassopolis estimated snowfall at about two inches.

The Wayland state police post in northeast Allegan county said there was very little snow there and roads were just wet.

GOP, Upton Trail In Board Contests

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

With voting returns for the four state educational boards only about two-thirds counted this morning, Democrats were in hopes of making a clean sweep of all eight seats up for grabs.

Republicans can't lose any ground since no GOP incumbents faced re-election this year, but the party had hoped to make some gains on the four boards, each of which had two seats up before the voters.

In the University of Michigan Board of Regents contest, David F. Upton of St. Joseph had a vote count of 812,220 and the other GOP candidate, Earl D. Gabriel, had 802,342. They trailed Democrats Robert Nederlander and Gerald R. Dunn, who had 1,081,703 and 1,060,343 votes, respectively. These unofficial figures were from 66 per cent of the state's precincts.

In the State Board of Education race, Democrats John Watanen Jr. of Marquette and Gurnecindo Salas of East Lansing had 1,024,832 and 989,193 votes, respectively, while Republicans Clarence Dukes of Ann Arbor and Florence F.

Saltzman of Franklin held 23 per cent each.

Democrats currently are outnumbered 4-3 on the state board and stand to draw even with the GOP at 4-4. Not running again are Board president Marilyn Jean Kelly, a Democrat, and vice president, Dr. Gorton Bethmiller, an independent.

Democrats now hold 6-2 majorities on the three state university boards.

In the Michigan State University Board of Trustees race, incumbent Democrat Dr. Blance Martin held 1,084,063 vote. Democrat Michael Smayda of Lansing captured 982,898, while Republicans Paul V. Gadola of Swartz Creek and Nick Smith of Addison held 862,545 and 816,440, respectively.

In the Wayne State University board of governors contest, two Democrats, incumbent George C. Edwards and Dauris Jackson of Detroit received 1,081,387 and 989,503 votes compared with 856,378 and 800,602 for Republicans Diane J. Edgecomb of Detroit and John R. Axe of Grosse Point Park.

Coloma Township Camp Site Wins Permit

COLOMA — By a 4 to 1 vote, the Coloma township zoning board of appeals has approved a special use permit to clear the way for construction of a proposed resort-campground facility at Little Paw Paw Lake. The board action was required to exempt the 20-acre site from its agricultural zoning before the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bittner, North Coloma road, could begin the project. Action was taken at a special meeting Monday night.

Board members voting in favor of the exemption were James Friday, board chairman; James Miller, Charles Krenke, and Miss Nona Stewart. Voting against was William (Wes) Bexson, board secretary. Bexson said his vote was cast because he felt the lake was too small for a campground containing 25 campsites.

In approving the permit, a list of stipulations was placed on the owners. Included were an attendant be on the grounds at all times the camp is open; the facility be closed for three months during the winter; the property be fenced in; and no trailers be left on the grounds when the campground is closed. The proposal drew considerable opposition from adjacent property owners and residents around Little Paw Paw lake, after being introduced in February.

Coloma Twp. Approves TV Hike

COLOMA — The Coloma township board last night became the final governmental unit in the Coloma-Waterbury area to approve a 25 per cent rate increase for the area's cable television firm.

The increase, from $5.95 to $7.50 in the monthly service charge for users, is expected to go into effect shortly.

The cities of Coloma and Waterbury and Waterbury township previously approved the increase for the Paw Paw Lake Cable TV Co. The firm provides the service in the four units under a franchise.

Also approved in the board's action was a 50-cent jump in the monthly service fee for users of the firm's FM offerings. The new FM service rate will be $1 a month.

In other matters, Supervisor Ewald Eckblom announced the appointment of Harold F. Voorhees, 50, of 6451 Becht road, as the township's electrical inspector, filling the vacancy created last September with the death of inspector Harold Grove. Voorhees is owner of Harold's Electrical Service Co.

The board approved the purchase of a hydraulic snow plow attachment for the township sanitation truck to be used for removing snow from the township parking area and entrances into township sewer lift stations.

The board authorized Treasurer Robert Palmer to purchase the plow from one of two bidders, Neil's Automotive, Hartford, $1,075 or Case Landscaping Co., Eau Claire, $1,045. Palmer indicated the higher bid is expected to be accepted since the dealer is nearer to the township for repairs and maintenance.

The board approved a lot split requested by Oscar Kort, Janet drive, to clear the way for selling a 100-foot section of land off his lot to another party.

Township resident Edward Ladwig asked for a copy of the township's sanitation department audit so he can learn how a three-mill tax levy is being used for repayment of the township's share of the cost for the Paw Paw Lake sewage treatment plant.

Palmer said copy of the audit would be available when it is completed.

Subdivision Okayed In Galien Township

GALIEN — The Galien township board has approved a proposed subdivision plan submitted by Phillip Pence of Olive Branch road, Galien.

The proposed 16-lot subdivision will be located at Beaver Dam road and Olive Branch road, Pence told the township board Tuesday night. Lot sizes will vary from 150 by 150 feet to 530 by 350 feet, he said.

In other business, the board voted to get its workmen's compensation insurance for township firemen through the George Beach Insurance agency of Buchanan.

Royalton Man Gets Court Post

Lloyd A. Both of Royalton township has been appointed Berrien Circuit court administrator. Berrien's three circuit judges announced. Both, 53, of 5554 Tilly road, comes to the $15,000 per year post from Nylen Products in Bridgman, where he was an accountant. Both also served as fire chief for the Tri-Unit fire department, serving Stevensville, Royalton and Lincoln townships, from 1970 to 1975.

Presiding Circuit Judge Julian E. Hughes said Both's duties will include supervision of the court file room, court scheduling, docket control, budget matters, and coordinating personnel among officers which deal with circuit court. Both has resided in Berrien county since 1941. He is a graduate of Lane Technical high school in Chicago and served in the Navy during World War II. He and his wife, Joyce, have three children.

Both assumes the position vacated by William Evans, Jr., who resigned last summer.

Weesaw Objecting To Tavern License

NEW TROY — The Weesaw township board last night voted to instruct Clerk John Payne to write a letter to the state liquor control commission objecting to renewal of a license for the New Troy Inn, owned by Frank Ude.

The board said it objected to the present condition of the building. In other areas, the board approved purchase of a used voting machine from Doubleday Bros., Benton Harbor, at a cost of $1,400, and gave Police Chief

Bill Daniel permission to purchase a traffic radar device for $1,585.

Fire Chief Craig Smith was instructed to check into the costs of paneling and a new ceiling at the fire station. He said firemen will volunteer to do the work if the township will buy the materials.

REST AREA CONSTRUCTION: Grading has started for construction of rest area along northbound lanes of I-196 in Allegan county, about six miles north of South Haven. Construction is expected to be completed by mid-July, 1977, according to state highway department. General contractor for $587,272 project is D.J. McQuestion & Sons of Dearborn Heights. Rest area will include paved entrance and exit ramps, a building and water and sewer systems, highway department spokesman said. Camera view is to south. (Adolph Hann aerial photo)

NEW TROY — The Weesaw township board last night voted to instruct Clerk John Payne to write a letter to the state liquor control commission objecting to renewal of a license for the New Troy Inn, owned by Frank Ude.

The board said it objected to the present condition of the building.

In other areas, the board approved purchase of a used voting machine from Doubleday Bros., Benton Harbor, at a cost of $1,400, and gave Police Chief

Bill Daniel permission to purchase a traffic radar device for $1,585.

Fire Chief Craig Smith was instructed to check into the costs of paneling and a new ceiling at the fire station. He said firemen will volunteer to do the work if the township will buy the materials.

A report on building permits for October showed total estimated construction costs of $53,080.

Subdivision Okayed In Galien Township

GALIEN — The Galien township board has approved a proposed subdivision plan submitted by Phillip Pence of Olive Branch road, Galien.

The proposed 16-lot subdivision will be located at Beaver Dam road and Olive Branch road, Pence told the township board Tuesday night. Lot sizes will vary from 150 by 150 feet to 530 by 380 feet, he said.

Market Steadies After Dip

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, steadying after Wednesday's decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped a little more than 2 points at the outset, while gainers took a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

GM traded at 72 1/4, down 1 1/4.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average closed with a 9.56 loss at 956.53 after having been down about 16 points early in the session.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 4-1 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's volume hit a three-week high of 19.35 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index lost .52 to 98.51.

AMC Plans To Lay Off Over 8,000

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — American Motors Corp. says it will lay off 8,400 workers at its plants in Kenosha and Milwaukee for eight days this month.

The layoff of 6,900 workers at the two Kenosha plants and 1,500 at Milwaukee is to begin Monday, Nov. 8 and run through Friday.

Workers would be off again Nov. 22-26, with Thanksgiving Day and Nov. 26 observed as regular paid holidays under the AMC contract with the United Auto Workers.

About 3,700 workers were off the job for one week last month. AMC said the layoff stems from high inventory of 1977 model cars.

At the company's plant in Brampton, Ontario, 1,200 workers are idle this week and are to remain off the job next week.

Total AMC employment in Wisconsin is 11,400. The November layoffs involve the final assembly process. Support and engine operations continue.

Chrysler Bails Out Subsidiary

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. announced on Wednesday it has bailed out on Chrysler South Africa, an operation which had lost $10 million in the first nine months of 1976.

Chrysler said Chrysler South Africa will be combined with Illings Ltd., to form a new company, Sigma Ltd.

Chrysler will have 24.9 per cent of Sigma's stock, three of its eight directors and a 35 per cent share of profits.

The move is one of several Chrysler has made to dump losing operations. The company has left the heavy truck business, sold most of its Air-temp division and made a deal with the British government to subsidize the losses of Chrysler-U.K.

Gas Price Takes Dip

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
The average price of a gallon of gasoline in Michigan dipped one-tenth of a cent this week, according to the Automobile Club.

That puts the cost two-tenths of a cent under the all-time high price recorded Sept. 14, officials said.

The club's weekly survey of 300 major-brand stations along main state tourist routes showed regular gasoline averaging 62.8 cents a gallon.

The price of no-lead fuel also was down one-tenth of a cent from last week and averaged 64.9 cents a gallon.

Regular gasoline averaged 58.8 cents a gallon at self-service stations, the Club reported.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Rules Differ For Market Investors

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. I'm a young man, just embarked on my first job and with money to spare for investments. Is it possible for me to compete with persons who study the stock market for a living?

A. That word "compete" requires immediate definition.

The stock market, indeed, is a game, a contest in which many professional money managers try to score profits. The results are as varied as you'd expect — as varied as the league standings of baseball teams, all of which are made up of pros also.

Can a pick-up sandlot team compete with the pros? I doubt it.

If, then, by "compete" you mean the sort of competition that exists between a Las Vegas "21" dealer and the tourist who sits across from him, I think the answer is obvious. The tourist is going to lose in the long run.

But why must you compete? A long-term investor doesn't compete with anyone. If he buys 10 shares of General Motors and puts the certificate into his bank vault, the only competition he is engaged in is the contest between General Motors and the world's other automakers. What the manager of a multi-million-dollar investment fund or the GM specialist on the exchange floor may do with the stock may well affect the market price of GM during the next hour or the next week, but has absolutely no bearing on the small investor's portfolio in 1980 or '85 or any time in between, or thereafter.

If you meant to ask me is the stock market an arena for professional money managers (who do study the market for their living), I'd say yes. And if you then asked does that fact mean that a young man who spends his days in an office or laboratory (and his evenings preparing for advancement) should avoid stock investments, I'd say no. The fact that you don't compete at Indianapolis does not indicate that you shouldn't get behind the wheel of a car. You just don't try to drive down your neighborhood street (or the turnpike, for that matter) the way pros drive in the Indy 500.

If you think you're going to, figuratively, get on the floor of the stock exchange and slug it out, toe to toe, with the specialists — forget it. But that doesn't mean you shouldn't do your own thing — which is buying quality growth stocks and staying with them for so long as the companies continue to grow.

YEAR-END DIVIDEND CHECKS: These continue to cause tax problems for most taxpayers who are on a cash basis, a recent J.K. Lasser Tax Report points out. "When a check representing an income item actually is received on Dec. 31, payee must report it in the year received even though it cannot be cashed because it is received after banking hours."

However, the service says, a different rule applies where the check mailed by payor on Dec. 31 is not received by payee until January. A Supreme Court ruling held the shareholder did not have the income until the following year if it was not received until January. In other words, the day the check is received determines the year in which it is to be counted as income.

Ford Strike Really Hurt Auto Sales

DETROIT (AP) — The strike against Ford Motor Co. took a severe toll on the automaker's car sales in October and sent total domestic car deliveries for the month falling 2 per cent below year-earlier levels, the industry reported Wednesday.

It was the first time in 13 months that the industry sales for a month failed to top their year-ago pace.

Ford said its sales plunged 27 per cent based on the daily sales rate from October 1975.

The firm estimated it lost 85,000 sales last month due to a month-long strike by the United Auto Workers, who ended a nationwide walkout with the Oct. 12 ratification of a new contract.

Ford sold 165,403 cars in 26 sell pv spokesmen said the No. 2 automaker hopes to recapture about half of its strike-related lost sales by the end of the year.

Industrywide, sales of 730,236 were off from 773,623 in October 1975. General Motors said its sales were up 10 per cent and Chrysler reported a 13 per cent gain, while American Motors said its sales were off 16 per cent.

Percentage gains and declines are based on the daily rate since there was one less selling day this October.

For the year, the industry has sold 7,191,344 cars, up 24 per cent from 5,795,880 in 1975. Chrysler is up 34 per cent, GM 30 per cent and Ford 17 per cent, while AMC is down 24 per cent.

Sales of imported cars for the month were estimated at 135,000, up 20 per cent from a year ago.

'Maximum' Employment — 30 Years Later

It was 30 years ago that the historic Employment Act of 1946 went on our statute books, pledging the federal government to the pursuit of "maximum" employment — and reflecting the deep fears at the end of World War II that, without this commitment, we would fall back into an era of great slump and joblessness.

Now, 30 years later, unemployment is stuck at just under 8 per cent, highest since the depression 1930s. And the number of real people out of work approximates 7,300,000. Even this total probably is wildly understated.

"Basically, we have to fight the battle of full employment all over again," University of Minnesota professor Walter W. Heller told me. And added the brilliant economics adviser both to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson: "It's unreal. The words of the act are still there, but the commitment is not. And the spirit of that world-heralded law has been rejected."

"The prime reason why unemployment is not the national trauma it once was is our sufficient dole," Hunter College professor Bertram Gross explained to my Washington associate, Brooke Shearer. And added one of the key drafters of the 1946 legislation: "The country tolerates the situation because of welfare, food stamps, Social Security benefits and unemployment compensation."

But even a new commitment to the 1946 law's principles will not be enough in today's era. Absolutely essential will be new, imaginative attacks on the jobless problem to solve it without simultaneously re-igniting inflation. It can be done. It must be, for all our sakes.

What has happened in the three decades since the Employment Act was passed to bulge the jobless rolls and raise the nation's tolerance threshold for a high unemployment rate? A key change has been the explosive expansion in our labor supply and a fundamental change in its composition.

(1) The "keep-outs." Since 1947, Gross emphasizes, the number of women in the labor force has soared 123 per cent, more than double the rise in the female population and centering around the 25 to 34-year-old bracket. This group, so long excluded from the labor market, along

Larry E. Dunn, 20, of 1698 Glencoe drive, Benton township, 30 days in jail and one year probation for entering Harbor, was arrested Wednesday, city police reported, on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property, a car reported stolen in Benton Harbor in August.

Patrolman James Whiteside said he observed a car traveling at high speed in the 1000 block of Columbus avenue and stopped it after a chase. He said a computer check showed the license plates on the 1968 Chevrolet were for a 1969 Pontiac and a check of the car's identification number revealed it had been reported stolen.

Perkins, 558 Pipestone street, was booked at the Berrien county jail and Whiteside said tickets for careless driving and improper plates were issued.

An 11-year-old Benton Heights girl was cut, but not seriously injured, by flying glass when a piece of concrete was thrown through the window of her home, Benton township police said.

Lisa Downer, daughter of Mrs. Lou Ann Downer, 885 Mill street, did not require hospitalization after the incident shortly before 9 p.m. Mrs. Downer said her daughter was in her bedroom when the window was broken and was cut on the leg.

Benton Harbor police said Ronald Larry, 870 Broadway, reported his 1974 Kawasaki motorcycle, valued at $2,500, was stolen Wednesday. He said the red cycle was parked at the rear of his home.

Another theft reported Wednesday to Benton Harbor police was a record and tape player, valued at $160, from the apartment of Debra Davis, 732 Colfax avenue.

Dewain Green, 2333 Irving drive, Benton Heights, told Berrien sheriff's deputies his CB radio was stolen from his car parked at Lakeshore Bible church, Evanston street, Lake Michigan Beach, Hagar township.

Wisconsin Man's Case Is Mistrial

Edward Sherman, 37, of Lake Geneva, was continued free on $5,000 bond to await a new trial on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property valued at more than $100 — a 1974 Chevrolet Blazer allegedly in his possession Oct. 2, 1975, in Benton township.

Prosecutor John Smielanka and Defense Atty. William Lagoni of St. Joseph stipulated to the mistrial because photographs which were to have been used for identification had been sent back to Wisconsin and were not available yesterday, according to Judge Chester J. Byrnes.

Smielanka said the case "will definitely be re-tried" in the next few months.

Norton Estate In Probate

A petition has been filed in Berrien Probate court seeking to admit to probate the estimated $75,000 estate of Edwin P. Norton, of St. Joseph, who died Aug. 27.

Mr. Norton, 67, of 518 Winchester avenue, established Norton-Pierce and Co. landscape architects in St. Joseph in 1950, and previously worked for the City of St. Joseph and St. Joseph public schools.

His 1971 will lists real estate valued at about $50,000 and personal property at $25,000. The will bequeaths personal effects to his widow, Kathryn, and the rest of the estate to a trust fund at Inter-City bank.

Proceedings have also been initiated on the estimated $100,000 estate, all in personal property, of Samuel A. Messinger, of Bertrand township, who died Sept. 21.

Mr. Messinger left no will, so the court must determine what heirs will receive portions of the estate. The petition lists a brother, Charles Messinger, and sister, Eva Messinger, both of Niles, and two other sisters, Carrie Swelsberger, of Indiana, and Genevieve Champion, of Illinois, as survivors.

more Hughes, 30, of Detroit, three days in jail and $90 or 12 days total; and Charlie J. Holmes, 21, of Detroit, three days in jail and $90 or 10 days total.

Wisconsin Man's Case Is Mistrial

After a half-day of trial Wednesday in Berrien Circuit court the case against a Wisconsin man was declared a mistrial because of missing evidence.

Edward Sherman, 37, of Lake Geneva, was continued free on $5,000 bond to await a new trial on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property valued at more than $100 — a 1974 Chevrolet Blazer allegedly in his possession Oct. 2, 1975, in Benton township.

Prosecutor John Smietanka and Defense Atty. William Lagoni of St. Joseph stipulated to the mistrial because photographs which were to have been used for identification had been sent back to Wisconsin and were not available yesterday, according to Judge Chester J. Byrns.

Smietanka said the case "will definitely be re-tried" in the next few months.

Norton Estate In Probate

A petition has been filed in Berrien Probate court seeking to admit to probate the estimated $75,000 estate of Edwin P. Norton, of St. Joseph, who died Aug. 27.

Mr. Norton, 67, of 518 Winchester avenue, established Norton-Pierce and Co. landscape architects in St. Joseph in 1950, and previously worked for the City of St. Joseph and St. Joseph public schools.

His 1971 will lists real estate valued at about $50,000 and personal property at $25,000. The will bequeaths personal effects to his widow, Kathryn, and the rest of the estate to a trust fund at Inter-City bank.

Proceedings have also been initiated on the estimated $100,000 estate, all in personal property, of Samuel A. Messinger, of Bertrand township, who died Sept. 21.

Mr. Messinger left no will, so the court must determine what heirs will receive portions of the estate. The petition lists a brother, Charles Messinger and sister, Eva Messinger, both of Niles, and two other sisters Carrie Sweisberger, of Indiana, and Genevieve Champion, of Illinois, as survivors.

more Hughes, 30, of Detroit, three days in jail and $90 or 10 days total; and Charlie J. Holmes, 21, of Detroit, three days in jail and $90 or 10 days total.
